In New Economy, New Holland Sales Stables Upholds Traditions

Part 1 of 2

Editor's note: This article is part one of a two-part series on the New Holland Sales Stables. The stories will not only highlight the history of the operation, but also present a few of the people who have contributed to its growth and success.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — For New Holland Sales Stables, becoming the largest auction barn east of the Mississippi was not a carefully calculated move. It was simply the result of taking care of business.

"There's all the business you'd ever want out there. It's more important to take care of what you have first and the business will come," said David Kolb, sale barn manager.

The business has profited from this management philosophy. "The sale barn grows every year on its own," said Kolb.

He credits auction employees as a large reason for the continued progress of the business. The sales stables employs 20 full-time and 40-50 part-time workers, mostly retired farmers or producers who come in to work one day a week.

In 1972 Abram W. Diffenbach and David's father, Norman Kolb, became the sole owners of the sales stables when they purchased the business from 12 stakeholders. Diffenbach was involved with the establishment since 1962 and was president and general manager since 1965. Norman's father, Aaron, was one of the original founders of HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Foot and mouth disease was the center stage topic of discussion and learning for 150 interested producers, FFA and 4-H students, and veterinarians gathered here at the department of agriculture building Wednesday evening.

Hosted by Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes and state veterinarian John Enck, the meeting included not only a presentation but also question-and-answer time.

The first of 14 meetings that will educate producers across Pennsylvania about the disease the meetings are the result of efforts by Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), the

NPPC Cancels World Pork Expo To Protect U.S. Swine From Foot And Mouth Disease

DES MOINES, Iowa — In an effort to be proactive and help protect the health status of the U.S. swine herd and protect U.S. pork producers, on Thursday the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) announced the cancellation of the 2001 World Pork Expo.

"We have seen tremendous devastation in countries around the world from foot and mouth disease outbreaks. The U.S. has

Horse Farms Open For Tours April 21-22

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — What's more fun than a spring day in the country? A spring day in the country visiting horse farms with family and friends, watching a newborn foal, learning about horses, their training and care, and perhaps taking an introductory riding lesson.

On Apr. 21 and 22, 18 professional horse farms, most of which are normally closed to the public, roll open their barn doors and give visitors the chance to learn what goes on behind the scenes.

Show barns, breeding stables, boarding and lesson facilities, a showgrounds, a horse rescue and a mounted police facility will band together for one weekend only to demonstrate the variety of ways horses are used and

CM Zarius, a 3-year-old Arabian stallion from Country Manor Arabians in Washington Boro, above, will be featured on the ninth annual horse farms open house presented by Pennsylvania Equestrian newspaper. Here, owner Peggy Ann Broome with the stallion. Broome and her husband John sell Arabians of Crabbet lineage. Zarius is in training with Randy Stoneback Arabians. The farm, which is reducing its herd, offers several Crabbet Arabians for sale.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer
ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds increased slightly where buyers looked to insure an adequate supply through the Holiday period as most plants planned to close on Friday or Monday. Offerings were fully sufficient.. Live supplies were moderate to light; weights varied and were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to light. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 65 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. All parts were adequate. Wings generally cleared well. Most leg items were in good balance. Bone-in and particularly boneless skinless breasts were fully adequate to ample.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest remained very light and selective as dealers kept floorstocks as closely balanced as possible. Offerings of boneless-skinless breasts were usually available, with spot discounting noted where product was difficult to place. Bone-in breasts were more than sufficient. Active draw through export channels continued to keep legs and leg quarters well cleared. Wings ranged balanced to tight at times. Retail and distributive movement remained limited and feature activity usually centered around the seasonal holiday items. The market tone was about steady on breast items, fully steady on dark meat cuts, fully steady to instances firm on wings.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Slight gains in grain and soybean domestic markets today. Wet weather remains in Corn Belt areas and lower crop ratings in wheat fields lending strength to bids. Bids were higher across the Board, Wheat 1 to 4 cents higher, Corn 1 to 4 cents higher, Sorghum 3 cents higher and Soybean bids 2 to 7 cents higher.

Wheat bids bounce slightly higher on news of lower crop rating in winter wheat growing areas. Corn bids higher as wet weather remains supportive. Lower 2001 corn planted acreage and wet planting slowing down field work limited declines. Soybeans bids were higher on light short covering heading into the long weekend. However favorable weather in South America limiting upturns.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshing. Less feet problems and less stress

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MOON ON THE EQUATOR, APRIL 21

SWEEPING IN GOOD LUCK

Don't give in to spring fever just when there's spring cleaning to be done, for it's considered unlucky to be spring cleaning after May. It's also unlucky to mop across the floorboards instead of with them. Some say that the consequences are that you will marry a drunkard or be unhappy in love. Be careful where you leave that mop bucket, too, because if you pass an empty bucket upon leaving your house, you will have bad luck Passing a full bucket, on the other hand, brings good luck. If you need a broom, buy it now "Buy a broom in the month of May, you'll sweep your friends away," one old saying warns. Sharing the spring cleaning is fine, but never make a bed with more than one other person; that's considered extremely unlucky (and is probably extremely unlikely, too).

See a pin and pick it up, all the day you'll have good luck.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Run a cup of white vinegar through your washing machine or dishwasher once a month to cut down on mineral deposits.

SPRING CHICKEN WITH SHALLOTS

1 whole fresh chicken (2 to 3 pounds)
2 teaspoons minced shallots
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon dried herb of your choice (consider tarragon, basil, or savory)
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 375°F. Rinse chicken, inside and out, and pat dry Combine all ingredients (except the bird) in a small bowl and blend. Separate the skin from the chicken as much as possible and smear half the olive oil mixture under the skin. Place the bird in a roasting pan on a rack and drizzle with remaining mixture. Roast for 1 hour or until juices run clear

Makes 2 to 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

April snow breeds grass.

Let it rain in April and May for me, / And all the rest of the year for thee.

Fogs in April foretell a failure of the wheat crop next year.

LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

OPINION

Never Enough Good News

Just for a brief time, perhaps we can set aside fears of hoof and mouth disease, worries about the potential of BSE in domestic meat products, avian influenza concerns in flocks, trepidation about potential drought, or crop prices sharply down.

USDA's Economic Research Service released its April 2001 Ag Outlook this week, looking at the "U.S. Farm Picture In 2001."

Some of it, on the surface, appears bleak, but a good deal of it shows that farmers may have something to be happy about.

Though sheep and lamb inventory continues to decline, with lamb and mutton production totaling about 217 million pounds (down 7 percent from 2000), market lamb prices were expected to peak during the Easter/Passover season, averaging $81-$85 in the second quarter.

But it's even better than that.

According to reports provided to us from New Holland, some lambs were selling for as much as $210 a hundredweight (some up to $2.10 a pound). Two hundred dollars! This season brings a strong demand for lamb.

According to the USDA report, while the general weakness in agricultural markets of the past couple of years continues, noted the review, early signs of recovery are evident. Many farm sector indicators remain favorable, according to USDA, including asset values and debt levels, due in large part to record government payments.

Global stocks of major crops are not excessive compared with use, prices of ag commodities are generally up, there'll be modest increases in food prices, and reduced plantings in 2001 could lead to a further drawdown of stocks.

USDA remains optimistic, predicting better U.S. exports, further gains in ag commodity prices, and rising farm income.

Not bad!

Just for a brief time, perhaps we can count our blessings.

May you have a wonderful holiday.

To Attend Meetings On Foot-And-Mouth Disease

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has scheduled a series of meetings on Foot-And-Mouth Disease to update the agricultural community on this disease and on Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE, or "Mad Cow Disease").

The next meetings will be in Lebanon County April 16 and in Lancaster County April 17.

The Lebanon meeting will be at the Lebanon Expo Center, 2120 Cornwall Rd., Lebanon and the Lancaster event will be at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster. Both programs will begin at 7 p.m. If you are a livestock producer it would be wise to come to learn about the disease and the steps being taken to prevent an outbreak in Pennsylvania.

To Place Pheromone Traps In Your Orchard

According to Penn State Entomologists Greg Krawczyk and Larry A. Hull, pheromone traps should be placed in your orchard now.

Using pheromone traps for monitoring can be an easy way to learn which moth pests are present in various orchards. It is very important that pheromone traps be hung in the orchard before moth flight begins, so accurate degree-days calculations can be used for timing control treatments.

Oriental fruit moth traps should be placed in the orchard during the first half of April and monitored daily to establish the beginning of the flight (biofix). Traps for codling moth and tufted apple bud moth should be placed in the orchard at the pink stage of apple development and also monitored daily until biofix is set.

The biofix date is defined as the first day of two consecutive days during which moths were collected in the traps. Also, if moths were collected during two nights out of three, the first night is used for setting biofix.

After establishing biofix, all traps should be checked at least weekly and the number of moths should be recorded. Good reliable trap records can be used for the comparison of pest pressure among various orchards/blocks or even between different years.

To Apply Lime, Fertilizer For Spring Alfalfa Seedings

Managing soil fertility for an alfalfa crop is a process that continues throughout the life of the stand. Adjusting soil conditions to provide an optimum growing environment before planting is an important part of that process.

A soil test is the best way to determine alfalfa fertility and lime needs. The rate of limestone required must be determined by a soil test that has both the pH and lime requirement test.

Ideally lime should be applied six months before planting to allow time for the lime to react with the soil. However, if you failed to apply lime last fall, apply lime before plowing to bring the soil ph to the 6.5 to 7 range. If the amount of lime required is 1 ton or less, the lime should be worked into the surface rather than plowing it down.

It is important to remember that not all limestone is equal. The rate of application should be adjusted based on the limestone's neutralizing ability. The neutralizing ability is given as calcium carbonate equivalent (CCE) of the limestone. Soil test recommendations are made on the basis of 100 percent CCE. Lower CCE limestone can be used but the rate needs to be adjusted.

The formula for making the adjustment is as follows: Adjusted Limestone Rec. = 100 X Limestone Rec./CEC.

Alfalfa is the most sensitive forage crop to the pH level. With legume crops such as alfalfa, the significance of proper pH is related directly to the nitrogen fixation process. The soil bacteria, which fix nitrogen, do not function well at low pH levels and the crop can suffer from nitrogen deficiency. Planting time is also the time that the soil fertility levels should be corrected to provide for an optimum growing environment for the alfalfa. Alfalfa is a very heavy user of potash, and seeding time is a good time to bring up the potash level in your soil. Alfalfa has a heavy demand for phosphorus as well. Phosphorus and potash are relatively immobile in the soil.

Phosphorus will move less than one eight of an inch in the soil in a year. To bring the root zone up to the optimum level for phosphorus and potash, these nutrients must be thoroughly mixed in the soil. Since there is no way to do this after the crop is established, it is important to bring up the soil levels to the optimum to high range before planting.

On livestock farms where manure is applied to corn in a crop rotation, phosphorus and potash levels tend to accumulate during the corn years of the rotation when manure is applied to meet nitrogen needs of the corn. This buildup can provide soil test levels in the high range for the alfalfa planting. A soil test to monitor the levels is an important tool in planning for your soil fertility needs.

Quote of the Week:

"Think positively about yourself, keep your thoughts and your actions clean, ask God who made you to keep on remaking you."

— Norman Vincent Peale

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HAS ANYONE HERE SEEN JESUS?

Background Scripture:
Luke 24:1-12; Acts 9:1-31.
Devotional Reading:
John 20:1,11-18.

If you compare the narratives of the resurrection in all four gospels and add to that the experience of Paul on the Damascus Road in Acts 9, it is impossible to know precisely what happened on that first Easter Sunday and the days following, during which various disciples experienced the risen Lord.

Matthew's and Mark's accounts are quite similar, except that in Mark we are told the women "said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid" (Mk. 16:8) and in Matthew the women "ran to tell his disciples" (Mat. 28:8). Luke tells pretty much the same story except that the words of the "two men" are different: "Why do you seek the living among the dead?" (Lk. 24:5).

John's telling, however, is quite different. Mary Magdalene is joined at the tomb by Simon Peter and "the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved . . ." (Jn. 20:2-4). Then, when the disciples have returned to their homes, Mary encounters the Risen Lord, although she does not immediately recognize him.

'Do Not Hold Me'

Not only do the details of the resurrection story vary, but the appearance or nature of the Risen Lord.

According to Luke 24:13-35, two disciples encounter him as a stranger on the road to Emmaus and only recognize him as Jesus when he breaks bread with them and then disappears. When he appears to Mary at the tomb, he tells her: "Do not hold me, for I have not yet ascended to my father" (Lk. 20:11-18). In Matthew 28:9,10, he appears to the women coming back from the tomb and we are told "they . . . took hold of his feet and worshipped him."

The Risen Lord comes to the assembled disciples, appearing and then again disappearing from a locked room (Jn. 20:19-23) and then again when Thomas is present. He tells unbelieving Thomas to touch his wounds so that he may know he is flesh and blood.

In another appearance at the Sea of Galilee he eats breakfast with the disciples.

In Acts 1 we are told that "To them he presented himself after his passion by many proofs, appearing to them during forty days . . ." Years later, while Saul (Paul) was on the road to Damascus, he saw a great light and heard the voice of the Risen Lord and was blinded for three days (Acts 9:1-9). His traveling companions also heard the Lord's voice.

Later, writing of this, Paul claims it as an experience of the Resurrected Lord on a spiritual basis equal to those of the original disciples. Paul recounts that "he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve . . . then . . . more than five hundred brethren at one time . . . then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles . . . Last of all as to one untimely both, he appeared also to me" (1:Cor. 15:5-8).

Persuasive Differences

So what does all this say to us about the Risen Lord? It tells us, first of all, that no one saw Jesus in the act of being resurrected; the various disciples experienced him only after he was risen from the tomb. So we have no idea how that happened — and we do not need to know.

The experience of Christ resurrected is not something that can be caught on film, motion detectors, or infrared film, and then displayed on the evening TV news. It was a spiritual experience that different people experienced differently and reported differently.

Paul's experience was different than what Thomas experienced, but Paul held it just as valid, just as authentic. The discrepancies do not bother me either; I would be dubious if they all read alike.

Some may encounter the Christ in a dream, a vision, a palpable physical experience, a "heart strangely warmed," an ecstatic out-of-body encounter, or even a simple growing conviction that Christ lives in one's heart. Like the two disciples on their way to Emmaus, it may take us a while to realize that "It is the Lord!"

The real question is not just how it happened then or happens today, but what it meant and means to those who experience it. The power of the resurrection is measured not in watts, volts, or megabytes, but in how it changes and charges those who encounter the risen Christ.

Has anyone here seen Jesus? If the answer is "yes," then we don't need to explain the "how."

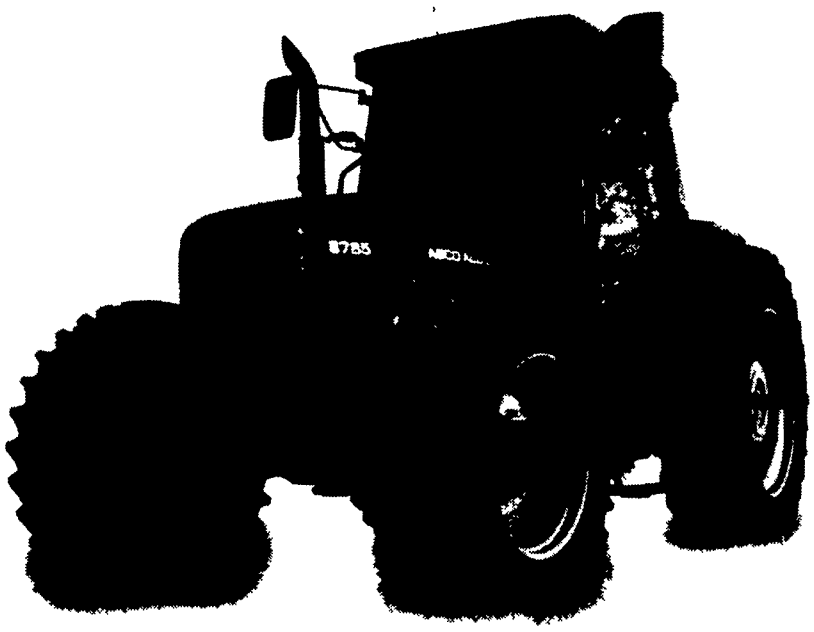
"But Wait... There's More."



Why quote a TV infomercial pitchman? Because at your AGCO Allis dealership, we really are offering even more features on our AGCO Allis 8700 Series tractors.

You will still get AGCO's best-in-the-business 4-year/4,000-hour warranty that provides engine and powertrain coverage for up to four years.

But before you look at another offer, take a look at what AGCO Allis has added for 2001. Choose the Model 8775 or 8785 with a QuadraShift transmission. With a single lever mounted on the steering column, you can powershift within four speed ranges, and shuttle between forward and reverse. Manual shuttle is standard, or choose our optional PowerControl for clutchless shuttling.

For small tractor needs, check out the new offerings on the Models 8745 and 8765. In addition to the 12x4 and 12x12 transmissions, with their manual shuttles, we now offer a new 24x24 transmission with a clutchless, column-mounted PowerShuttle and a two-speed powershift.

So don't settle for any ordinary deal. Stop in soon and check out our special offers on these new and improved models.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
April 6, 2001

Markets Remain Firm

- Commodity markets remain strong.
- Export demand strong.
- CCC purchases slow.
- Suiza/Dean merger.

Prices for cheese and butter at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME) remain strong and showed very modest gains this week.

Barrel cheese prices rose from $1.31 per pound on Monday, April 2 to $1.3250 by Friday, April 6. Likewise, block cheese prices rose from $1.3550 per pound on Monday to $1.3650 by Friday. Even butter showed very modest gains, rising from $1.68 per pound on Monday to $1.69 by Friday.

Cheese production continues to lag production levels from a year ago. Cumulative cheddar cheese production during January February 2001 (adjusted for leap year) was down 8.6 percent relative to a year ago. Total cheese production during this same period was down 2.3 percent.

The futures markets are still reflecting higher milk prices. As of April 6, 2001 CME Class III settlement prices are $11.87 for April, rising to $13.20 by September. Class IV settlement prices as of April 6 are $14.30 for April, $14.25 for May, and level off at $14.45 for June through October. These are excellent prices for dairy producers who want to use the futures market to lock in price gains relative to 2000.

What is showing signs of change is international demand for U.S. dairy products.

USDA reported this week that export interest in whey, whey protein concentrate, lactose, and even nonfat dry milk is increasing because of concern regarding European foot and mouth disease. While surplus sales of nonfat dry milk continue under the dairy price support program, USDA reported that sales this week were "the smallest weekly net purchase since December 1999." Prices for nonfat dry milk in Central markets were mostly $1.0250-$1.0350 this week, up from support levels of $1.01 in 2001.

In other news, Suiza Foods and Dean Foods announced yesterday a merger between the two companies. The new company, to be named Dean Foods, will have nearly $10 billion in annual sales. Howard Dean, chairman and CEO of Dean's Foods, will serve as chairman of the board of the new company. Gregg Engles, chairman and CEO of Suiza Foods, will be the CEO of the new company.

As part of these transactions, Suiza has agreed to repurchase the 33.8 percent stake in Suiza Dairy Group that is owned by Dairy Farmers of America. The new Dean Foods company will be headquartered in Dallas, Texas; will operate in 39 states; will have 137 dairy facilities; and will employ 30,000 people. It is forecast to have 2001 annual sales of $9.528 billion. It will be the single largest fluid processor in the U.S.

Weather Protect Weed Control for Top Yields

FIELD NOTES

Weather is one of the most important factors affecting weed control in corn today Dry, wet or cold weather can lead to erratic weed control, especially with soil-applied herbicides

Herbert Roos and Jim Campbell have taken steps to weather-protect their weed control by switching from inconsistent preemergence programs to using a planned post program with DuPont™ Basis Gold® herbicide They have seen their decision pay off in more reliable control of both grasses and broadleaves—as well as award-winning yields in the 2000 National Corn Yield Contest.

Unlike soil-applied herbicides, Basis Gold® doesn't need rain to deliver burndown control of emerged grasses and broadleaves With a passing shower, the residual activity kicks in to control foxtails, waterhemp, giant ragweed, pigweeds, velvetleaf and lambsquarters, and helps keep fields clean through harvest When growers look at costs, Basis Gold® is up to $3 per acre less than the leading competitive program

"We have had real good luck with Basis Gold®," says Roos, a first-place yield winner in Illinois

"It seems like the preplant treatments will play out, and then the waterhemp and foxtail come in late We haven't seen Basis Gold® run out, even in years with heavy rainfall "

Sandbur, lambsquarters and cocklebur are among the major weed problems for Campbell, who farms near Canton, Mo. Basis Gold® has proven itself effective and crop safe—something that Campbell notes is not always the case with a preemergence program

"I've had times with a pre-only program where we went two to three weeks without rain and it never activated By the time we got rain, the weeds were too big to control," says Campbell, a third-place yield winner in Missouri "Basis Gold® doesn't affect the corn one bit We can spray corn four to ten inches tall and it just keeps on growing It just does a fantastic job "

New Holland Sales Stables Upholds Traditions

The two men together bought 28 acres of land, railroad sidelines, a restaurant, two auction areas, snack bars, and a blacksmith shop. They added the "special sale" features of sales conducted outside of the scheduled times of work horses, heifers, and feeder cattle.

Former manager of the business from 1942-1967, John Gingrich "put the sale barn on the map," according to David Kolb. "Everyone respected him." The beef barn, built in 1950, was added during these years.

In 1990 the partnership changed as Norm took over the livestock sales and sale barn while Diffenbach moved across the street to an auction center which sells hay and equipment.

Besides Selling Animals . . .

Support for 4-H and FFA is a tradition at the sales stables, as they have been purchasing the youths' animals for many years. From the Farm Show sale of champions to local fair animals, the sales stables purchases animals every year. In addition, the business sponsors a high school band at parades each year for the New Holland parade.

Receiving media attention as the "Real Lancaster County," the sales stables has been community outreach-minded, supporting the Mennonite Central Committee's heifer sale each year and beef cattle project throughout the year by donating the money that the animals bring to the Mennonite Central Committee.

Also, in June 1976, the auction hosted the World Livestock Auctioneer Championship. Other claims to fame also include a visit by Ronald Reagan on April 21, 1980. The President sold a donkey during the horse sale.

In addition, every October the sales stables hosts an annual dairy show and sale. The sale barn is also an educational forum, hosting not not only informational gatherings for public meetings hosted by politicians and lawmakers, but also meetings by the Pennsylvania Beef Council and other breed associations or agriculture industry groups.

Schoolchildren from elmentary to high school age find their way to the sales stables to get an up-close look at the intricacies of the stockyard system.

Computerized for five years, the business recently received a new system a year ago. In addition, the barn is undergoing "constant renovation," according to Kolb.

In Memory

The sales stables is feeling the effects of the loss of Norman Kolb, 68, of Lancaster, owner and manager of the business. He died of natural causes Feb. 19.

Associated with the stables since 1962, Kolb was president and general manager since 1964 and co-owner since 1972.

Kolb and his wife of almost 45 years, Lois Eby Kolb, have five children. Sons David and Joseph both work full-time at the sale barn.

Kolb will be remembered for his honesty, integrity, and his dedication to taking care of not only the customer and but also the animals as if they were his own, a philosophy he and his son David have always shared in co-managing the sale barn.

"He really liked everything — he just generally enjoyed the buying and trading," said Lois. "He did help to get the heifer sale and show start started, and they meant a lot to him."

Kolb was 10 years old when his father became a stockholder. He became involved with the sales stable himself since he was 14 years old. He did not, however, move directly into sale barn ownership, but first bought and sold at the sale barn for several years before going into partnership with Abe Diffenbach.

Lois has helped out at the auction barn. Making sale catalogs for the weekly dairy sale and special heifer sales allowed her to work alongside Norman several days during the week. "It gives me to chance to meet the people here," she said. "It did make me understand why Norman spent so many hours here. I didn't realize how much work went along with the sale."

A variety of background experience gave Norman the knowledge he needed at the sale barn. When the couple was first married, they fed steers and sold pigs, then put in a dairy barn. "We even had special dairy sales on the farm," she said.

"His whole mentality was to tend to what you have before you buy more," said David Kolb. "He wanted everybody satisfied — to accommodate what the sales stables did have."

David, who went to college to become a lawyer, ended up finding his niche at the sale barn also. "I did it (work at the sale barn in the dairy ring) for two days and found out I loved it. Then two days became five days."

According to David, Norman was a careful planner, bringing David, then additional stockholders, into the business.

In January 1995 the sales stables announced five additional shareholders and directors of the business, including the late Ezra Good, Denver; Dale Hostetter, Annville; Joseph A. Kolb, Lancaster; Ronald Ranck, Leola; and Donald Welk, Strasburg.

Full-Day Sales

When the beef cattle and calves were sold in the same ring, sales became marathon events. Paul Snyder, who has worked at the sales stables since he was 16 years old, has worked in several capacities around the barn. Clipping and milking dairy animals, recommending horses during the sale, working as ring man for the horse and dairy rings, and now as auctioneer now for horse sale and special sales, he has been at the stables for 53 years.

Snyder remembers getting to work at 7 a.m. and working until 7 or 8 the next morning. The animals were stamped for identification — beef cows were stamped with an "S" and the same stamp, using a different color, was used on steers. Two or three owners' animals were put together in the same pen.

The source of most of the horses coming through the auction, said Snyder, were actually western states such as Kansas, Missouri, and Iowa.

Each week, 400-500 draft horses, riding horses, and even a few mules hailing from the South were unloaded from the railroad cars that run adjacent to the sales stables property. The animals were taken straight into the pens.

The dairy sale used to be on the same day as beef, with the hog sale out back, which changed when the beef barn was built.

Early Days Of Auction

Charles Hershey, Manheim, is the last living representative of one of the original 12 stockholders. Hershey, 93, learned the livestock business from his father, who was a cattle dealer, and took over his father's business in 1936 at age 28.

In 1942 "I heard about the opportunity at a meeting and decided to buy it," he said of the sales stable. "I was there until, after 32 years, we sold it in 1974," said Hershey. The original stockholders were from all over Pennsylvania, including Lebanon, Dauphin, and Lancaster counties.

Hershey clerked at the sales for 32 years and remembers when "we finally got too much business and moved from two to three days of sales." Originally horses were sold on Mondays while the Thursday sale covered both dairy and beef cattle.

As a clerk he sat beside of the auctioneer and recorded the price, number assigned to the animal, buyer and seller, and a description which included the color and whether the animal was "lame" or "OK." The report, which included about 20 animals per sheet, was then sent to the office.

"I left home at six in the morning on Thursdays and hauled a couple truckloads of cattle to the auction. We'd sell both beef and dairy cattle on Thursday morning until Friday morning, and I'd get home at 6:30 a.m. Of course, that gave me a full day."

In between sale days Hershey would travel to western Pennsylvania and buy cattle for his own business. The cattle-dealing stockholders consigned cattle to the sales stables to make money for the company.

In earlier years, the horse sale started at 10 a.m. and ended around 3 or 4 p.m., said Hershey. However, during World War II, when the country was feeling the effects of gas rationing and the demand for riding horses increased, the sale also included an after-dinner sale that ran from 7 to 8 or 9 p.m. Mr. Foulke, who was the sale barn owner at the time, gave him $4 for clerking the morning horse sale.

When Hershey's friend and sales stable manager John Gingrich asked him to try clerking the sale, he first hesitated. "I told him that they wouldn't be able to read my writing, but I agreed to help clerk. So I tried it, then I guess I tried it for 32 years."

The increase in animal prices has been one of the biggest changes, observed Hershey. "When I started, dairy cows were $75-100. Now, to buy that same kind of cow would cost thousands. During the war, fat cattle were $18.86 per pound. Now they're up in the $70s."

Buyers congregate ringside during a Thursday afternoon sale.

Dreibelbis, Holter To Be Honored As Outstanding Dairy Alumni

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Jack Dreibelbis, retired executive of Agway Inc., and James Holter, professor emeritus of animal and nutrition sciences at the University of New Hampshire, have been selected to receive 2001 Dairy Science Distinguished Alumnus awards from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Dreibelbis and Holter will be guests of honor at the 2001 Alumni Weekend Celebration April 20-21 at University Park, when the department of dairy and animal science will host the Little International Show and Penn State Dairy Exposition.

An informal luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, April 20. To attend the luncheon, call Carol Ertley at (814) 863-3665.

Dreibelbis, Camp Hill, was born and raised on a farm in State College. The son of Bruce and Ruth Dreibelbis, he attended Ferguson Township School in Pine Grove Mills and was graduated from State College High School in 1947.

He entered Penn State in the fall of 1947. Because of the influx of World War II GIs, he was assigned to California State Teachers College. He returned to Penn State and received his bachelor's degree in animal husbandry in 1952. He then served in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean War.

In college, Dreibelbis was a three-year letter-winner on the varsity wrestling team. During his junior and senior years, he was named to "Who's in the News at Penn State." He also belonged to Block and Bridle Club and the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

Dreibelbis has belonged to many community and service organizations. He was a charter member of the Northampton Community College Authority, board member and president of Penn Ag Industries Association, board member and vice-chairman of Tressler Lutheran Services, and board member and president of the Penn State Agricultural Council. A member of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Camp Hill, he serves on the board of directors of Diakon Lutheran Social Ministries, a Lutheran agency that concentrates on health care, nursing and retirement homes, and adoption and refugee services.

Dreibelbis belongs to the F & AM Whitfield Lodge +N622, the Valley of Allentown Consistory, and the Rajah Temple Shrine. He also is a life member of the Penn State Alumni Association, American Legion Post +N998, and National Rifle Association. He was named to the 21st edition of "Who's Who in the East" and belongs to the West Shore Elks +N2257.

He is an avid sports enthusiast and outdoorsman and belongs to the Nittany Lion Club, Penn State Wrestling Club, and Varsity "S" Club. He and his wife, Miriam, a retired bank officer, have four children: Daniel, Donald, Gail, and Kent.

Renowned for research on how to predict dry matter intake in Holstein and Jersey dairy cattle, James Holter developed software for dairy ration balancing. Dry matter intake is fundamentally important in nutrition because it establishes the amount of nutrients available to an animal for health and production.

Holter and his research group developed one of only two dry matter prediction equations for use in the field that have been published and tested for accuracy. He is the only researcher to develop dry matter prediction equations that include animal, dietary and environmental factors.

In addition, Holter is the only researcher to develop prediction equations for dry matter intake of Jersey cattle. The recently issued 7th edition of the National Research Council's Nutrient Requirements of Dairy Cattle includes much information from Holter's research, particularly from the last decade.

Holter was raised on his family's farm in Clarion County and was graduated from Clarion High School in 1952. He graduated from Penn State with honors in dairy science in 1956.

He received his master's degree in nutrition from the University of Maryland in 1959. After earning his doctorate in dairy nutrition from Penn State in 1963, he began his professorial career at the University of New Hampshire.

Holter and his wife, Vada Marie, have two children — Melanie and Jonathan.

West Nile Virus Surveillance Program Begins In Pennsylvania

SOUTH MIDDLETON TOWNSHIP (Cumberland Co.) — State Health Secretary Robert S. Zimmerman Jr., Acting Environmental Protection Secretary David E. Hess, Physician General Dr. Robert Muscalus and Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently launched Pennsylvania's program to detect and control mosquitoes that carry West Nile virus. On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, they announced $3.3 million in grants to counties for mosquito surveillance and control.

"West Nile virus was detected in Pennsylvania for the first time last year," Health Secretary Zimmerman said. "Fortunately, no person here was diagnosed with the virus. But last year's experience makes it clear that Pennsylvania's surveillance efforts must continue."

Last year, West Nile virus was found in 19 counties: Bucks; Bradford; Chester; Cumberland; Dauphin; Delaware; Erie; Franklin; Lehigh; Montgomery; Northampton; Philadelphia; Pike; Schuylkill; Susquehanna; Tioga; Union; Wyoming; and York. It was identified in 32 birds, 45 mosquito pools and a horse.

Pennsylvania's plan has three parts — public and professional education; surveillance; and, if surveillance determines there is a risk, the control of mosquitoes that carry the virus.

"This year, we're expanding our effort to detect and track mosquitoes that carry the virus," Hess said. "We're partnering with more counties to detect and control mosquitoes, and we're giving them $3.3 million in grants to cover the cost of equipment, supplies and training needs.

"But you and I have an important job to do this summer, too — we need to eliminate any standing water around our homes. Look around your house and neighborhood. You may not realize it, but just one small sandbox bucket filled halfway with water can produce up to 1,000 mosquitoes.

"While we will be doing everything we can at the state level, the best way to prevent mosquitoes is to eliminate sites for them to breed in the first place."

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is coordinating the mosquito-surveillance and control portion of the multi-agency effort. DEP has been working with county West Nile coordinators to establish mosquito-monitoring sites across the Commonwealth to trap mosquitoes and sample larvae.

"I want to thank the county West Nile coordinators, who were essential in helping us track the virus and find mosquitoes," Hess said. "With their help last year, we captured more than 500,000 mosquitoes and sent more than 2,100 samples for testing. Most important, we now have a better understanding of where mosquitoes breed and where we need to target our control efforts."

John Connoloy, director of public services for Cumberland County, said, "In Cumberland County, we know first hand how important this program is. West Nile virus was found in a bird and mosquitoes in our county last year. This year, we're using our grant funding to hire another person to help trap and control mosquitoes."

Cumberland County has had a mosquito-surveillance program in place since the late 1970s.

DEP and county West Nile coordinators will look for immature (larvae and pupae) and adult mosquitoes to determine if they are the species known to carry the virus, how many there are and their geographic distribution. If these mosquitoes are detected, they will be controlled using a powdered form of naturally occurring bacteria that is harmless to humans and other aquatic life. To collect mosquitoes, DEP and county coordinators use equipment like light traps, gravid traps and dippers.

If the Department of Health's epidemiologist determines there is an outbreak or the potential for an outbreak, a mosquito-control program would be initiated. Adult mosquitoes carrying the virus would be controlled through localized pesticide spraying. Only U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) — approved pesticides will be used, by state Department of Agriculture-certified applicators.

The departments of Health and Agriculture will perform laboratory testing to determine the presence of the virus in the specimens from mosquitoes, birds, animals and humans.

Secretary Zimmerman also reminded residents to report dead birds by calling 1-877-PA-HEALTH toll free, because they can be an indication that West Nile virus is present in an area.

West Nile virus previously only was found in Africa, Eastern Europe and West Asia. Mosquitoes acquire the virus from infected birds and horses. Those mosquitoes then transmit the virus to people and other animals.

The virus, when transmitted to people, can cause West Nile encephalitis, an infection that can cause an inflammation of the brain. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults and people with compromised immune systems have the highest risk of developing severe illness because their bodies have a harder time fighting off disease.

West Nile virus cases occur primarily in the late summer or early fall, although mosquito season is usually April to October. The virus only can be spread by mosquitoes after they feed on infected birds and then bite people or animals, not by person-to-person contact.

A website about West Nile virus — through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us. or directly at www.WestNile.state.pa.us — has been established to provide citizens with background information and regular updates.

For more information about West Nile virus or to report dead birds, call the toll free information line, 1-877-PA-HEALTH.

McHugh Introduces Bill To Support Dairy Farmers

GLENMONT, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau, the largest general farm advocacy organization in the state, applauds Congressman John M. McHugh's reintroduction of the Quality Cheese Act. This bill would prohibit the use of imported ultra-filtered milk in cheese making.

Six other New York Representatives have also signed on to the bill as original co-sponsors; Representatives Sherwood Bochlert, Maurice Hinchey, Amory Houghton, Louise Slaughter, John Sweeney and James Walsh.

Currently, the Food and Drug Administration is considering changing current regulations regarding the ingredients in standardized cheeses which would impact domestic milk producers. This bill will prohibit the FDA from changing their current rule and ensures U.S. consumers will be able to purchase U.S. cheese made primarily from the domestic milk supply.

"As a dairy farmer, I can understand first hand the challenges that dairy farmers face daily due to low commodity prices, and having to compete with foreign imports that ultimately make their way into our food supply," stated John W. Lincoln, New York Farm Bureau president. "By reintroducing this bill, it is clear that Congressman McHugh is aware of how to help dairy farmers in this state."

The Quality Cheese Act would prohibit the use of dry ultra-filtered milk in natural cheese products, thereby ensuring a greater amount of U.S. and New York milk is used in cheese. This bill would also require the United States Department of Agriculture to consider the impact of imported ultra-filtered milk on American dairy producers before any regulatory changes are made."

"Currently, foreign producers of ultra-filtered milk can import their product at a cheaper price than domestically produced milk," added Lincoln. "New York Farm Bureau appreciates the support of Congressman McHugh and the other New York co-sponsors on this bill."

New York is the third largest dairy state in the country, and is home to such cheese companies as Kraft, McCadam, Helluva Good, Polly-O, Leprino and the Cuba Cheese Company, Many New York farmers also sell milk to Agrimark Cooperative, which produces Cabot Cheese.

USDA Announces 3rd Dairy Loss Assistance Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced that eligible dairy farmers can receive new or additional payments under the third Dairy Market Loss Assistance program.

Sign-up for this new "DMLA III" is limited to farmers with new dairy operations or to farmers whose operations received payments under DMLA II for less than 12 months milk production. Generally, DMLA II program payment levels established the production levels for payments for operations under the DMLA III program. This additional sign-up, which started on Feb. 26, will allow dairy operations that did not have a full 12 months of DMLA II production to receive an additional payment under DMLA III.

Payment rates under this new sign-up will be $.6468 per hundredweight (CWT). Total payment eligibility under DMLA II could not exceed 26,000 CWT of milk, but under DMLA III, payments can now be made for production up to 39,000 CWT.

For those operations participating in the new sign-up that have already received DMLA III payments, additional payments can be made only to the extent that there is remaining eligibility for those dairy operations under the 39,000 CWT production limitation.

Eligibility questions can be made at local USDA Service Centers or Farm Service Agency County Offices.

Grange Master Says Political Advocacy Remains Key Element In Grange Future

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Grange Master Kermit W. Richardson told 35 "2001 National Grange Legislative Fly-In" participants recently, as well as several conference call participants from across the nation, that political advocacy will continue to be a key element in the Grange's future. He thus put to bed speculation that grassroots advocacy activity will diminish under the new, strategic plan to revitalize the Grange. In fact, resources allowing, he envisions the National Grange implementing new advocacy training programs for state and local Granges.

"The D.C. headquarters will continue to implement grassroots legislative directives," Richardson told the audience. The Grange has a truly grassroots method of establishing its legislative priorities.

Each year, starting at the local level, Granges vote on a series of resolutions regarding local, county, state and national issues. Approved local resolutions remain at the local level for implementation. The others are passed up the line for voting and implementation at the appropriate level. This leads to between 300 and 400 resolutions on national issues coming to the floor of the Grange Annual Convention each November. Delegates vote on each issue, and those that pass become National Grange Legislative Policies. From those, various committees select 10 to 20 to make up the Grange's annual "Blueprint for Rural America", which serves as a guide for headquarters' legislative activities.

Richardson indicated that National Grange legislative activity will continue to focus on "Blueprint for Rural America" issues that are designed to revitalize rural America and return U.S. agriculture to prosperity. He also described how the National Grange leverages its resources by creating or joining coalitions with like legislative and regulatory objectives.

When asked how state and local Granges can help the National Grange further the goals of the "Blueprint for Rural America," Richardson told the workshop participants, who represented 21 State Granges, "Talk to your U.S. Representatives and U.S. Senators. Your are their constituents, we are not."

Richardson stressed the importance of political advocacy in gaining recognition for the Grange. He encouraged each state to adopt issues and pursue them aggressively and openly. To assist local and state Granges in the political advocacy arena, a new grassroots advocacy training program to be conducted by the National Grange is being considered. Under this program, National staff would train the "trainers" selected from each state.

The "trainers" in turn, would spread throughout their states to train those "committed to the process" in the art of political advocacy. "People have to know how to do their job and what is expected of them," Richardson said. He also encouraged the group to get "new people" involved in the process. In response to a question on how many would be trained in each state, Richardson did not give specific numbers. He envisions a building process in which states go from a few to as many as twenty trainers. He also envisions the training as an on-going process, with perhaps annual follow-ups after the initial training.

In terms of timing, Richardson explained that the implementation of a new training program is dependent upon a dues increase. If the dues increase is approved at the November Annual Convention, it will take effect January 1, and the National Grange will start realizing revenue increases in the spring of 2001. At that time, the training program can be started.

Fly-In 2001 participants spent three active days in Washington, D.C. Starting on Sun., Apr. 1, they attended workshops on Grange history and using the Internet for political advocacy. Apr. 2 saw a series of workshops related to issues in the "2001 Blueprint for Rural America." Speakers included Washington's top experts in their fields, including a White House official. Tuesday, the participants met with their Representatives and Senators on Capitol Hill. Over 50 appointments were set up. This was the fifth annual National Grange Legislative Fly-In.

Veterinary College To Host FMD Seminar

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — You can't pick up a newspaper or watch a television broadcast without seeing something about foot and mouth disease (FMD).

But with all the news coverage, many people — especially dairy and livestock producers — still have many questions about this economically catastrophic animal health issue. They want to know more about the disease, what actions are being taken to prevent its spread to the United States and what role, if any, they can play.

The Center for Government and Corporate Veterinary Medicine at the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and the Maryland Department of Agriculture will host an FMD seminar on April 17 to address these and related issues. The seminar will run from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the Avrum Gudelsky Center at the University of Maryland, College Park. It will feature a list of animal disease specialists speakers:

- Dr. Charles Mebus, former director of the Foreign Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratories at the Plum Island Animal Disease Center;
- Dr. Roger Olson, state veterinarian at the Maryland Department of Agriculture;
- Dr. Dave Vogt, area veterinarian in charge at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service; and
- Dr. Tracy DuVernoy, Center for Veterinary Public Health at the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Registration is limited to 50 people on a first-come, first-served basis. To register, send your name, phone number and a check for $25 payable to the Maryland Department of Agriculture to Donna Ernberger, MDA, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401. Visit Horse Farms how easy it is to get involved with horses close to home.

The event, presented by Pennsylvania Equestrian, a bi-monthly newspaper for Mid-Atlantic horse owners, is free and self-guided, and individuals travel from stable to stable in their own vehicles. The farms will be open to visitors from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and noon-4 p.m. Sunday. Each year about 10,000 people visit participating farms during the open house.

Most farms are located in the southeastern quadrant of Pennsylvania, from Bucks to York counties. This region is horse country, home to many of America's most prestigious equestrian events and to more than 75,000 horses, from Olympic medalists to family pets.

The open house is a chance for both active and would-be equestrians to visit a variety of professional horse farms, to learn about various breeds and styles of riding, about raising, caring for and training horses, and to explore the many opportunities for getting involved with horses in their own backyards.

A number of stables will give visitors a chance to "throw a leg over" a horse or pony. Six stables will offer introductory 15 minute riding lessons. Five will have pony rides, and Flint Hill Farm in Lehigh County will offer wagon and carriage rides.

In addition to giving horseback riding a try, visitors to the open house can watch demonstrations of various types of riding, horse shoeing, equine dentistry and massage. Clinics on genetics, foal imprinting, nutrition and round pen training will be conducted. Demonstrations will show how horses are used in ranch work, plowing, dressage, police work, jumping and driving. Visitors can enjoy a petting zoo or a meal at an historic showgrounds, watch a quadrille, four riders performing in unison to music, or a dog obedience demonstration featuring rescue animals.

Many stables will have vendors and refreshments, and some should have young foals for visitors to enjoy. Visitors will be able to view horses offered for sale or adoption and stallions available for breeding.

Breeds of horses range from tiny miniatures to giant Percherons, and include thoroughbreds, warmbloods, Paints, quarter horses, and Arabians.

With more than 174,000 horses, Pennsylvania ranks fifth in the nation in generation of income from the horse industry, and Pennsylvanians spend nearly two-thirds of a billion dollars a year on their horses. Most of that industry is clustered in the southeastern quadrant of the state, where the open house is centered.

The open house is free. For more information, phone (717) 898-5874.

Ag Industry 'Circles The Wagons' To Protect Against FMD

agency responsible for fighting foot and mouth disease (FMD).

Also, Penn State's college of agricultural sciences sponsored a public forum on foreign animal diseases Wednesday at University Park.

To dispel misconceptions and provide information, Penn State veterinary scientists gave presentations and hosted question-and-answer sessions.

"I wish that all those not in agriculture knew how hard you work to ensure the safety of the food supply," said Hayes.

"Team" members, according to Hayes, include the school of veterinarian medicine of the University of Pennsylvania and Penn State University. PDA officials are meeting with experts on a daily and weekly basis with people how could help control and eradicate the disease, he said.

"A lot of things have already been going on — we're not going to wait until it breaks out." According to Hayes, the industry has "circled the wagons," as a manner of speaking, to protect itself from FMD.

A proclamation of emergency, for example, is already drafted and ready for the governor's signature to put quarantines and depopulation into effect.

The purpose of the meeting was to alert and educate the producers and public about the disease.

While specific numbers are not attached, a general policy decision has been made that there will, in fact, be an indemnification program. "The exact numbers aren't known yet, but you're generally talking market value," said Hayes.

According to Enck, the viral disease is acute, which means that signs will be visible as soon as 24 hours, and up to 14 days, after infection. Besides being acute, the disease is also extremely contagious.

"If one animal in a herd gets it, 100 percent of the other animals will get it," he said. FMD is not a health threat to humans, but people can carry the disease.

It infects mostly cloven-hoofed animals that display symptoms such as blisters inside the mouth on the tongue, lips, gums, or the coronary band, top of the hoof wall, udder, teats, and in between the toes.

Horses do not get FMD or BSE, but can be carriers. Sheep and llamas, unfortunately, do not display the symptoms as readily as other animals, which means that spread of the disease could via the undetected virus in sheep. Although the outbreak in England originated with swine, sheep are, in fact, blamed for the spread of FMD there.

A high fever, excessive salivation, smacking of lips, refusal to eat or walk, and abortions and subsequent sterility are FMD hallmarks. Young animals often die from the disease.

Although older animals may live through it, they will be unproductive and will carry and spread the virus, said Enck. Transmitted in droplets in every fluid or excrement from an animal, the virus is even exhaled with every breath and has been known to travel on air current for 40 miles.

Although an older animal may get over the disease, it will be unproductive and become a chronic carrier. "We can't afford to do it (let the animals get over the disease). Our production would be cut by 80 to 90 percent," said Enck.

"They're rendered, in terms of commercial production, essentially useless," said Hayes.

Although the virus is confirmed post-mortem, if a producer suspects FMD they should not send an animal to the laboratory, warned Enck. Since timing is imperative, a tool is being field tested to diagnose the disease on-site in an hour.

First identified in Italy in 1514, FMD is endemic in part of Africa, Asia, the Middle East, and South America. The U.S. has had nine epizootics between 1914 and the last incidence in 1929.

As of today, one million five hundred animals have been or will be soon destroyed in England. The outbreak, it is believed, began on a swine operation that fed garbage from a restaurant serving illegally-imported meats.

Sheep were exposed to the virus, then went on to an auction. Experts believe the virus went two to three weeks before FMD was detected in the pigs at the slaughterhouse.

The federal system now in operation has a four-part plan to first prevent, by education and surveillance; prepare, through education, planning, and partnerships; respond, executing the plan; and recover, through an indemnification plan.

The USDA has restrictions that ban import of live animals and animal producers from any country with FMD. In addition heightened security at air and sea ports, plus baggage inspection, the "Beagle brigade," and traveler interviews work to build a firewall for the disease. The PDA routinely conducts feed mill and rendering plant inspections, along with animal testing.

As producers, said Enck, follow protocol after traveling to ensure that the virus does not travel to the U.S. from other countries. Additionally, limit vehicular and visitor traffic on the farm.

Isolating new animals and animals returning from competing at a fair will also ensure safety or reduce the impact of an outbreak. Don't feed garbage to pigs, advised Enck, and report any suspect animals.

Although deer will probably not be the initial source of an FMD outbreak, said Enck, they may act as vectors. The game commission and PDA have had several meetings to develop a plan to control deer in the event of an outbreak. According to Hayes, if an outbreak occurs, deer will be treated in the same manner as farm animals in a quarantined area.

To reassure the general public, Hayes has already written several press releases to keep the public informed, and plans to hold press conferences and make public comments should an outbreak occur.

"We will assure consumers that they should not be any concern on their part with ingestions of a product. I continually remind the general population that they shouldn't have any concern that food offered to them in retail outlets is somehow tainted because of the situation in Great Britain." Another way of educating travelers is an educational video that explains protocol and safety.

Except for lymph nodes, meat products, said Enck, do not have the virus, as the muscle pH changes after a FMD animal is killed. A change in pH will kill the virus, which cannot live in an environment with the pH level below six or above 11.

BSE Update

Although the U.S. has not had a case of Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), FDA regulations, such as banning the use of ruminant by-product feeding, safeguard American producers against the possibility.

The disease is specific to bovines but is similar to chronic wasting disease in deer and elk; scrapie, in sheep; and Creutzfeldt-Jacob Disease (CJD), in humans. People cannot get BSE but can get the new variant CJD.

An animal contracts BSE by eating infected ruminant bone or meat meal. It has a minimum four-to five-year incubation period. First discovered in 1986 in England, it is found only in the United Kingdom and surrounding countries. BSE is caused by an abnormal prion protein which the body cannot get rid of. The proteins accumulate in the brain.

Cattle will appear apprehensive and nervous, will be reluctant to be moved or handled, will be head shy, bellow, exhibit manic kicking when milked, have high-stepping gait, especially with the hind legs, have difficulty rising, skin tremors, and loss of condition and milk yield. In contrast to FMD, BSE-suspected animals should be taken to the lab for testing.

BSE cannot be transferred between animals, as they must be fed the contaminated ruminant products. Experts are not yet sure whether or not the disease can be transferred in blood or blood products.

While there is no scientific evidence that it can be spread through artificial insemination, an AI donor must nonetheless meet several requirements to ensure BSE-free offspring.

A BSE-positive animal must be incinerated at 1,000 degrees to dispose of the prion protein.

Corn Growers Talk EU Trade

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) Corn Board met recently with White House staff to explain trade benefits of breaking up the regulatory log-jam of biotech corn hybrids awaiting approval in the European Union (EU).

"The EU's regulatory moratorium has cost U.S. corn growers $200 million each year since 1998," pointed out Fred Yoder, Plain City, Ohio, farmer and chairman of the NCGA Biotechnology Working Group. "And, the EU is drafting new rules that threaten to disrupt more trade."

Yoder and the Corn Board made their points during a meeting in the White House West Wing with Gary Edsen, assistant to the president for international economic affairs. Edsen is also a member of the National Security Council and the National Economic Council. NCGA explained the effect the regulatory bottleneck has on U.S. trade and urged the new administration to place a high priority on solving this problem.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Adams County Beef Association Schedules Annual Beef Ball

Twenty-five years ago, a handful of cattle producers started the Adams County Beef Association. Their goals to promote high quality beef, build markets for local producers, and provide educational programs achieved growth throughout the years.

Each spring local cattle producers come together and attend the annual Beef Ball. This year's 25th anniversary celebration festival is expected to draw over 300 people to enjoy a great meal, and a parade of champion bulls.

This is a unique chance to see award-winning bulls displayed in a domestic situation. A wide variety of breeds are led through the fire hall. Each bull enters the building while a description of the breed with a brief history is announced. About 12 bulls travel through, demonstrating their unique qualities.

In 1991, the beef producers awarded their first college scholarships to qualified high school students who plan to major in a field of agriculture. In 1999 alone, Adams County Beef Association donated $2,400 in youth scholarships.

Beside scholarships, the Adams County beef producers also sponsor an annual club calf sale held the first Saturday in November. 4-H and FFA members can purchase locally-bred, high-quality steers for the following year. These are their projects that are entered in local and state fairs. The goals of the projects are to encourage business skills, learn management techniques, and promote agriculture.

To continue in the tradition of supporting the future of the beef industry, there is an opportunity for junior members of the producers association to compete for the titles of queen and ambassador, a yearly event.

The association also sponsors the Environmental Stewardship Award. The recipient for 2001 is the Brown's Ranch. The operation received the award because of outstanding environmental awareness and stewardship including adding waterways, rotational pastures, and drainage tile.

A major fund raiser for the beef producers is the Ribeye Cookoff. Between 4,000 and 5,000 steaks are sold during the Adams County Apple Harvest Festival. The Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association also sells more than 5,000 Keystone Ribeye sandwiches at Penn State's Ag Progress Days each August. The idea originated after Ray and Mary Grimes attended the Indiana State Fair to see how the Indiana Cattlemen's Association made their sandwich sales so successful.

The Annual Beef Ball and Parade of Bulls will be held Apr. 28 at the Bonneauville Fire Hall. For reserved seating, contact Mary Grimes 334-1022 or Donna Byers 337-3921. Hor d'oeuvres are served at 4:30, dinner at 5:30 and the parade of bulls at 7, followed by dancing to the music of Jay Henley at 8 p.m.

Awards Presented At Pa. Spring Jersey Meeting

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — Awards were presented and a new queen was crowned here at the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association (PJCA) annual meeting recently.

"Every year, someone stands up here and says that this is an exciting time to be in the Jersey business. Every year they're probably right," said Helene Dreisbach, national director of the American Jersey Cattle Association as she gave her official report. She also announced that Pennsylvania will host the 2005 National Jersey meeting.

The program was also exciting for many individuals as they accepted awards sponsored by the PJCA.

"I know there's lots of others who have done more than me," said Tom Williams after he received the Distinguished Service Award. "We were pretty excited!"

Tom and his wife, Tiz, own Bryncoed Jerseys in Middletown and are staunch supporters of Jersey programs.

"I'm glad the Pennsylvania Jersey Club keeps working and supporting Jerseys, because it's good for breeders," said Williams.

Owning Jerseys only makes their job easier, according to Chuck and Amy Theobald, Waymart, Wayne County, who were named the Pennsylvania Young Dairymen. According to PJCA president Elaine Sollenberger, the Theobalds have worked hard to start a Jersey organization in their area and are looking forward to a bright future in the dairy industry.

The Norman Genetic Award was presented to Ralaine Jerseys, Everett.

Numerous production awards were also presented. The overall high protein cow was GR Xanadu D Lester Bess, owned by Ralph and Gary Oakes, of Mercer, with a 4-year-old record of 28,366 pounds of milk and 1053 pounds of protein mature equivalent.

In the Jacob M. Brunges Production Contest, Heather Yurkanin topped the list with Elm Brook Sooner Osha's record of 25,295 pounds of milk, 1,039 pounds of fat, and 894 pounds of protein.

Other youth achievements were also highlighted at the annual meeting. Named the overall achievement award winner in the junior division was Nathan Rassau. Joy McConnell won the senior division. Joy McConnell also received a scholarship from the Jersey Association.

Scrapbook awards were given to Stacey Theobald, junior division, and Lindsay Fischer, senior division. Jacob Rassau was awarded the First Year Jersey Project Award.

After a evening full of speeches and interviews, Stephanie Donough, daughter of Timothy and Brenda Donough, Bainbridge, Lancaster County, was crowned the 2001 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen. Donough has been involved with Jersey projects for the past nine years and owns five Jerseys.

Named alternate Jersey Queen was Amy Kaucher, daughter of Bonnie Kaucher and Harold Leib, Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County. She is also involved with the Cumberland County Dairy Princess program and is a Dairy Ambassador.

H. Duane Norman presents the Norman Genetic Award to Lori Sollenberger, Everett.

September Calf Tops Pa. Spring Jersey Sale

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Wilderness Garth Tatiana, a Pot of Gold consignment made by Robert and Helene Dreisbach, topped the Pennsylvania Spring Jersey Sale Saturday, April 7. The September calf was purchased by Jennifer Cogan for the top bid of $2,500.

Tyler Cogan purchased the second high seller, RS Pandora Pinky, a June calf consigned by Ryan Sprout, for a bid of $2,000.

Overall, the sale averaged $1,207 on 35 bred heifers and calves. Liberty Jersey Sires were also highlighted at the sale. Seven heifers sired by bulls in the Liberty Jersey Sires syndicate averaged $1,342.

Six Pot of Gold animals were reserved for junior bidders only and sold for an average of $1,033. These consignments will be eligible to compete for prizes in the year 2003. Twenty-five percent of the proceeds from these animals is placed in a special fund and awards will be given based on the animal's first completed lactation.

This year's Pot of Gold winners were recognized at the sale.

First place in 2001 was Mollie

State Grange Opposes Milk Pooling

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In a letter to members of the General Assembly, the Pennsylvania State Grange went on record recently in its opposition to pooling the over-order premium because it isn't in the best interest of most dairy farmers.

Although the Grange supports the over-order premium system, it is opposed to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board's plan to pool 45 percent of the state Class I premium for numerous reasons, according to Grange Legislative Director Brenda Shambaugh. The over-order premium is money added by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board to the federal order price.

"The over-order premium most directly affects independent farmers who ship their milk to dairies in Pennsylvania," Shambaugh said. "These farmers receive a significant increase to their milk check through the over-order premium since most of their milk is sold as fluid Class I milk. But these independent farmers are not the only ones who benefit from the over-order premium — almost all farmers in Pennsylvania benefit."

Shambaugh said Pennsylvania dairy farmers ship to a variety of processors and co-operatives, and receive benefits which are not available to most of those producers who do receive substantial Class I premiums. Those benefits include, but are not limited to, a share of the co-ops' profits from manufacturing operations as well as premiums paid on other classes of milk.

"Under the present handler pools, independent producers, who generally receive the highest

NFU Urges Mandatory Country-Of-Origin Labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union recently wrote a letter to Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman urging her to support mandatory country-of-origin labeling for meat products, including lamb, beef and pork, and fruit and vegetable products.

"American farmers produce the safest food supply in the world. In light of the recent infectious animal diseases spreading throughout the world, it is critical that the American consumer knows where their food is produced. We need to ensure the highest standards for our agricultural products," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU.

Last September, certain industry groups petitioned USDA to create a voluntary U.S. beef certification program allowing cattle producers, beef processors and retail grocers to participate in a system to promote "Beef: Made in the U.S.A." This proposal would allow beef to be labeled "Beef: Made in the U.S.A." if the cattle have been raised and fed in the United States for at least 100 days. This means that cattle raised in a foreign country and then shipped to the U.S. at least 100 days prior to slaughter could receive the label under this system.

"This voluntary labeling proposal is inadequate and misleading. It is unfair to producers whose cattle are born and raised in the United States and fails to include all agricultural products. We urge USDA to reject any voluntary labeling initiatives, particularly those that allow products of foreign origin to be labeled a U.S. product," added Swenson.

Cedar Crest FFA Attends ACES Conference

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Cedar Crest FFA attended the Agricultural Cooperation Establishes Success (ACES) conference held at the Harrisburg Marriott. Students attended seminars and workshops designed to develop leadership skills and to further their knowledge in the FFA.

One of the keynote speakers was Liam Brody, who spoke on getting other members involved in the FFA are being as active as possible. They also had the opportunity to go ice-skating in their spare time.

Members that participated from Cedar Crest were Sarah Krall, Amanda Heffelfinger, Beth Kreider, Erik Rheinheimer, Jared Zimmerman, Chet Brubaker, Joel Krall, and Jeremy Balsbaugh.

Robert Casey Jr. To Speak At Banquet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Auditor General Robert P. Casey Jr. will be the featured speaker at the 21st Annual Farmer Dinner taking place May 2 in Harrisburg.

Farmer is Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's bipartisan political action committee. Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a voluntary, statewide organization which provides information, services and a voice in public affairs to 28,000 farm and rural families. Proceeds from the Farmer fundraising event will be used to support state legislative candidates of both major political parties in future elections.

"Farmer helps Farm Bureau accomplish its legislative goals by contributing to the re-election campaigns of legislators who are friends of agriculture," said Marlene Reese of Port Matilda, Centre County, chairperson of the Farmer Committee. "Last year Farmer supported 79 candidates for the General Assembly. All were successful in the November elections. By attending the Farmer Dinner, you can help Farmer elect more 'friends of agriculture' next year."

The Farmer Dinner will be held Wed., May 2 at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers, One North Second Street, Harrisburg. The event will start with a reception at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Cost of the fund-raising dinner is $125 per person, or $175 including spouse.

To obtain tickets, contact Pennsylvania Farm Bureau at (717) 761-2740. Or you can send a personal check, payable to "Farmer" to: Farmer, P.O. Box 8736, Camp Hill, PA 17001-8736. Ticket order deadline is Wed., Apr. 18.

New York Beef Industry Council Thanks Directors

WESTMORELAND, N.Y. — The New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC) recognized four outstanding directors for their contribution to the New York beef industry at the NYBIC annual meeting.

All four volunteers had dedicated the maximum six years to the NYBIC Board, the group responsible for overseeing the $1-per-head beef checkoff program in New York.

The NYBIC will miss the leadership of Daryl Heisey, veal and beef producer from Rexville and the New York veal growers' representative. Heisey served the council as chairman for 1999 and 2000 and as veal director to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association for the past six years.

Under his leadership, the beef council established a strong veal promotion program to benefit both the veal and dairy producers in New York. Heisey also successfully piloted the council through a major change in staff and the reorganization of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association.

New York Beef Industry Council officers for 2001 are Chairman Don Gray, Springwater, Vice Chairman Steve Walker, Clifton Springs and Secretary/Treasurer David Mitzel, Warsaw. The NYBIC is responsible for overseeing the $1-per-head beef checkoff program in New York.

Heisey is pleased that the New York veal growers chose Pat Fallon, veal and beef producer from Chemung as his replacement to the board. Pat has also taken on the responsibility as the New York veal representative to the federal division of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association board of directors.

Also honored for their six-year terms on the NYBIC Board were Warren Brannon, Moravia, New York Meat Processors Association; August Andersen, Long Eddy, N.Y. Beef Breed Associations; and Art Keicher, East Aurora, New York Cattle Dealers.

All the retiring board members were commended for their input in establishing the direction for NYBIC activities as well as their ability to represent their respective association's interests in the New York beef industry.

Joining the council are the following new board members: Phil Trowbridge, Gallagher's Angus, beef breed representative; Darlene Hartway, Pat's Meat Market, Batavia, New York meat processors; and Joan Keicher, East Aurora, New York cattle dealers.

Replacing Heisey as NYBIC chairman for 2001 is Don Gray, a New York beef Producers' Association representative to the NYBIC Board and a beef producer from Springwater. Gray also holds a NYBIC seat on the board of directors of the federation division of the NCBA.

Other officers for the year are dairy producers, Steve Walker, Clifton Springs, vice chairman; and David Mitzel, Warsaw, secretary/treasurer. The New York Beef Industry Council consists of 13 directors representing farm organizations throughout New York State.

premiums, have managed their production to meet the needs of the dealers purchasing their milk, while producers in other states have, for the most part, consistently increased production without regard to the needs of the marketplace," Shambaugh said. "Pennsylvania dairy farmers can be efficient and excellent managers and still be hindered by overproducing dairy farmers in other parts of the nation."

Under the present system, milk co-operatives voluntarily provide a premium to their members, resulting in a larger milk check for producers.

"That is the way it should be — farmers benefiting directly and indirectly from the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board," Shambaugh said. "After all, one of the Milk Marketing Board's functions is to help producers within the industry." She added that pooling the over-order premium will, for independent producers, reduce their milk checks significantly.

Eliminating the current incentive to pay a premium, the pooled amount of the over-order premium will be less than the market-controlled premium, Shambaugh said.

ULTI-MAT™

The Ultimate in Cow Comfort

THANK YOU and CONGRATULATIONS to BALMER BROS. FARM

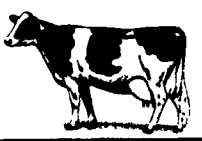
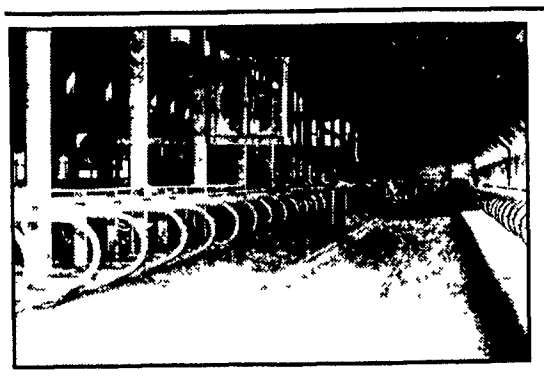
About 2 years ago Zartman Farms installed 15 Ulti-Mat™ all-rubber cow mattresses in our barn. After seeing how the cows utilized the Ulti-Mat™ Mattresses compared to our other methods of cow comfort in the barn, we decided to have mattresses installed in our entire barn -- 352 stalls in total.

The original 15 Ulti-Mat™ stalls provide the same comfort level as when they were brand new.

We have increased almost 3 lbs. per cow per day in the two milk pick-ups following installation. We are very pleased with the Ulti-Mat™ Cow Mattresses. Cletus, Dale & Mike Balmer

The ONLY All Rubber Mattress that recovers to original shape after cow movement





We are now manufacturing:

COW WALKWAY MATS

for Feed Bunks • Holding Areas • Milking Parlors • Cow Walkways

Where cow walkway mats are installed on only 1/2 of the walkway, cows travel only on the one side where mats are on top of concrete.

Milking parlor mats and mattresses for milkers relieves stress on feet and legs for workers.

SPECIAL NOTICE: Because of the success of the Ulti-Mat™ Zartman Farms is now introducing a complete line of new mattresses.*

Capitol Region Agronomy Team Report

TIMOTHY MITE UPDATE SECTION 24(c) APPROVAL

Paul Craig, CCA
Forage Crops
Dauphin County

Last season a severely damaging pest of timothy was identified in Pennsylvania. This pest is a mite, commonly called the cereal rust mite.

It is so small that it cannot be observed without the use of a 20- or 30-power magnifying glass. It has been identified in older timothy stands from southwestern Franklin County to eastern Lancaster County and north to upper Dauphin County.

Signs of the pest are "droughty" looking stands in early May when there is adequate soil moisture present. Estimates of 30 to 70 percent yield reductions have been attributed to this pest.

Many timothy growers have noted that each year their stands just don't seem to be as productive as previous seasons. There is no doubt in my mind that the cereal rust mite is probably the cause of these reductions.

This mite is not like the more familiar spider mite that often affects soybeans and other plants. The timothy mite favors colder weather. In fact, the University of Maryland has observed feeding activity in January and reproduction beginning in February.

The mites reproduce every 16 days and can result in very rapid buildups of populations. The mite feeds in between the ribs on timothy leaves. It sucks out the cell contents and moves to another cell. This causes the leaves to roll, giving the drought-stress symptoms.

This mite was identified in Maryland in 1994. It is found today in Virginia, California, South Dakota, and Nebraska. It is probably well established in many other states in between, but few producers and consultants have even though to look at their stands of timothy for this pest and even if they did they would need to use a hand lens to even see this pest.

The University of Maryland has been working on control strategies for the past four years. Control programs have been a challenge as there are no effective products labeled for use on timothy. In fact, in small trials, some control materials have actually increased the fertility of egg laying females. In addition, control is impacted by the fact that these are extremely small pests and the rolling of the leaves makes it difficult for the pesticide to contact the mites on the plant.

Section 24(c) Approval For Sevin XLR

Effective immediately, a supplemental label use for Sevin XLR has been granted in Pennsylvania for control of the cereal rust mite. The label states growers should apply two to three pints per acre of Sevin, approximately four weeks after green up in the spring.

Treatment is recommended to timothy fields with a history of mite infestation or to fields with 25 percent of plant tillers exhibiting curled tips of new leaf blades. Sevin must be applied no later than 30 days preharvest or grazing. Apply with a minimum of 20 gallons per acre of water to ensure adequate coverage.

N.Y. Farm Bureau Lauds N.Y. Ag Budget Proposal

GLENMONT, N.Y., New York Farm Bureau, the largest general farm advocacy organization in the state, applauds the enthusiasm toward agriculture that Assembly Agriculture Chair William Magee and the New York State Assembly displayed in their recently released FY 2001-02 budget proposal.

"Funding for the programs outlined in the Assembly Budget proposal is crucial for agriculture," stated John Lincoln, New York Farm Bureau President. "The efforts to support these programs by Assemblyman Magee and the New York State Assembly are very much appreciated by our farmers."

The Assembly is proposing funding several agricultural programs at a level higher than supported in the Governor's Executive Budget proposal. The Assembly has marked an additional $1.65 million to support programs within the Department of Agriculture and Markets; $650,000 to support agricultural disease management programs; $565,000 in funding for Agri-Marketing programs across the state; $300,000 to support agricultural research and development projects and $135,000 in additional funding for agricultural education program.

"Farmers in this state are increasingly concerned about animal health issues and how to better market New York agricultural commodities," added Lincoln. A great deal of this support will assist agricultural programs necessary for the industry to remain viable in New York State."

Penn State School Of Forest Resources Offers Natural Resources Tour Of South Africa For Alums

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This is no ordinary class reunion.

This fall, Penn State alumni will tour South Africa to see first-hand the country's extensive natural resources. The event, "Exploring Earth's Natural Treasures: South Africa's Natural Splendor," will take place Oct. 9-26, 2001.

The tour is tailored for graduates in academic disciplines that focus on the environment and natural resources.

"South Africa has much to offer to the casual traveler, but even more to people with a deep interest in natural resources," said Larry Nielsen, director of Penn State's School of Forest Resources and one of the tour leaders.

"We've designed this tour to show the country's natural resources and how local people work and live in harmony with nature. In a nutshell, this is a unique insider's tour to the natural, living splendors of South Africa," Nielsen said.

The tour will begin in the eastern highveld, the area where gold was first discovered and now the center of South Africa's forest industry. Participants will learn about the conservation of this unique area and visit commercial forest research sites.

Participants then will spend several days viewing South African wildlife and learning about the specialized natural resources in Kruger National Park, one of the continent's most spectacular game parks and one of the ten most important parks in the world.

The tour then will visit coastal forests along South Africa's Garden Route before wrapping up in Cape Town.

Each stop along the tour is home to different cultures, including the Swazis, Zulus, Xhosa and Sotho. Participants will have a chance to interact with local people and learn about their lifestyles.

Michael Jacobsen, assistant professor of forest resources at Penn State, also will be a tour leader. As a native South African, he will provide a unique perspective on its natural resource and societal conditions.

Other speakers and tour leaders will include Brian Bredenkamp, professor of forest management at Stellenbosch University, South Africa, and Georg von dem Bussche, a registered tour guide with expertise in forestry and natural resources.

The $4,995 program fee covers flights, presentations, tours, instructional materials, refreshment breaks, social events, daily breakfasts, six lunches and nine dinners, including a farewell dinner in Cape Town. Registration is requested by July 2, 2001.

Participants can sign up by visiting http://www.statecollegeflights.com on the World Wide Web, registering with Omega Travel, and finding the "Pennsylvania State University—South Africa Alumni Tour" page. Penn State affiliation is not required to participate.

To request a brochure and register via mail, contact Michael Dann at (814) 865-7679 or by e-mail at msd5@psu.edu.

New Manure Storage Regulations

New rules went into effect on January 29, 2000 regarding the construction of manure storage facilities.

Since the passage of the Nutrient Management Act (October 1997), only Concentrated Animal Operations were required to be in compliance with the Pennsylvania Technical Guide when constructing manure storages.

With the new rule,"all manure storage facilities are to be designed in a manner consistent with the publications entitled "Manure Management for Environmental Protection' and the "Pennsylvania Technical Guide' and Section 83.351 (relating to minimum standards for the design, construction, location, operation, maintenance and removal from service of manure storage facilities)."

This ruling affects all livestock producers, regardless of size. While some producers may object to the additional regulations, it is important to note that even relatively small liquid manure storages, if improperly constructed, can lead to contamination of ground water.

Note that an engineer's certification is not required for the manure storages, unless the livestock operation has more than 1000 animal equivalent units (one million pounds average body weight).

USDA FY-2002 Budget Requests Responsible Increases For Plant/Animal Disease Programs, Food Safety, Trade

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently provided details of the Bush Administration's FY-2002 agriculture budget, which included responsible increases for plant pests and animal disease programs, food safety, trade programs, and other important department activities.

Veneman also announced that she has authorized an additional $32 million in FY-2002 to increase inspection personnel to protect against animal and plant diseases such as foot and mouth (FMD) at major U.S. ports of entry.

"This budget funds key priorities within this Department," said Veneman. "It helps protect our borders against plant pests and animal diseases, provides full funding for food safety programs, and funds important programs to increase trade activity for U.S. agriculture."

The FY-2002 budget provides $849 million in program funding for USDA's Animal Plant Health and Inspection Service (APHIS), up $174 million over 2001. The budget also strengthens the Agriculture Quarantine Inspection Program (AQI), which helps protect the U.S. against animal diseases such as FMD and BSE, by requesting $13 million in additional program support.

To continue strengthening these important programs, Veneman announced the authorization of an additional $32 million to hire approximately 350 additional personnel at critical ports and international airports to protect against pests and diseases. This authorization of personnel includes 127 permanent officers and technicians, 27 canine officers, 173 temporary inspector positions, and 20 veterinarians. These positions are over and above the levels indicated in the FY-2001 and FY-2002 budgets and will be financed from available revenues in the APHIS user fee account. This decision provides an additional $13.5 million in resources for FY-2001 and $18.6 million for FY-2002 for staffing.

"Given current situations around the world, we need to continue reviewing program needs and take every possible action to strengthen our pest and disease prevention systems," said Veneman. "Increasing personnel at critical ports of entry is an important step that supports additional actions we have already taken to continue protecting U.S. agriculture."

In response to the recent FMD outbreak, the USDA has announced increased measures to protect American agriculture. This includes prohibiting shipments of products from high-risk countries, increasing personnel and surveillance at ports of entry, tightening regulatory enforcement, strengthening federal, state, and industry coordination, implementing education campaigns, and dispatching experts to Great Britain to assist containment efforts. Veneman stressed that the Department continues to review current programs to ensure appropriate resources are maintained.

Additional USDA budget priorities include the following:

- Fully funds the Food Safety Inspection Service (FSIS) at $716 million, an increase of $21 million over FY-2001.
- The budget includes an increase for pay and benefits to support the FSIS workforce, including 7,600 meat and poultry inspectors.
- Carries out the President's commitment to expand overseas markets for American agricultural products by providing $126 million in funding for the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), a $6.4 million increase over FY 2001.

This additional funding will help bolster USDA capability to address technical trade issues and to strengthen market intelligence capabilities for overseas posts. Funding for USDA's Export Guarantee Programs are estimated at $3.9 billion, an increase of more than $100 million over FY-2001. The Foreign Market Development Program, the Market Access Program, Quality Samples Program, and Export Enhancement Program will remain at 2001 levels, totaling $598 million. Funding for the Dairy Export Incentive Program is estimated at $42 million, slightly above the current 2001 estimate.

- Implements the new Agricultural Risk Protection Act so farmers have the benefits of improved crop insurance as soon as possible. This requires $141 million above FY-2001.
- Maintains average monthly participation in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) at 7.25 million individuals. The Food Stamp Program is budgeted at $21 billion, a $1.4 billion increase over 2001, excluding a $1 billion reserve fund. Child Nutrition Programs are budgeted at $10.8 billion, approximately $600 million above 2001 estimates.
- Provides $2.1 billion for the Research, Education and Economics, representing an increase of $25 million, when you exclude earmarks and other one-time funding.
- Provides $969 million for the Agricultural Research Service (ARS), redirecting a portion of ongoing research into important new areas and includes $12 million for additional work to prevent and control exotic diseases and pests, with special emphasis ($5 million) on BSE or "mad cow disease" and $7.5 million to support work on biotechnology.
- Excluding emergency funding provided in 2001, Forest Service activities will be funded at $4.6 billion, an increase of $600 million. The budget maintains funding for priority activities in the Forest Service's Wildland Fire Management Plan, including hazardous fuels reduction.
- Provides $927 million for ongoing Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) activities, an increase of $57 million, to assure adequate technical assistance is provided to farmers, particularly for the Conservation Reserve Program.
- Supports a total program of $12.4 billion for rural development programs, including funding to support about 56,000 homeownership opportunities for low and moderate income residents and funding to provide clean, safe drinking water to 1.4 million rural residents. In addition, a new program of loans and grants is proposed to finance broadband transmission capability to provide Internet and other high speed communications access in rural areas.
- Provides an additional $120 million in funding for the Farm Service Agency to ensure adequate staffing to assist with heavy workloads associated with the implementation of emergency farm programs throughout the country.

To maintain vigilance in protecting U.S. agriculture, the Agricultural Quarantine Inspection (AQI) activities are directed to increase 262 staff years for inspectors, veterinary medical officers, and canine teams to conduct international arrival inspections at critical ports and international airports.

For FY 2001, this would consist of 127 permanent officers/technicians, 27 canine officers, 173 temporary inspection positions, and 20 veterinarians.

For FY 2002, APHIS will continue 127 permanent officers/technicians, increase to 35 the number of canine officers, convert 80 temporary inspection positions to permanent, and continue 20 veterinarians.

Pennsylvania Launches West Nile Virus Surveillance Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State officials recently launched Pennsylvania's program to detect and control mosquitoes that carry West Nile virus, announcing $3.3 million in grants to counties for mosquito surveillance and control.

"West Nile virus was detected in Pennsylvania for the first time last year," Health Secretary Robert S. Zimmerman Jr., said. "Fortunately, no person here was diagnosed with the virus. But last year's experience makes it clear that Pennsylvania's surveillance efforts must continue."

Last year, West Nile virus was found in 19 counties: Bucks; Bradford; Chester; Cumberland; Dauphin; Delaware; Erie; Franklin; Lehigh; Montgomery; Northampton; Philadelphia; Pike; Schuylkill; Susquehanna; Tioga; Union; Wyoming; and York. It was identified in 32 birds, 45 mosquito pools and a horse.

Pennsylvania's plan has three parts: public and professional education; surveillance; and, if surveillance determines there is a risk, the control of mosquitoes that carry the virus.

"This year, we're expanding our effort to detect and track mosquitoes that carry the virus," Acting Environmental Protection Secretary David E. Hess said. "We're partnering with more counties to detect and control mosquitoes, and we're giving them $3.3 million in grants to cover the cost of equipment, supplies and training needs.

"But you and I have an important job to do this summer, too — we need to eliminate any standing water around our homes. Look around your house and neighborhood. You may not realize it, but just one small sandbox bucket filled halfway with water can produce up to 1,000 mosquitoes.

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is coordinating the mosquito-surveillance and -control portion of the multi-agency effort. DEP has been working with county West Nile coordinators to establish mosquito-monitoring sites across the Commonwealth to trap mosquitoes and sample larvae.

"I want to thank the county West Nile coordinators, who were essential in helping us track the virus and find mosquitoes," Hess said. "With their help last year, we captured more than 500,000 mosquitoes and sent more than 2,100 samples for testing. Most important, we now have a better understanding of where mosquitoes breed and where we need to target our control efforts."

DEP and county West Nile coordinators will look for immature (larvae and pupae) and adult mosquitoes to determine if they are the species known to carry the virus, how many there are and their geographic distribution.

If these mosquitoes are detected, they will be controlled using a powdered form of naturally occurring bacteria that is harmless to humans and other aquatic life. To collect mosquitoes, DEP and county coordinators use equipment like light traps, gravid traps and dippers.

If the Department of Health's epidemiologist determines there is an outbreak or the potential for an outbreak, a mosquito-control program would be initiated. Adult mosquitoes carrying the virus would be controlled through localized pesticide spraying. Only U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)-approved pesticides will be used, by state Department of Agriculture-certified applicators.

The departments of Health and Agriculture will perform laboratory testing to determine the presence of the virus in the specimens from mosquitoes, birds, animals and humans.

"Similar to people, horses only become infected with West Nile virus after being bitten by an infected mosquito," Agriculture Secretary Hayes said. "We're continuing to work with veterinarians and horse owners across the state to monitor horse populations."

Secretary Zimmerman also reminded residents to report dead birds by calling 1-877-PA-HEALTH toll free, because they can be an indication that West Nile virus is present in an area.

West Nile virus previously only was found in Africa, Eastern Europe and West Asia. Mosquitoes acquire the virus from infected birds and horses. Those mosquitoes then transmit the virus to people and other animals.

The virus, when transmitted to people, can cause West Nile encephalitis, an infection that can cause an inflammation of the brain. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults and people with compromised immune systems have the highest risk of developing severe illness because their bodies have a harder time fighting off disease.

West Nile virus cases occur primarily in the late summer or early fall, although mosquito season is usually April to October. The virus only can be spread by mosquitoes after they feed on infected birds and then bite people or animals, not by person-to-person contact.

People can take their normal summertime precautions to prevent insect bites, such as reducing outdoor exposure during peak mosquito active periods; wearing long-sleeved shirts and long pants; and applying insect repellent sparingly to exposed skin.

Gov. Ridge's 2001-02 budget proposes $11.1 million to continue efforts to prevent and mitigate the potential public-health effects of West Nile virus on Pennsylvanians. The funds would provide necessary staffing and epidemiological infrastructure.

A website about West Nile virus — through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.WestNile.state.pa.us — has been established to provide citizens with background information and regular updates. Visitors can log on and sign up to receive news releases and other updates on West Nile automatically by e-mail.

Record-Breaking Number Of Easter Lambs, Goats Sold At New Holland

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Baa baa-a-a! Naa-a-a-a!. Baa baa-a-a-a-a-a!

These are the sounds of spring in the "short-leg" pens at the New Holland Sales Stables.

Hundreds, make that thousands, of lambs and kids came to market in the past 10 days at the New Holland Sales Stables, setting Easter season records.

A total of 11,797 head of sheep and goats were sold at four sales within eight days at the New Holland auction site. The sheep numbers totaled 4,844 and an almost unbelievable 6,953 goats.

These are record-breaking marketing numbers in Lancaster County for the Easter season.

The major factor for the unprecedented large lamb and goat marketings is the occurrence of the Christian Easter and the Orthodox Easter at the same time, Sunday, April 15, which is also the first day (Muharram 1) in the Islam calendar year 1421. In addition, Palm Sunday, April 8, was the first day of the 8-day Jewish Pesach (Passover) celebration, when there is always an increase in lamb purchases.

Considering the convergence of the religious holidays on the same date, the New Holland management scheduled an extra lamb and goat sale to better accommodate both buyers and sellers who deal at New Holland. Thus, there was not a one-day sales record for lamb established this year. Last year, for the main sale for the Easter trade, there were not enough pens to hold all the offerings and animals had to be returned to livestock trucks to await sale.

Ken Smoker, New Holland's manager of the sheep and goat division, said that in his 20 years of handling, sheep and goats, "to be fair," he said, he would have to say the lamb sale numbers are not as large as some he's handled. The record for sheep, mostly lambs, sold at one sale is nearly 4,000, he recalled.

For the last 10 years, Smoker noted, the meat goat offerings continue to increase along with the influx of mideastern ethnic groups of the Islamic faith to eastern metropolitan areas.

Goat marketings in Lancaster County now outnumber the sheep and lambs. According to the USDA Market News Service, the official numbers for sheep marketings at the New Holland auctions last year totaled 55,346 head and the goat marketings totaled 73,402.

Where do all these "short legs" come from? When asked, Ken Smoker said, "Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Missouri, and Mississippi."

Lancaster County has been called the livestock market center of the East. It appears that the sheep and goat sales are carrying on that tradition.

A Pen of Easter lambs await sale at New Holland, where prices on Choice and Prime 35-60 pound lambs ranged from $140-210 per hundredweight.

ners were recognized at the sale. First place in 2001 was Mollie Van Lieu with Stoney Hollow Malcolm Iris-P. This mature equivalent record of 18,682 pounds of milk, 842 pounds of fat, 645 pounds of protein, and 2,863 cheese yield dollars, earned her $565.

In second place was Rebecca VanTassel who earned $339 for her mature equivalent record of 18,916 pounds of milk, 753 pounds of fat, 622 pounds of protein, and 2,652 cheese yield dollars on Twin Haven Marcus Sue-ET.

Christer Slick earned $226 for his record on CA Theo Barber Reese of 15,536 pounds of milk, 776 pounds of fat, 587 pounds of protein, and 2,651 cheese yield dollars.

Alta Genetics, Select Sires, ABS, and Semex joined the sale with proceeds from the sale of donated semen going toward the Pennsylvania Jersey Youth fund.

4-H Equine Garage Sale April 21

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — On April 21, the annual tack swap or "equine garage sale" will be conducted at the Northampton County 4-H Center, Nazareth. The tack swap will be from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The Northampton County 4-H Center is located on Bushkill Center Road, 2.2 miles south of Rt. 512 at the Bangor Lumber light or four miles north of Nazareth on Bushkill Center Road.

There will be new and used items for sale for all horse interests and disciplines. Also, there will be horse crafts, Breyer model horses, clothing and other horse related items. All sellers must preregister for a sale table or space; there are no consignments. No live animals are permitted.

Food, courtesy of Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club, will be available during the sale hours. This is a rain/shine event; being held inside non-heated buildings and outside.

Anyone wishing information concerning the tack swap is asked to call Janice Martin at (610) 837-7294. Anyone wishing general information concerning the 4-H program in Northampton County is asked to call Phyllis Laufer, Northampton County 4-H coordinator, weekdays, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., at (610) 746-1970, or your local Agriculture Extension Service in your county.

State Milk Marketing Board To Hold Hearing May 16

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On May 16, the Milk Marketing Board will conduct a public hearing for Milk Marketing Areas, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and exhibits concerning the continuation of the current over-order premium, and whether an adjustment should be made to the level of the current over-order premium ($1.40 per hundred pounds of Class I milk) that is due to expire on June 30.

Milk Marketing Board Members stress that this hearing will not affect the $.25 per one hundred pounds of Class I milk added to the current over-order premium to help offset the increase in fuel costs.

The hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. in Room 202 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg.

Fellowship, Fun At PennAg Poultry Fundraiser

Cedar Crest FFA Members Participate In Speaking Career Development Events

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Recently, the Lebanon County Speaking Career Development Events were held at the Northern Lebanon Agriscience classroom. FFA members from Cedar Crest participated in Parliamentary Procedure, Conservation Speaking, Senior Prepared Speaking, Extemporaneous Speaking and the Creed Speaking contest.

Speaking contests require the participants to write a speech on an agricultural related topic. It must be of appropriate length: six to eight minutes for Senior Prepared Speaking and Conservation Speaking, four to six minutes for Extemporaneous and a maximum of three minutes to recite the Creed. The Senior Prepared and Conservation Speaking contestants must answer up to five minutes of questions from the judges. The Parliamentary Procedure teams must put on a 20 minute mock meeting correctly demonstrating many Parliamentary abilities.

The Parliamentary Procedure team members at the county contest includes: Jeremy Balsbaugh, Travis Krall, Matt Balmer, Samatha Shepler, Carl Eisenhauer, Deb Schaeffer, Kyle Seifert, and Tara Miller. The team placed second.

Cedar Crest results in the other county contests were Sarah Krall first, Joel Krall second in the Senior Prepared Speaking contest; Beth Kreider first, Amber Frank second, and Heather Hawkins third in the Conservation Speaking contest. Chet Brubaker placed second and Jeremy Balsbaugh placed third in the Extemporaneous Speaking contest and Travis Krall placed third in the Creed contest.

All of the above Cedar Crest members will advance and compete in the Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill area competition.

Ilvento Named Chair Of UD Food And Resource Economics

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. Thomas W. Ilvento, associate professor of food and resource economics, has been named chair of the department of food and resource economics (FREC) at the University of Delaware College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. He had been acting department chair since 1999.

According to Dean John Nye, Ilvento's appointment followed a nationwide search by a university committee.

"Dr. Ilvento did an excellent job as acting chair and I am pleased he accepted the position," said Nye. "He has done a fine job in building relationships with the agricultural community on issues from land use and leadership development to economic opportunities."

His new position offers many possibilities, said Ilvento, and he is excited and optimistic about his appointment.

"FREC recently became home to the graduate statistics program, one of three main program areas in the department," he reports. "We are also the center of our agricultural research economics program and a graduate program in operations research. I'm looking forward to taking advantage of the connections within these programs and discovering how they can enhance each other."

Ilvento earned a bachelor's degree in community development and a Ph.D in rural sociology from The Pennsylvania State University. His master's degree in research economics and community development is from the University of New Hampshire. He has served as associate professor of food and research economics and economic development specialist for UD Cooperative Extension since 1996. Before his tenure at UD, he was associate Extension professor at The University of Kentucky in Lexington, Ky.

Farm Management

THE REGULATORY JUNGLE
John Berry
Ag Marketing Educator
Lehigh County

Farmers are creative! I hear all kinds of requests for information.

But you know, I've never laughed at one or shook my head after hanging up the phone. After all, if you really make a serious go at it, most of those creative ideas really could make some money on a diversified farm.

Of all those requests, the most frequent ones I've been getting lately, besides information on organic farming and certification, is adding value, in particular to meat products. Anytime you add value to a commodity, it could fall into a totally different category for regulations. And those regulations can be very confusing.

Regulations

Why are there regulations on value-added products? Regulations help to keep the truth straight for consumers. They protect the consumer with safety issues and from fraud.

Who does the regulating? There are a number of agencies you would need to be in contact with:

- USDA — The United States Department of Agriculture regulates raw agricultural products. This would include meat. USDA also regulates processed meat products that contain greater than two percent meat as well as all sausages. USDA works in unison with other allied agencies such as Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) and Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).
- FDA — The Food and Drug Administration regulates all processed foods. Meat that is sold directly to the end consumer or from the wholesaler on is under FDA jurisdiction. They, too, work in arrangements with other allied agencies such as the State Department of Health and the local county health departments.
- Federal Trade Commission.
- Occupational Safety and Health Administration (workplace).
- Environmental Protection Agency.
- Department of Commerce (weights and measures).
- Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.
- What kinds of things to these agencies regulate?
- Production and processing conditions.
- Sources of inputs.
- Labeling and claims on labels.
- Distribution and retail conditions.
- Liability assignment.

In general, USDA and EPA regulate production issues while the FDA regulates processing issues and sources of inputs. It is important to remember that regulations generally do not assure quality of a product, but rather regulations deal with safety of a product and prevention of economic fraud to the consumer.

The possible exception is with USDA meat quality grades. Again, regulations are for safety and fraud, not quality. So you need to be sure you have a quality product that consumers will want to purchase before you go through all the hassles of regulations.

United States Department of Agriculture

What does the USDA regulate?

- Beef (veal), pork, lamb, goats.
- Poultry — chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese.

The USDA does not regulate exotic species, but they have the ability to do so if you request them Exotic species include animals such as rabbits and some other small mammals, antelope, bison, deer, elk, reindeer, water buffalo, water fowl, and ratites (emu, ostrich, rhea).

The major regulations that the USDA covers are plant construction and overall operation of the plant, including good manufacturing practices and HACCP requirements. They also regulate personnel, allowed ingredients in a product, percentage of ingredients, (standards of identity) and labeling.

USDA labeling regulations include federal inspection mark, name of the product, ingredients list (if applicable), identification of manufacturing or distributor, accurate statement of net contents, safety handling instructions (for raw products), and nutritional labeling (for some products).

USDA requires that labeling be preapproved before it can be used in retail sale. Usually a USDA regulated facility will have someone who can help with label design and approval. There are expediters who can help you with labeling review branch of the USDA.

The USDA does not directly regulate meat after it leaves a USDA, inspected facility destined for retail, meat that is bought and sold among individuals as the live animal, and meat that is processed by "custom exempt" processors (the end user is the owner of the product).

To learn more about USDA regulations, contact USDA Technical Information Center, (402) 221-7400 or USDA Website: http://www.usda.gov.

Food and Drug Administration

What does the FDA regulate? They regulate all processed foods except those containing significant amounts of meat, milk, or eggs, seafood (including freshwater), all products at retail and the food service industry.

Remember that the FDA regulates all processed foods. This includes plant construction and operation to be sure the plant is using good manufacturing practices and following HACCP requirements (seafood, voluntary for food service), being sure that allowed ingredients are generally recognized as safe, the percentage of ingredients (standards of identity), and labeling.

The FDA regulates inspectable facilities. This includes construction details such as walls, floors, ceilings, water source, and equipment as well as operational details and personnel.

When it comes to labeling, FDA requires a label to have the following: the name of the product, ingredients list (if applicable), identification of manufacturer or distributor, accurate statement of net contents, and nutritional labeling (for some products if going into retail store).

A label must meet FDA requirements, but there is no preapproval process of the label before a product goes to retail as is required with USDA.

If you claim any of the following on a label, be prepared to show the data that backs it up: content claims (such as low, lite, high, rich, fat, sodium, calories) and (such as cancer, heart disease, birth defects, osteoporosis). The FDA does not have as defined a stance on "value labeling" (all natural, free range, organic, etc.) as the USDA.

UPC codes (universal product codes) are not a government requirement, but managed by a private company. They cost about $300 a year for the initial code (based on estimated sales). An incremental additional cost is charged for each additional code in the same company. For more information, see http://www.uc-council.org/.

The FDA does not regulate anything the USDA regulates nor nutritional supplement-implied claims such as medicinal herbs.

To learn more about the FDA regulations, contact local health department; FDA Small Business Representative in Dallas, Texas, (214) 655-8100, ext. 128; or the FDA Website: http://www.fda.gov.

USDA Tightens Used Farm Equipment Restrictions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced it was adding to the list of precautions already taken to prevent foot-and-mouth disease.

Since the recent outbreaks of FMD, USDA has increased the inspection, cleaning, and disinfecting of all used farm equipment entering the United States from all countries or regions under FMD import restrictions.

USDA will take the additional precaution of temporarily prohibiting the importation of all used farm equipment from these areas.

All used farm equipment currently enroute to the United States from FMD-affected countries will be thoroughly inspected, cleaned, and disinfected.

The United States continues to review all programs and procedures to ensure ongoing prevention and readiness against FMD. USDA will continue to be vigilant in strengthening pest and animal disease-prevention and eradication programs and work with state and industry representatives to ensure the United States is ready to prevent and respond to an agriculture emergency.

In response to the recent FMD outbreak, the U.S. moved swiftly to protect our borders. This includes prohibiting shipments of products from high-risk countries; increasing personnel and surveillance at ports of entry; tightening regulatory enforcement; strengthening federal, state, and industry coordination; accelerating research; implementing education campaigns; and dispatching experts to Great Britain to assist containment efforts.

This year, USDA has increased personnel spending for these protection programs by 16 percent, and the administration is proposing significant increases in 2002 for agricultural inspection and surveillance programs.

Current information on FMD, as well as additional information about this most recent restriction and specific types of farm equipment impacted, is available on the Internet at www.aphis.usda.gov on the FMD hot issue page. Travelers can also access the latest FMD suggested precautions by calling 1-866-SAFGUARD.

Schumann Director Of Member Services Of American Angus Association

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Bryce Schumann, Lecompton, Kan., has been named director of member services for the American Angus Association, effective April 1. He has served as the Association's director of activities for the past year.

As director of member services, Schumann will oversee the daily activities of the Association, as they pertain to memberships, registrations, transfers and member communications. He will work with the board of directors to develop and implement rules and settle breeder disputes.

He will work with the Ohio State University animal genetics laboratory to handle testing for verifying identification and parent verification, and will oversee the Association's genetic defect monitoring program. Schumann will continue to work to develop the Angus Foundation, which supports youth, education and research.

"Bryce has really impressed us during his first year on the Angus team," says Richard L. Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association. "His background in the purebred cattle business, and his interpersonal skills will definitely enhance our member services."

Before joining the American Angus Association staff, Schumann served as assistant director of feeder-packer relations for Certified Angus Beef LLC, supply development division. He has also worked for the Kansas Beef Council and Farm Credit Services.

Scholarships Available For Conservation Leadership School

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — Each year the Northumberland County Conservation District provides a scholarship for a Northumberland County high school student to attend the Penn State Conservation Leadership School (CLS). This summer program is an excellent opportunity for young people to learn about the environment and explore environmental careers in a hands-on atmosphere.

CLS is a two-week program for high school students who have completed at least ninth grade and one ninth grade science course. The curriculum includes units in forest management, water quality, soil analysis, conservation legislation, caving and much more. Teamwork and leadership also play a large role in the CLS experience. Students work and learn in small groups and learn that "you can make a difference." The school is held at the Stone Valley Recreation Area near State College where students have a 7,700 acre outdoor classroom to explore solutions to today's environmental and conservation issues.

Two regular sessions are available for students to choose from, June 24-July 7 and July 8-21. There is also an advanced session, July 26-Aug. 4, for students who have attended the regular session.

Applications for scholarship must be received in the district office by Apr. 30. Scholarships will cover the entire $545 tuition required to attend the Conservation Leadership School. Students interested in applying for a scholarship or who would like additional information about the Conservation Leadership School should call the conservation district office at (570) 286-7114, ext. 4.

Dairy Compact Legislation Gaining Support

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Participants in the National Grange's fifth annual Legislative Fly In learned that legislation permanently extending and expanding the Northeast Dairy Compact as well as creating a new Southern Dairy Compact is gaining support in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Clark Ogilvie, Legislative Assistant for North Carolina Representative Bob Etheridge (D-NC) told representatives from 17 State Granges that the bill, which has not yet been introduced, has 132 co-sponsors at this time. An opposition bill has only 60 co-sponsors. Ogilvie revealed the information during a briefing with the National Grange Fly In 2001 participants held on April 3 in the Longworth House Office Building in Washington, D.C.

Ogilvie told the Grangers that Dairy Compact bill sponsors were waiting for the "right time" to formally introduce the legislation. This would be sometime after budget votes. Introduction could come after the Easter recess. The National Grange strongly supports dairy compacts.

Chesapeake Bay Bald Eagles Continue Resurgence

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Bald eagle populations have reached a twenty-three year high in the Chesapeake Bay watershed, according to data released today by the Chesapeake Bay Program.

For the first time since the 1940's an active nest with a fledgling has been recorded in the District of Columbia. Results from the annual baywide bald eagle population count show increased numbers residing throughout the Bay watershed, with 533 active nests fledgling 813 eaglets nearly a ten percent increase from the previous year's 486 active nests and 706 young eagles.

Increases are the result of the bald eagle population resurgence in the Maryland and Virginia portions of the watershed. In Virginia, 259 active nests produced 394 young, while in Maryland, 256 active nests produced 395 young.

In the District of Columbia an active nest with a fledgling was found at Bolling Air Force Base, near the confluence of the Anacostia and Potomac Rivers. Due to the absence of open Bay waters, Pennsylvania is home to only 17 active nests and 23 young.

"The combination of more bald eagle nests producing more young is a sign that the species has truly rebounded," said Chesapeake Bay Program Living Resources Subcommittee Chairman Frank Dawson.

"Improvements in overall water quality and targeted bald eagle restoration efforts undertaken over the past two decades have brought the species from the edge of extinction to a viable population within the Bay watershed."

The increased bald eagle population has benefitted from numerous state efforts and baywide restoration programs aimed at improving the overall quality of local waters and the Bay.

Land preservation and forest restoration have improved the eagle's habitat, while water quality improvements have increased the eagle's available food supply through improved fisheries.

Chesapeake 2000, the baywide restoration agreement signed by Bay Program partners in June, works to accelerate this progress through many of its water quality, land preservation and habitat enhancement commitments.

For example, commitments to restore 2,010 miles of forest buffers by 2010 and to preserve twenty percent of the watershed from development will increase bald eagle habitat and work to improve water quality. Forest buffers help reduce pollutants reaching rivers and streams as run off from adjacent land.

Because eagles like to nest near open water, our new commitment to preserve land and forest along streams and shorelines will assist in the recovery of the key species," said Chesapeake Bay Program Director Bill Matuszeski. "Federal, state and local governments and private landowners need to work together to conserve the habitat needed for this expanding population."

For more information about the resurgence of the Chesapeake Bay bald eagle, including annual population data sets, reproducible photographs, and a brief history on efforts to restore the species, visit the Chesapeake Bay Program online Press Center at http://www.chesapeakebay.net/press.htm.

The Chesapeake Bay Program is restoring the Bay watershed through a partnership among the District of Columbia, the State of Maryland, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the Commonwealth of Virginia, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency representing the federal government, the Chesapeake Bay Commission, and participating citizen advisory groups.

NFU Applauds Renewable Fuels Legislation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) recently applauded Sens. Tom Daschle, D-SD., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., for introducing legislation that would create a renewable fuels standard (RFS) for gasoline and other fuels.

The Renewable Fuels Act of 2001 will help family farmers by tripling the demand for renewable fuels, including ethanol and biodiesel, over the next decade. The act would also promote clean air and water, and help address America's current energy and fuel challenges.

"Senators Daschle and Lugar continue to show their leadership on issues important to rural America and to the country," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "Farmer and the rest of America are ready for this forward-thinking legislation. We need to increase farmer income. We need to protect our air and water. We need to stem our dependence on nonrenewable, foreign fuel sources. This bill helps us achieve each of those goals."

The Renewable Fuels Act of 2001 will establish a national Renewable Fuels Standard that requires a minimum of 4.5 billion gallons per year of ethanol-equivalent in renewable fuels. The RFS would value-add nearly two billion bushels per year of "cornstarch equivalent" into clean fuels, and positively affect the terms of trade for all sectors of agriculture, including those for corn, sorghum, and soybeans.

This year's legislation leaves in place oxygenate requirements detailed in the Clean Air Act. It also provides the Environmental Protection Agency the authority to phase out the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE), a gasoline oxygenate known to contaminate groundwater, by the year 2005 and provides for the assessments of groundwater degradation due to the polluting effects of MTBE.

"With commodity prices at record lows and with heightened concerns over environmental matters and fuel costs, it is time to address our energy challenges while supporting family farmers and America's environment," Swenson said.

Farmers Union Calls For Scrutiny Of Suiza-Dean Merger

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union has urged the Department of Justice (DOJ) to conduct a comprehensive investigation into the proposed merger between Suiza Foods Corp. and Dean Foods Co., two of the largest dairy firms in the country. In a letter to Attorney General John Ashcroft, NFU specifically calls on DOJ to examine the economic impact on dairy farmers who continue to see fewer buyers and falling prices for their product.

"It is vital that the Department of Justice scrutinize this proposed merger that could hurt farmers and consumers alike," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "The combination of Dean and Suiza further eliminates competition in the dairy industry. It makes it more difficult for farmers to bargain for a fair price. It makes it more difficult for consumers to buy milk at a fair price. This move continues a trend in the dairy processing and retail food industries that not only impacts consumers at the dinner table, but is detrimental to the survivability of America's dairy farmers."

The proposed merger between Suiza Foods, the largest fluid milk processor, and the Fortune 500 Dean Foods would concentrate nearly one third of the market into the hands of the newly formed entity. Suiza now controls over 70 percent of the processing and distribution market in the Northeast and has completed over thirty-nine dairy acquisitions and joint ventures since 1993.

Farmers Union is concerned that this deal further limits competition in a market that has steadily seen a loss of dairy processors. It also combines two companies that are highly vertically integrated into the retail sector, creating pressure on prices that consumers must pay for milk products. Farmers Union is calling on the DOJ to investigate the deal for antitrust violations due to the virtual elimination of competition in certain regions and other market-controlling practices.

"The dairy industry continues to experience consolidation that squeezes producers out of the market. It squeezes the pocketbooks of consumers. The Justice Department must act now to encourage competition in this important American industry," added Swenson.

been free of foot and mouth disease since 1929, and we don't want to take any risk of a possible outbreak potentially spread through the hosting of World Pork Expo, an event attended by pork producers and pork industry leaders from around the world," said Barb Determan, NPPC president.

In its 14th year, World Pork Expo was expected to attract approximately 40,000 pork producers and consumers. In addition to the U.S. pork producers, about 2,000 international visitors from 60 countries annually attend the event.

"Although biosecurity measures to control potential disease situations are not new to World Pork Expo, the NPPC board of directors feels it is prudent to take the extraordinary precaution of canceling the event this year," said Determan, an Early, Iowa, pork producer. "Our next concern is how to communicate all the information available at World Pork Expo to pork producers. We are working on a plan to make sure our producers have easy access to the information and technologies that would have been displayed at this year's event."

As part of the decision to cancel the 2001 World Pork Expo, the NPPC board of directors strongly urges the following recommendations to members of Congress, USDA, pork producers, and other livestock organizations:

1. A 100 percent compliance of inspection protocols by USDA/Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) and the U.S. Customs Service on all passengers, mail, and cargo from countries that are foot and mouth disease (FMD) positive.
2. Encourage all pork producers and pork plants to prohibit foreign visitors from touring farms and plants.
3. Increase funding to USDA/APHIS for prevention of foreign animal diseases, particularly FMD.
4. Increase funding for USDA/APHIS for enhanced detection and response on foreign animal diseases, including FMD.
5. Strongly encourage the U.S. government to take all appropriate actions to eliminate accidental and/or intentional pathways of introduction of foreign animal diseases, particularly FMD.
6. Encourage an animal health and biosecurity risk assessment of all shows or expositions that include live animals.

"The NPPC board of directors is planning a World Pork Expo in 2002, with appropriate biosecurity precautions," said Determan.

"Although NPPC has taken this proactive and precautionary measure to help prevent an outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the U.S., we still want to urge all pork producers to use the utmost vigilance in biosecurity measures on their farms. We are also urging the U.S. government to take all necessary precautions to protect the U.S. borders," said Determan.

Proper biosecurity practices are a daily issue for pork producers. Detailed information about precautionary measures is available on the NPPC Website at www.nppc.org.

Easter Celebration

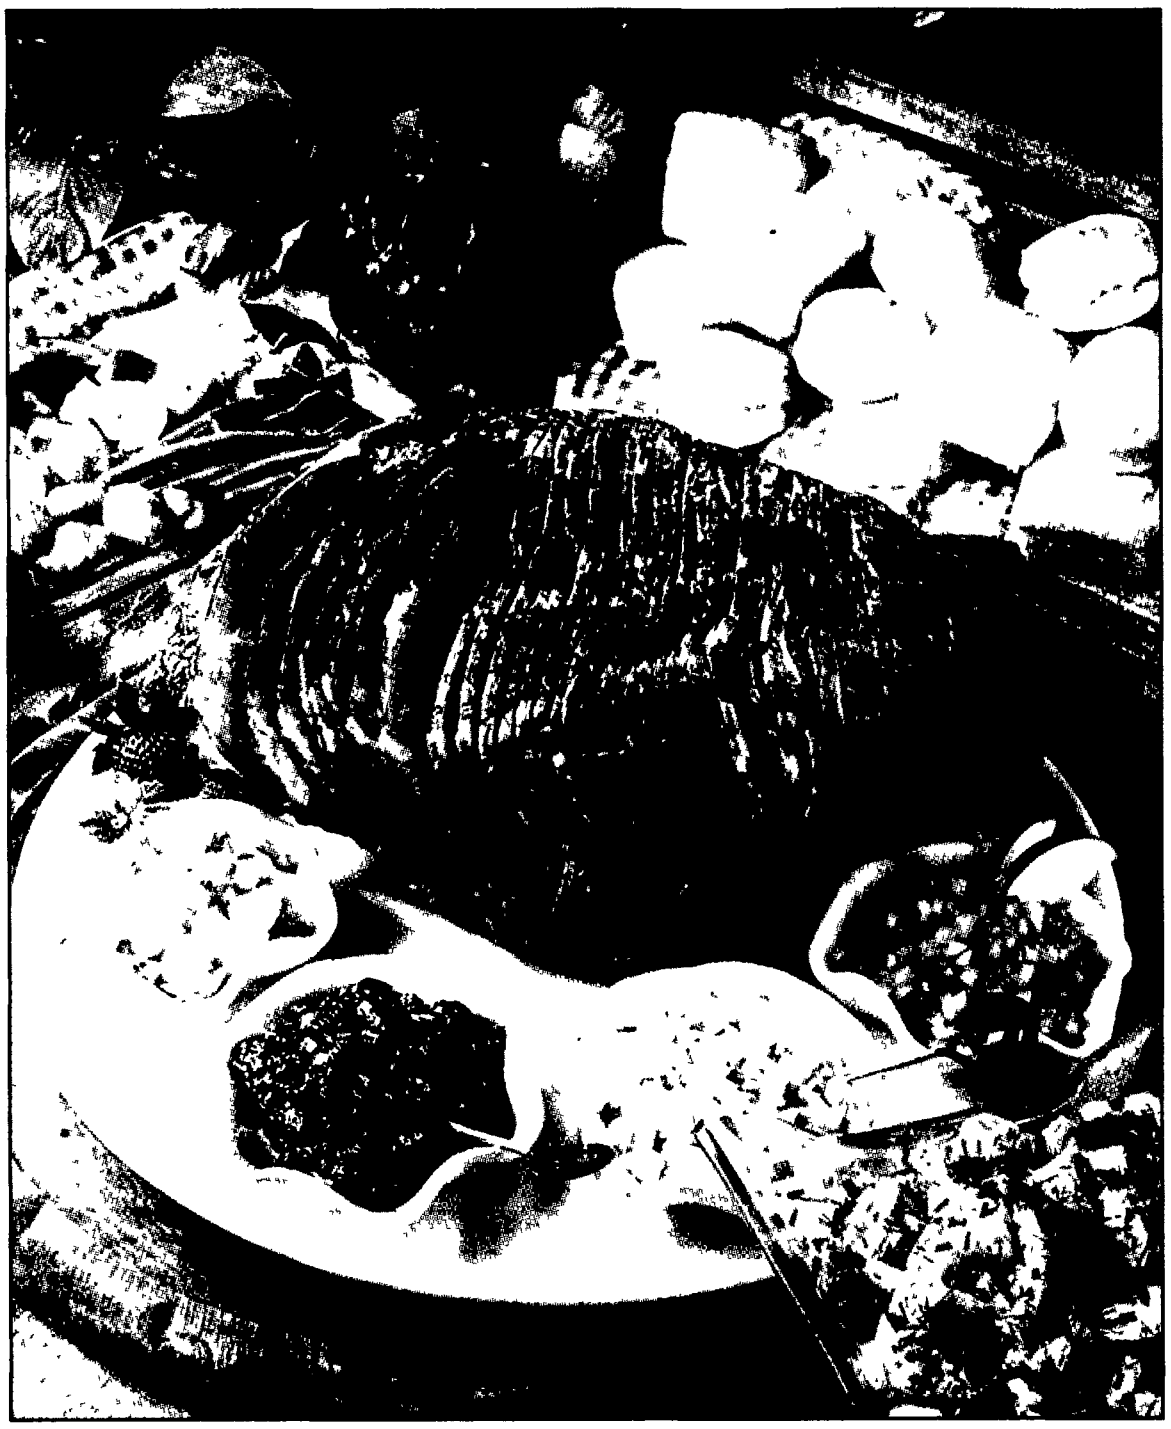
GRILLED HAM WITH LEMON-ORANGE GLAZE

6-7 pound bone-in smoked ham
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon ground coriander
1 tablespoon paprika
1 teaspoon cumin
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves

Glaze:

¼ cup lemon marmalade
2 tablespoon orange juice

Prepare gas or charcoal grill to medium-hot (375-425 degrees F.) for indirect cooking. Place drop pan in center, not over heat source (for gas grill, turn off center burner; for charcoal grill, bank coals on either side). Score top and sides of ham with a knife in a crisscross pattern; mix all remaining ingredients except the glaze ingredients and rub into surface of ham. Place ham, score side up, in center of grill over drop pan. Cover and grill for 1 - 1 ½ hours (adding 6-8 briquettes to charcoal grill if necessary to maintain heat), until internal temperature of ham (measured with a meat thermometer) reads 140 degrees F. Combine marmalade and orange juice in a small bowl; brush over ham and grill 5 minutes more. Remove ham from grill and let stand 15 minutes. Serves 8, with leftovers.



Spiral-cut hams are a bonus to hostesses.

GOURMET POTATOES

6 medium potatoes
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup butter
1½ cups sour cream
⅓ cup chopped onion (optional)
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Butter
Paprika

Cook potatoes in skins; peel and coarsely shredded. In saucepan over low heat, melt cheese and butter. Remove from heat. Add sour cream, onions, and seasonings. Mix with potatoes. Place in casserole dish. Dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30-40 minutes.

STEAMED NEW POTATOES WITH PARMESAN

18 small new potatoes, unpeeled
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
⅓ cup freshly grated parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Boil new potatoes just until tender, drain and keep warm. In medium saucepan over medium-high heat, melt butter and whisk in flour. Whisk in milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Season sauce with salt and nutmeg. Stir in cheese. Pour sauce over potatoes and stir to coat. To serve, sprinkle with extra nutmeg and parmesan. Serves 6.

SOUTHERN SWEET POTATOES

6 cooked sweet potatoes
½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
Salt to taste
Grated rind of 1 orange

Cut cooked sweet potatoes in half lengthwise and arrange in shallow pan. Cover with butter and brown sugar. Add salt and granted orange rind. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Mertztown

MISSISSIPPI MUD CAKE

1 cup butter
½ cup cocoa
4 eggs, beaten
1½ cups flour
2 cups granulated sugar
1½ cups chopped pecans or walnuts
1 package miniature marshmallows
Dash salt

Melt butter. Add cocoa, eggs, sugar, flour, nuts, and salt to butter. Mix well. Pour mixture into 9x13-inch pan. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degree oven. While hot, spread marshmallow on top. Let cool. Mix together:

½ cup butter
1 pound confectioners' sugar
½ cup milk
⅓ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla

Spread over marshmallows. Let set in refrigerator overnight. Cut into squares and serve.

SPIRAL-SLICED HAM WITH PEPPER JELLY GLAZE

5-6 pound half ham, spiral-sliced
8-ounce jar hot pepper jelly

Place ham in shallow pan and heat in 350 degrees F. oven, uncovered, for 40 minutes. Pour the pepper jelly over ham, spreading evenly. Heat for 10-15 minutes more, basting occasionally. Serve hot. Serves 8.

TINY PEAS WITH MINT

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup diced onion
1 ½ teaspoons grated lemon zest
2 10-ounce boxes frozen tiny peas
Salt and pepper, to taste
1 tablespoon chopped fresh mint

In a medium saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Add the onion and lemon zest and cook gently, stirring occasionally, until onion is soft but not browned, about 4 minutes. Add the peas to the pan and stir to combine thoroughly. Season with salt and pepper and cook, stirring, for about 5 minutes or until the peas are heated through. Stir in mint and serve immediately. Serves 8.

GINGERED CARROTS

1 ½ pounds carrots, pared and sliced
1 cup chicken broth
3-inch piece fresh ginger, peeled, sliced into ¼-inch slices
1 tablespoon butter
Dash red pepper flakes
2 tablespoons honey
1 clove garlic, minced

Combine the carrots, chicken broth, ginger, butter, red pepper flakes, honey and garlic in a medium saucepan. Bring to a boil, lower heat and continue cooking the carrots at a simmer, uncovered. Cook for about 10 to 15 minutes or until carrots are soft and nicely glazed. Serves 8.

SEAFORM SALAD

3-ounce package lime Jell-O
1 cup hot pear juice
28-ounce can pears, mashed
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
8-ounces whipped cream topping
4-ounces red maraschino cherries, drained, halved

Dissolve Jell-O in pear juice. Mix in pears and cream cheese. Cool. When thick, fold in whipped topping and cherries. Place in mold dishes and refrigerate several hours before serving. Serves 8.

Easter is a holiday rich in traditional foods. It is said that the pilgrims feasted on ham at the first American Easter celebration.

While ham continues to be a popular choice, it has changed in many ways. It's now leaner and quicker to prepare. But one of the biggest changes is that you can purchase a spiral cut ham. The precut slices make it a breeze to serve when you're having a crowd for dinner.

Spiral cut ham eliminates the last minute job of slicing the ham while adults are watching and children hungrily impatient.

Spiral cut hams eliminate last minute stress, yet contain all the flavor of old-fashioned smoked hams. They can be prepared the same as any full-sized ham. Here is a recipe from the National Pork Producers Council.

BAKED HAM WITH HONEY-APRICOT GLAZE

10-14 pound spiral-sliced, fully-cooked smoked ham
1 cup honey
6-ounces orange juice concentrate, thawed
⅓ cup soy sauce
⅓ cup apricot jam
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Place ham on rack in shallow roasting pan. Stir together remaining ingredients in medium bowl; set aside. Bake ham for 30 minutes; pour glaze over ham and continue to bake until ham is heated through, about a total of 1 to 1 ½ hours.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Crawling around on my hands and knees, on the living room floor, I came face to face with the unexpected.

It was hiding there, just where I had put it, tucked between the overhanging leaves of a big spider plant and the edge of the houseplant's stoneware container.

An egg.

Well, not a real egg.

This was a fake egg, a very pale, pastel-blue colored one, with a soft, velvety-textured "shell." The pale blue egg had come to live at our house a few weeks ago accompanied by 11 other soft, pastel-colored companions, all neatly packaged in their own see-through plastic carton. While the velvety-shells are probably not very "cleanable," these fakes look much more realistic than those neon-bright ones.

As residents of our household, the eggs had found a new home in a small wicker basket, surrounded by shredded, blue-cellophane, fake "straw." Keeping watch over the basket and its contents on the hutch is a small, sparkly, fake bunny, gift on an earlier Easter.

All these fake — read, unbreakable — decorations are arranged and kept handy primarily for the benefit of our family preschoolers.

Over the years, we have accumulated a few very special decorative eggs, loving crafted by talented friends. A few are fragile ceramic ones made at least two decades ago for our kids by their junior choir director. Some others were tediously decorated with bits of colored tissue paper back when decopage was the craft rage of the age.

While it's fun to reminisce about friends and special times with these delicate eggs, reality demands that, during some stretches of our lives, it's just easier to tuck pretty breakables away. Little folks with tiny hands are too precious to fuss at over worrying about smashing memorabilia to smithereens.

So these velvety fake eggs are a pretty and more sensible fit for preschool fingers to play with, hide around the house — even dump the whole basketful upside down on the floor on occasion. At a buck a dozen, the price was right.

Our missing egg turn up during a quick "straightening up" of the living room, after having indulged earlier in some grandchild egg hunt fun among the furniture and plants. Not having done an egg-head-count, we didn't know we had missed this one.

Unlike some other eggs involved in one of their recent playtime egg hunts, however, this one stayed put until it "got found."

During our indoor hunt, their mother had suddenly remembered that they had never gathered up some real painted, hard-boiled eggs, which had been hidden outside. Hard-boiled and decorated Easter eggs, dragged around outside and hidden around mud, grass, twigs — and here on the farm, who knows what else? — are generally considered as expendable playthings rather than edibles. But they can be gathered up and hidden numerous times, until too badly squished or Derra Dog finds them first and has a snack.

Checking later, she could find not a single one of the hidden Easter eggs.

But about that same time, while seated in their living room in the middle of the night, feeding our new grandchild, Sarah, our daughter had suddenly been startled by the "bark" of a fox right outside the window.

If you've never heard the sound of a fox, trust me here. "Bark" is a way-off misnomer for the eerie, shrill scream made by a fox, sounding more like something out of a horror movie.

"It made the hair stand up on the back of my neck," she admitted, adding that she could hear the canine puttering around outside the house for awhile afterward.

Hunting Easter eggs perhaps?

Because not a single one of those colored eggs has yet been found.

My suggestion was that, if the noisy, nocturnal fox makes a habit of prowling and screaming under their windows at 3 a.m., she can hide some more Easter eggs. Preferably Mexican fiesta Easter eggs, liberally flavored with Tabasco and jalapeno, which might persuade Brer Fox to go hunt something less spicy, like the mice in the hayfields.

On the other hand, when our fox is hunting Easter eggs, it's not stalking the Easter bunny.

SUN Area Seeks Dairy Princess Royalty

The SUN Area Dairy Princess Committee is searching for contestants for its annual pageant to held June 21-23, at the Susquehanna Valley Mall.

To enter the contest, princess candidates must be residents of the SUN Area covering Snyder, Union, Northumberland and Montour counties, at least 16 years of age, have a connection to the dairy industry, and be willing to promote the industry throughout these counties during the one-year reign.

Dairy Princesses participate in school and grocery store promotions, speak to farm and non-farm groups and make appearances on radio stations and at fairs. Princesses also participate in training seminars and the State Dairy Princess Pageant in September.

Young ladies aged at least eight years can participate in the royalty program as Dairy Maids or Misses. Dairy Maids, ages 13 and up, and Dairy Misses, ages eight to 12, must meet the same requirements as the dairy princess contestants and assist her in promoting the dairy industry in the four-county area. There is no competition for these levels, but Dairy Maids participate in a one-day training seminar.

For more information or applications, contact Shannon Yerg, (570)-539-2456, or Kathy Weller, (570) 837-1007.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift Mt Washington KY

Time To Read!

What's your favorite food-related children's story book?

At our house it is probably the delightfully illustrated "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" by Eric Carle or the humorous "Gregory the Terrible Eater" by Mitchell Sharmat.

Both books keep the attention of young readers and teach a nutrition related lesson while promoting literacy skills.

We have all heard again and again that we should read to our children, and why not be selective in what we read to them?

Selecting quality books about nutrition and food can be a creative way to learn about food, nutrition, and behaviors related to food such as food shopping, trying new foods, preparing foods, and safe food handling. Quality literature can motivate and encourage young children to know more about nutrition, while also providing opportunities for children to develop lifelong reading and writing skills.

When reading any type of book with your children, follow these tips to make the experience more enjoyable and meaningful for you and your child:

• Read the book first before you read it to your children. Knowing the story will help you know what comes next.

• It is important to ask your child questions about the story as you read. Ask what might happen next in the story.

• Choose a regular story time. Quiet times are great! Try reading together after dinner clean up or before bed. Try to keep the same reading time each day (this is hard with our hectic lifestyles but provides consistency for the child).

• Find a cozy , quiet place to read the story. Call it your reading spot. Cuddle on the couch together or ask your child to sit on your lap. Turn off the television or go in another room to read so the place you are reading is quiet. Reading aloud is one of the best ways to spend quality time with your child.

• Make sure the children can see the pictures. Hold the book up or lay it in your lap. Talk about the pictures and characters in the book.

• Read with expression in your voice. For example, if the story is happy, read with a "happy" voice. If the story is sad, read with a "sad" voice. Give each character in the story his or her own voice. This will make reading more interactive and fun.

• Keep the story time short enough to leave them wanting more later. When your child does ask for more, allow him or her to choose the story.

Your child may choose the same book over and over again. This may seem boring to you but it means your child is becoming more familiar with language.

If the story is long, you may want to only "read" the pictures. Make reading interactive. Let your child begin to "read" the pictures and tell you the story.

Or, ask your child to "read" the voice of one of the characters.

During the day, look for ways to add to the messages in the story. Watch for opportunities to relate everyday experiences to what your child has read. Ask him or her who you have read about that did something similar to what he or she is doing.

Continue to read aloud together even after your child can read alone. Keep the fun going by taking turns. The more people your child sees and hears reading aloud, the more he or she will be turned on to books and learning. Following some of the above tips will get you started on successful reading experiences.

Remember that it is important that children start learning about food and developing positive eating behaviors when they are very young. Healthful food habits should be developed for a lifetime. The home environment is the first place that children learn about food. Start by reading a food related story to your child and then take off with a cooking activity, doing a craft or playing games related to foods. All of these things can support your child's nutrition literacy. The nutrition and literacy skills you take time to develop now will last a lifetime!

Kyle Hibsham and Angel Stillman think some of the items, available for bid at the Manheim Christian Day School, are "pretty neat."

School Prepares For Benefit Auction

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Everyone at Manheim Christian Day School (MCDS) is a buzz with activity, getting ready for our annual benefit auction. The auction will be held Friday and Saturday, Apr. 27 and 28. The weekend's activities begin Friday at 3 p.m. with a chicken barbecue, when either a half of a chicken or leg and thigh dinners may be purchased. Dinners are available at the school gym. Halves of chicken may be picked up at Manheim gazebo and Longenecker's Hardware Store. Preview the sale items, enjoy the display of art, and admire the colorful array of local quilts and wall hangings before the general auction begins Friday at 6 p.m.

Class projects, children's auction, and Winross trucks will be auctioned.

Saturday's activities will begin with a country breakfast, served at 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. The auction will be 9 a.m. The art auction is at 11:45 a.m. and the quilt auction at 1 p.m. Some of the more unusual sale items are an orthodontic treatment package and a rental of a Chrysler PT Cruiser for a weekend.

An abundance of homemade food and baked goods will be available throughout the day. Join MCDS for a fun-filled weekend in the country. MCDS is along Route 72, just north of Manheim. Look for the big tents.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

It must be something I ate," is often the explanation people give for a bout of homegrown "Montezuma's Revenge" (diarrhea) or some other unwelcome gastrointestinal upset. Tens of millions of cases of food-borne diarrhea disease occur in the United States every year.

The prime causes of food-borne illness include bacteria and other organisms which may be found in a wide range of foods, including meat, milk and other dairy products, coconut, fresh pasta, spices, chocolate, seafood, and even water.

Unpasteurized apple cider, egg product, tuna, potato, and macaroni salads, and cream-filled pastries harboring these pathogens also are implicated in food-borne illnesses, as are fresh vegetables and produce.

Poultry is the food most often contaminated with disease-causing organisms. It's been estimated that 60 percent or more of raw poultry sold at retail probably carries disease-causing bacteria.

Bacteria have been found in raw seafood. Oysters, clams, mussels, scallops, and cockles may be carriers of the hepatitis A virus. Careless food handling sets the stage for the growth of disease-causing "bugs." For example, hot or cold foods left standing too long at room temperature provides an idea climate for bacteria to grow. Improper cooking also plays a role in food-borne illness.

Foods may be cross contaminated when cutting boards and kitchen tools that have been used to prepare a contaminated food, such as raw chicken, are not cleaned before being used for another food such as vegetables.

The idea that the food on the dinner table can make someone sick may be disturbing, but here are many steps you can take to protect your families and dinner quests. It's just a matter of following basic rules of food safety.

Prevention of food poisoning starts with your trip to the supermarket. Pick up your packaged and canned foods first. Don't buy food in cans that are bulging or dented or in jars that are cracked or have loose or bulging lids. Look for any expiration dates on the labels and never buy outdated food. Likewise, check the "use by" or "sell by" date on dairy products such as cottage cheese, cream cheese, yogurt, and sour cream and pick the ones that will stay fresh longest in your refrigerator.

If you have a health problem especially one that may have impaired your immune system, don't eat raw shellfish and use only pasteurized milk and cheese, and pasteurized or process ciders and juices. Choose eggs that are refrigerated in the store. Before putting them in your cart, open the carton and make sure that none are cracked or leaking.

Save to the last frozen foods and perishables such as meat, poultry or fish. Always put these products in se0parate plastic bags so that drippings don't contaminate other foods in your shopping cart.

Check for cleanliness at the meat or fish counter and the salad bar. For instance, cooked shrimp lying in the same bed of ice as raw fish could become contaminated. When shopping for shellfish, buy from markets that get their supplies from state-approved sources; stay clear of vendors who sell shellfish form roadside stands or the back of a truck. And if you're planning to harvest your own shellfish, heed posted warnings about the safety of the water. Take an ice chest along to keep frozen and perishable foods cold if it will take more than an hour to get your groceries home.

Big Vacations Start With Small Savings

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Vacation, by definition, is a period of time devoted to pleasure, rest, or relaxation. But with today's busy schedules, it can be difficult to find the time to get away. And, doing so without racking up hefty bills can be impossible for many hopeful travelers.

According to Consolidated Credit Counseling Services, Inc. (www.debtfree.org), the average family will spend about $3,000 on food and lodging for a two-week vacation. Add in transportation and the number just gets bigger. But, with a little planning, your vacation can be pleasurable, relaxing and affordable.

Transportation is half the battle. One of the most expensive costs of any vacation is transportation. If you plan ahead you can often save over last-minute purchases. Be sure to comparison shop because airline competition is fierce. Keep your schedule flexible when it comes to departure and arrival times and days, especially off-peak times. Traveling during these times can add up to substantial savings.

Getting around once you arrive is the other half of the battle. A rental car is a popular means to explore your destination. And, again, plan in advance to avoid last-minute hassles and fees. Many rental agencies will require you to sign a collision damage waiver. The waiver is a form of insurance and can be costly — even more so than the cost of your rental. Before you rent a car, check with your auto insurance agency to see if you have rental coverage. If you find that you are not covered, expand your policy. For only a few pennies a day, you'll be protected whenever you need to rent a car.

Don't think that you are limited to renting a car. Public transportation is an excellent way to sightsee. An average bus fare is $1, compared to a $10 taxi ride. Once you arrive at your destination, contact the visitor's bureau to pick up a schedule and route map. The visitor's bureau can also assist you with lodging and dining facilities that will meet your needs and your budget.

The next stop on your vacation planning tour is lodging. Remember that luxury is in the eye of the beholder. Before you choose a hotel, decide what amenities you need and what you can live without. A hotel health club with spa and masseuse may be exactly what you've been daydreaming about. However, a traveling family may be more concerned with making sure an indoor pool and in-room refrigerator are available. Traveling off-season will save you money that you can be put towards other areas of your vacation.

If you call the hotels directly and speak with the reservations department, you may find that they have additional packages and saving plans available. The hotel chain's toll-free 800 number may not offer as much detail. When you make your reservation, remember to use your entertainment coupon books and club memberships. Typically, there are coupons and discounts available at national hotel chains with savings up to 50 percent.

One luxury to look for when selecting your hotel is the continental breakfast. While it may seem small, it is one extra that is typically well worth it because meals will rapidly eat up your spending money. Hotels frequently offer free children's meals with an adult purchase; this works well for dinner. If the hotel offers a small refrigerator in your room, pack food for sandwiches and fruit and beverages to be eaten throughout the rest of the day.

Now for the fun part! There is no end to the tourist attractions but forget the concierge and pick up the local paper for a listing of events, museums, concerts and shows. Many events are free and you get a true feel for the local flair. In addition, check with the Chamber of Commerce at your destination for advice on places to visit. Most will provide a wealth of information because their goal is to help the businesses. And, don't forget your hometown library and the Internet for destination information and weather conditions.

If golf is on the agenda, keep in mind that tee-times after 4 p.m. are reduced significantly. Mid-week theatrical performances can also be discounted. Many amusement parks offer twilight admissions and discounts on two-day passes.

Pleasure, rest and relaxation don't come without a little planning. The time you devote to your vacation before you leave will pay off with extra time and enjoyment when your trip officially begins.

What's The Big Deal? It's Only Food!

Singing Dairy Princess Captures Audiences' Attention

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Make it fun, keep it light, and make it milk sums up Heidi Miller's philosophy for teaching folks the importance of indulging in Pennsylvania's official beverage.

The Pennsylvania First Alternate Dairy Princess delights audiences with her hand-clapping, country-style singing that endorses drinking milk to ensure healthy bones and delightful smiles.

Singing and being a spokesperson for milk is "genetics," according to her grandfather Paul Miller.

Heidi's Aunt Debbie (Miller) Brubaker was the state dairy princess in 1974, and her grandmother Pat Miller served on the state Dairy Princess Promotion board for 20 years. Heidi was Dauphin County's Little Miss when she was sevenyears old.

For many years, her grandparents and their children (including Heidi's dad), known as the Singing Millers, presented programs at churches and agricultural meetings.

Now the third generation, which includes Heidi, her sister Holly, 17, brother Harrison, 15, and many cousins excel in singing talent.

"I'm a genetic nut and a strong supporter of depth of pedigrees in cows. It carries over to humans too," their grandfather claims.

Heidi, daughter of J. Michael and Linda Miller, helps on the family farm. The 253-acre farm, about 15 minutes from Harrisburg city limits, was purchased by her grandfather in 1957.

In 1989, Heidi's dad Michael purchased the farm. About three years ago, the Holstein herd was dispersed, and the family raises replacement heifers and hay for horses. Both parents hold down full-time, off-the-farm jobs.

When it had been suggested that Heidi and Holly sell their calves at the dispersal sale, both balked. "No way," said Holly, who is nicknamed the "Cow Girl" because of her affinity toward cows.

Evidence that dreams do come true is shown by this photo of Heidi, 5, who dreamed of becoming dairy princess by playing dress up. This was also the year that Heidi sang her first solo at church. Today she is both an accomplished soloist, sings alto in a gospel quartet, and is the state alternate dairy princess.

The whole court in Dauphin County Dairy Promotion participates in singing milk's message in karaoke. Heidi and Holly with, Little Misses including their cousin Emily Miller with her mother Christy, and sisters Rachel and Abigail Crissinger.

The sisters kept their calves to show at county and state levels. Both have achieved success. Several weeks ago, Holly's cow, Christmas Belle, went Excellent. Previously, it had placed first as a 4-year-old at the State Junior Show and at the 2001 State Farm Show.

Heidi's heifer, Marsha, was named junior champion at the Dauphin County 4-H Roundup and first at the 2000 Lebanon Area Fair. It's due to calf any day, in time for Heidi to prepare her for her last year of 4-H showing.

"Be proud to be a farmer," Heidi tells people involved in agriculture.

It's advice she credits her grandfather for instilling in her. That advice, Heidi believes, has enabled her to be a positive spokesperson in the Central Dauphin High School, where she is the only farm girl in her class.

She allows her farming knowledge to permeate her activities. For example, Heidi took advantage of a class assignment to prepare a persuasive speech by talking about the importance of drinking milk. Classmates graded the speeches, and every one credited her with having one of the top three placings of the whole class.

Heidi backs up her talk with action. "I always drink my milk," Heidi said about school lunches.

"My classmates and teachers think it is so neat that I live on the farm," she said.

In fact, many of Heidi's friends show up at the farm at 3 a.m. to help her prepare her animals for showing.

"They think showing is so cool," Heidi said.

Heidi said the school has been so supportive of her need to miss school in order to promote the dairy industry. It is surprising, since the school is not in an agriculture district. Teachers and classmates have dubbed Heidi "Dairy Fairy."

Heidi was first crowned dairy princess for Dauphin County last June. In the fall, she was crowned Pennsylvania Alternate, which gave her unique promotional skit more exposure.

In addition to singing at local events, Heidi has sang before Pennsylvania Governor Thomas Ridge, opened Pennsylvania Farm Show the past two years by singing the National Anthem, and sang at many other state functions.

"Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes has really opened some doors for me," Heidi said.

Few dairy farms are left in Dauphin County. In fact, the dairy promotion committee had not been active for about 14 years until resurrected last year by Heidi's mom and grandmother.

"The hardest part was getting the program started here again, and making all those contacts. We'd like to keep it going," Heidi said of the promotional opportunities in the county.

Heidi and Holly are also part of a Gospel quartet that performs in churches and other events. Heidi and Holly play piano and study private voice lessons. Voice lessons are in classical music, which Heidi doesn't enjoy as much as Southern Gospel, but she said the training really helps in all styles of singing.

Heidi provides piano accompaniment for four choirs at Central Dauphin High School and is the church pianist. She also plays for weddings, funerals, and other events. Heidi can also play violin and French horn.

Holly sings soprano and plays the flute and cello.

"I think it's really neat that I can combine my two loves," Heidi said of dairy promotion and singing.

Bookings can be made by contacting the Millers at (717) 599-5818.

This cowgirl, Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Heidi Miller, sings a country western tune she wrote in praise of milk.

Investing Possible With Small Sums

RUTGERS, N.J. — Many people think you need a lot of money to get started as an investor. This simply is not true. There are dozens of available options for people who have $1,000 or less to invest.

The best place to begin is with a tax-deferred plan, such as 401(k)s for corporate workers and 403(b)s for school and nonprofit employees. You can start with as little as one percent of your pay and can deduct the amount saved on your federal tax return. Contributions and earnings grow tax-deferred until withdrawal.

If you're already investing in an employer plan, invest more. "Kick it up a notch" by saving one percent or more of your pay. The best time to do this is when your income increases or a household expense, like child care, ends.

The earlier you "kick it up a notch" by investing more in a tax-deferred employer plan, the better. Someone with 30 years to invest and a $40,000 income can accumulate almost $75,000 by age 65. Workers with 20 years to invest and a $50,000 income would have $33,000 more at retirement by setting aside one percent of their pay.

Once you've funded an employer plan, the next place to invest with small dollar amounts is an individual retirement account or IRA. The maximum annual investment is $2,000, but you can invest gradually as you earn money. For example, eight deposits of $250 each. You may or may not be able to deduct contributions to a traditional IRA, depending on your income and access to an employer retirement plan.

After you've invested in tax-deferred accounts like 401(k)s and IRA's, consider additional investment for your taxable accounts. Stocks can be purchased in small amounts through investment clubs and company dividend reinvestment plans and direct purchase plans. Some online brokerage firms also open accounts for $1,000. You no longer need a lot of money and a broker to buy stock today. It is possible to buy stock on a shoestring.

Fixed-income investments can also be purchased in small dollar amounts. The safest of all are Treasury securities, which are debts of the U.S. government. Treasury bills come in 3-, 6-, and 12-month denominations. Notes run from 2 to 10 years and bonds are issued for 30 years. The rate paid to investors is determined by periodic auctions. Interest on Treasury securities is exempt from state income tax.

Other low-cost fixed-income investments include corporate bonds and zero-coupon bonds. Corporate bonds are debts of for-profit companies and are generally sold in $1,000 increments. Zero-coupon bonds can be issued by corporations, state and local governments, or the federal government and are sold at a deep discount, perhaps $200 or $200 for a bond that will mature to a face amount of $1,000.

Many mutual funds can also be purchased for $1,000 or less. Mutual fund portfolios are not only professionally selected but professionally managed. Funds are constantly buying and selling securities. Initial required investments are set by individual funds and can vary from $250 or less to $25,000 or more. For funds that require more than $1,000 to open an account, three exceptions are generally made: IRAs and retirement accounts, minors' accounts, and automatic investment plans.

Remember, time is as precious an investment resource as money is. Even small amounts of money, with compound interest over time, will grow to significant sums. When there's a will, there is a way. You don't need a last name like Gates or Buffet to become a successful investor.

Dairy Of Distinction Highlights Well-Kept Dairies

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm

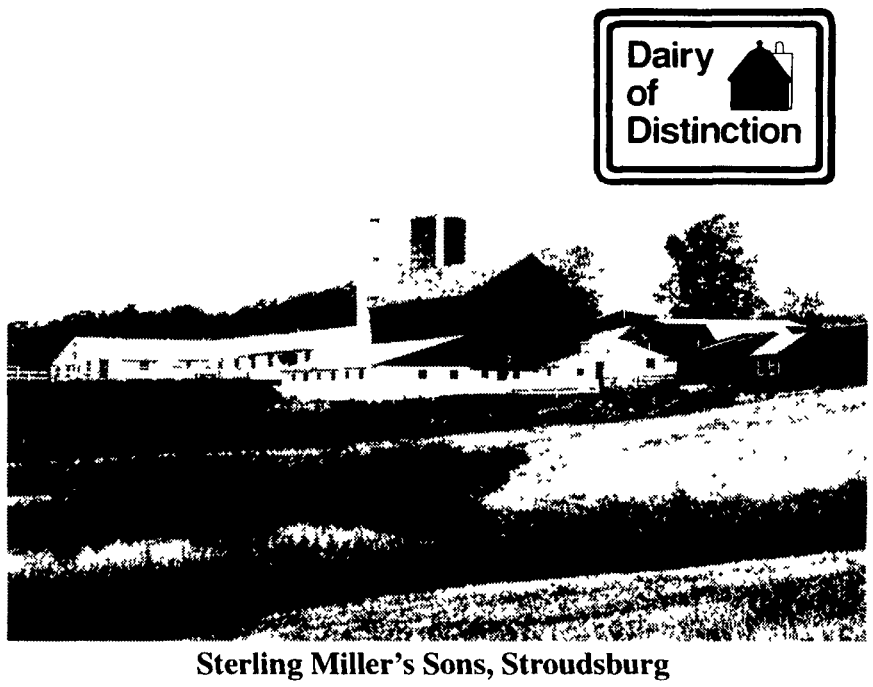
"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Roadside judging will take place in May Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management.

Winning farms will be notified in late June Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications



Sterling Miller's Sons, Stroudsburg

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not quality, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requality will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2001 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm

Breast Cancer Awareness Program

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — A breast cancer awareness program is scheduled for April 24 at the Bird-in-Hand Fire Hall, 7 p.m.

The free program, presented by health care workers and the American Cancer Society, addresses risk factors for breast cancer, value of regular check ups, the role of the American Cancer Society, the importance of mammography, and methods for self breast examination. Refreshments and door prizes will be given.

For more information, call Pat Spangler, (717) 656-6122 (daytime) or (717) 687-7434 (evenings).

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

QUESTION — A York County reader wants a recipe for Chicken-Peanut Casserole that tastes like that served at Hershey Farms Restaurant.

QUESTION — Eleanore Henne, Bernville, wants a recipe to make cashew brittle in the oven, not on the burner. She does not have a microwave so do not send directions using a microwave.

QUESTION — Dotty Gaul, Douglassville, writes that when she was growing up in the Harrisburg area during the 1950s, her family went to the Blue Parasol, a drive-in restaurant with curb service. They served pork barbecue sandwiches with no tomato sauce but with relish. She thinks it was pork simmered in chicken broth with some other ingredients. Does anyone have a recipe that sounds similar to what Dotty describes?

QUESTION — A. Guidas wants a recipe for pumpkin funnel cakes.

QUESTION — A Gordonville reader wants a sour dough recipe. She tasted some from the Reading Terminal Market, and would like to have a recipe that is similar to that sold there.

QUESTION — C. Faus wants to know how to make homemade rice cakes. She writes they are nice for wheat-free diets but expensive to buy.

ANSWER — Here are some more favorite cake recipes from Janet Spangler, York Springs.

White Chocolate Cake

1 box white cake mix
1¼ cups water
⅓ cup cooking oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
3-ounce white chocolate baking bar, vanilla-flavored candy coating or almond bark, chopped, melted

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Make frosting (recipe follows) before baking cake. Grease and flour 9x13-inch pan. In large bowl, combine all ingredients except white chocolate baking bar. Beat on low speed until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Gradually beat in melted white chocolate baking bar, beating until well blended. Pour batter into greased and floured 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-33 minutes. Test for doneness using a toothpick. Cool 10 minutes.

Frosting:

16-ounce can creamy supreme vanilla frosting
3-ounce white chocolate baking bar, vanilla flavored candy coating or almond bark, chopped, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
8-ounces whipped frozen topping, thawed

In a large bowl, beat frosting at medium speed, gradually add 3-ounces melted white chocolate. Beat at high speed 30 seconds or until smooth and well blended. Fold in vanilla and whipped topping. Refrigerate.

Variation: Can transform this recipe into white chocolate fudge cake by adding fudge filling:

¼ cups confectioners' sugar
6-ounces semi-sweet chocolate chips
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons light corn syrup

In small saucepan over low heat, beat all fudge filling ingredients until melted and well blended, stirring constantly. Spread fudge filling over warm cake. Cool completely before frosting cake. Garnish with chocolate curls.

Grandma's Fruitcake

2 cups brown sugar
2 cups hot water
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup black walnuts, chopped
2 cups raisins
2 cups currants or chopped dates

Boil mixture 5 minutes. Add the following ingredients after sifting them together:

3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves

Bake in greased and floured 9x13-inch baking pan at 350 degrees until done. A few days after baking, lay a moist tea towel on cake to keep it moist.

I love to bake a lot of cakes, but this is the one I like best to eat. This is a family heirloom recipe from my Grandma Madilla Slaybaugh who died in 1957.

ANSWER — Here is a recipe from Mrs. Oberholtzer, Annville.

Apricot Crumb Pie

1 pound dried apricots
1 quart water
½ teaspoon salt

Bring mixture to a boil and boil 30 minutes. Thicken by combining ¼ cup cornstarch and 1 cup cold water to make a paste. Add 1½ cups sugar. cook until clear and sugar is dissolved. Cool. Pour filling into two unbaked pie shells. Sprinkle with crumbs.

Crumbs:

1 cup flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup butter

Mix together ingredients to make crumbs. Sprinkle on pie filling and bake pies at 375 degrees for 30-40 minutes.

ANSWER — Holly Galinski, Plumsteadville, wanted a recipe for a combination of baked seafood using shrimp, scallops, real crab meat, and flounder. Thanks to Debbie Reynolds for sending recipes she enjoys.

Shrimp & Potato Packets

4 cups peeled, sliced potatoes
1 cup sliced mild onions
1 pound shrimp
½ cup mushrooms, optional
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon garlic salt
Salt and pepper

Peel shrimp and set aside. Cut four pieces of foil about 20-inches long. In center of each piece, layer half of potatoes, ¼ cup onions, and shrimp. Sprinkle with seasonings and dot with butter. Fold foil to close and seal. Place on grill for 20 minutes until potatoes are soft. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Seafood Casserole

1 cup crabmeat
½ pound shrimp
½ pound scallops
½ pound flounder or haddock
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups white sauce (recipe follows)

White sauce:

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
2 cups milk

Melt butter on low heat, add flour, salt and pepper. Gradually add milk. Simmer constantly until smooth and thick, stir all the time.

Clean shrimp. Saute shrimp, scallop and fish until opaque. Add seafood and crab meat into greased casserole dish. Pour white sauce over seafood.

Top with bread crumbs and sprinkle with cheddar cheese.

Seafood Chowder

4 cups diced potatoes
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup celery
8 cups milk or less
Salt and pepper to taste
Parsley
½ cup butter
1 pound crab meat
1 pound scallops in pieces
1 pound shrimp

Cook potatoes, celery, and carrots until soft. Drain and add butter, milk, salt, pepper, and parsley. Heat until butter is melted. Peel shrimp and cut into pieces, saute seafood in small amounts of butter until opaque. Add seafood to milk mixture. Thicken slightly with flour and water.

I also add cod cut into bite-sized pieces. I use part canned milk for a richer flavor. Eat and enjoy.

4-H HAPPENINGS

North Mountain 4-H Market Goat Club

The March 10 meeting of the North Mountain Market Goat Club was held at the Dresch's farm. The Secretary Chris Warner took roll call.

The Club Leader Doug Dresch showed every member of the club how to trim your goat's hooves. The club divided into three groups and practiced trimming goat hooves on different goats. The new members of the club and the previous members of the club chose their North Mountain Market Goat Club shirts.

The last meeting of goat club, Mar. 24, was also held at the Dresch's farm and the Leader Doug Dresch demonstrated how to dehorn billy goats. The members also learned how to castrate their goats.

Snyder Co. 4-H Dairy Club Elects Officers

PAXTONVILLE (Snyder Co.) — The Snyder County Eager Beaver 4-H Dairy Club met recently at the Paxtonville U.M. Church.

At this meeting, officers were elected for the year 2001 as follows: president, Amanda Hauck; vice president, Joe Adams; secretary, Matt Hauck; assistant secretary, Marissa Ewing, treasurer, Andrew Snook; and newstaff, Jarred Hassinger, Aaron Harris, and Jared Harris.

North Mountain 4-H Club

The last meeting of the North Mountain 4-H Club was held in March at the Waterworks Fire Hall. Projects that were demonstrated at this meeting were cooking, sign language and crafts.

April 13, there will be a tractor restoration field trip for the members in the tractor restoration project. April 28, members who sold 4-H cookies will hold a swimming party at the YMCA.

April 20-22, there will be a preteen retreat for kids ages 10-12. The next meeting will be held on April 30 at the Water-Works Fire Hall.

Glenburn 4-H Sewing Club Taking New Members

SCRANTON, (Lackawanna Co.) — The Glenburn 4-H Sewing Club is now taking registrations for youth to sign up for 4-H textile science projects. In 4-H, members learn basic clothing construction skills to complete a garment of their choice, according to their experience and interest. Leaders, Hilda Lewis and Ann Northup of RR 4 Dalton, except all levels of experience from beginners to advanced including tailoring and formalwear. Both boys and girls ages 10-19 years are encouraged to register by calling the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at 963-6842.

4-H is the youth educational program of Penn State University and Cooperative Extension. It helps boys and girls ages 8-19 to:

- Acquire knowledge and life skills.
- Develop attitudes and abilities to cooperate with others.
- Learn to accept and carry out responsibility.
- Develop self-confidence and communication skills.
- Appreciate the value and dignity of work.

Adult leaders share their knowledge and skills with youth in an informal setting. Members enroll in 4-H projects such as foods, animals, gardening, leadership, etc. Projects are a tool used in teaching youth responsibility, initiative, decision-making and other life skills.

To find out more about 4-H, call Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna County at 963-6842.

Cumberland Co. 4-H Dairy Club

Cumberland Co. 4-H Dairy Club

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club ended this year's activities with their annual banquet Mar. 12.

Awards were after the turkey dinner. Janel Zinn was awarded the club's Outstanding First Year Member. Aaron Cornman received the Outstanding 4-H Dairy Member award. The Merle Miller Memorial Award was given to Michelle Ocker. The club honored its leaders by giving them awards as well.

Following the awards, there was a slide show of pictures, directed by Duane Duncan.

Wayne Co. 4-H Tractor Club Meets

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The 2001 Wayne County 4-H Tractor Club and Farm Machinery Safety Certification Program got underway Tues., Apr. 3, at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse, in Honesdale, Pa. Other meeting dates are: Apr. 10, Apr. 17, Apr. 24 and May 1.

This 4-H program is designed mainly for 14- to 16-year-old youths that intend to work on area farms this spring and summer. It can also be valuable safety training to others currently operating or working with farm tractors or other farm equipment. A total of five classroom-type meetings are scheduled.

The requirements of this 4-H project include: completing a 4-H tractor and machinery safety project book, taking and "passing" a comprehensive written examination and successfully competing in a tractor and machinery handling test. Participants must attend all five meeting plus the tractor and machinery-handling test.

Every 4-H member that completes this project will also receive the "Tractor and Machinery Maintenance and Safety Completion Certificate," which is accepted by the United States Department of Labor as proof of training for those young people working on area farms.

Contact the Wayne County Cooperative Extension for more information at (717) 253-5970, ext. 239.

"Eggspress" your creativity with these cute little planters. They are sure to perk up a sunny windowsill.

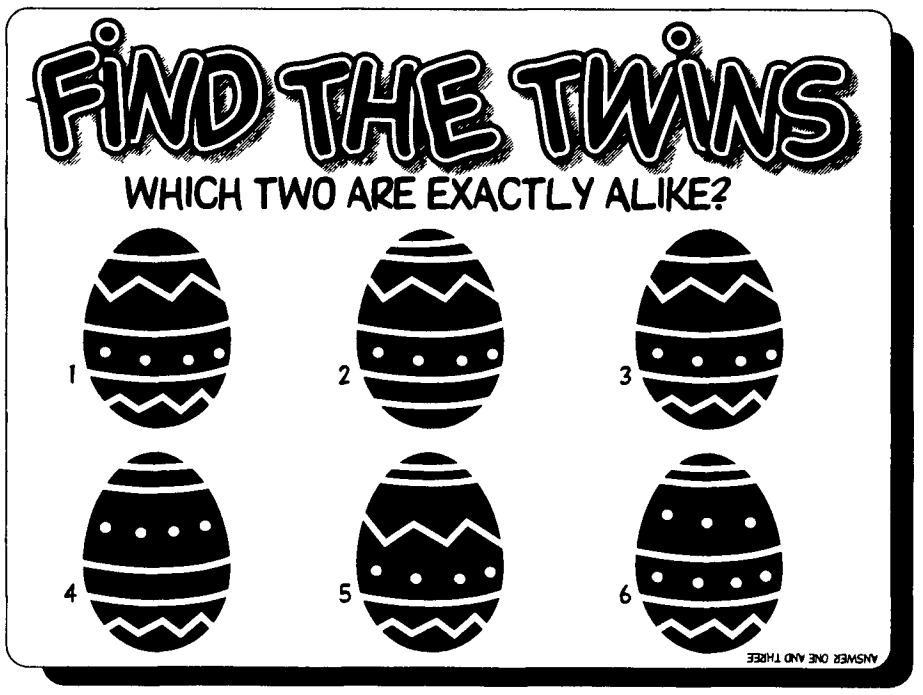
Eggshell Planters Sprout New Growth

Turn emptied eggshell halves into perfect planters for growing herbs. It doesn't matter how raggedy they are, but they should be thoroughly washed and turned upside down to drain.

Dye or decorate the egg shells as desired. Place cotton on the bottom of the decorated eggshell, followed by planting soil. Add herb seeds, and place the shell halves back ibn empty egg cartons or on a wire rack to keep upright. Water the seeds and place near sunlight as recommended on the seed package.

You may enjoy decorating the eggshell halves to look like faces. Then when the herbs begin to grow, it will look like hair is sprouting on their heads!

This weekend kids across the nation will participate in Easter egg hunts just like this group of children who attend the after-school program at Ephrata Church of the Brethren. Teen Activity Club (TAC), an after-school program for middle-school students, hosted the hunt on Tuesday.



Creating Colorful Eggs Can Be Easy And Fun

Spending a few hours dyeing Easter eggs can be a fun and rewarding way for families to celebrate the holiday together. Fortunately, you don't have to be Faberge to create a beautiful assortment of eggs. Now, thanks to assorted food colors and egg dye, you can easily make colorful eggs that will have friends and family taking second glances.

To prepare eggs: Place eggs in a single layer in saucepan. Add enough water to cover by at least one inch. Cover pan and quickly bring just to a boil. Remove from the burner and let stand, covered, about 15 minutes for large eggs (adjust time up or down by about three minutes for each size larger or smaller). Take the lid off, pour off the hot water and run eggs under cold water (or place them in ice water) until completely cooled. If you won't be coloring your eggs right after cooking them, store them in the refrigerator in their cartons.

Color my world: Combine a half-cup of boiling water, one teaspoon of vinegar and the specified number of drops of food color to achieve desired colors. Here are some fantastic color suggestions:

- Lime — 24 yellow, 4 green.
- Purple — 15 blue, 5 red.
- Cantaloupe — 24 yellow, 2 red.
- Jade — 17 green, 3 blue.
- Plum — 10 red, 4 blue.
- Raspberry — 14 red, 6 blue.
- Watermelon — 25 red, 2 blue.
- Teal — 15 green, 5 blue.
- Fuchsia — 18 red, 2 blue.
- Spearmint — 12 green, 6 yellow, 2 blue.
- Maize — 24 yellow, 1 red.
- Grape — 17 blue, 3 red.
- Orange sunset — 17 yellow, 3 red.
- Jungle green — 14 green, 6 yellow.

Dip hard-cooked eggs in dye for about five minutes. For variety, try dipping the top half in one color and the bottom half in another. Use a slotted spoon or tongs to add and/or remove eggs from dye. Don't color or hide cracked eggs and don't eat eggs that have been out of the refrigerator for more than two hours.

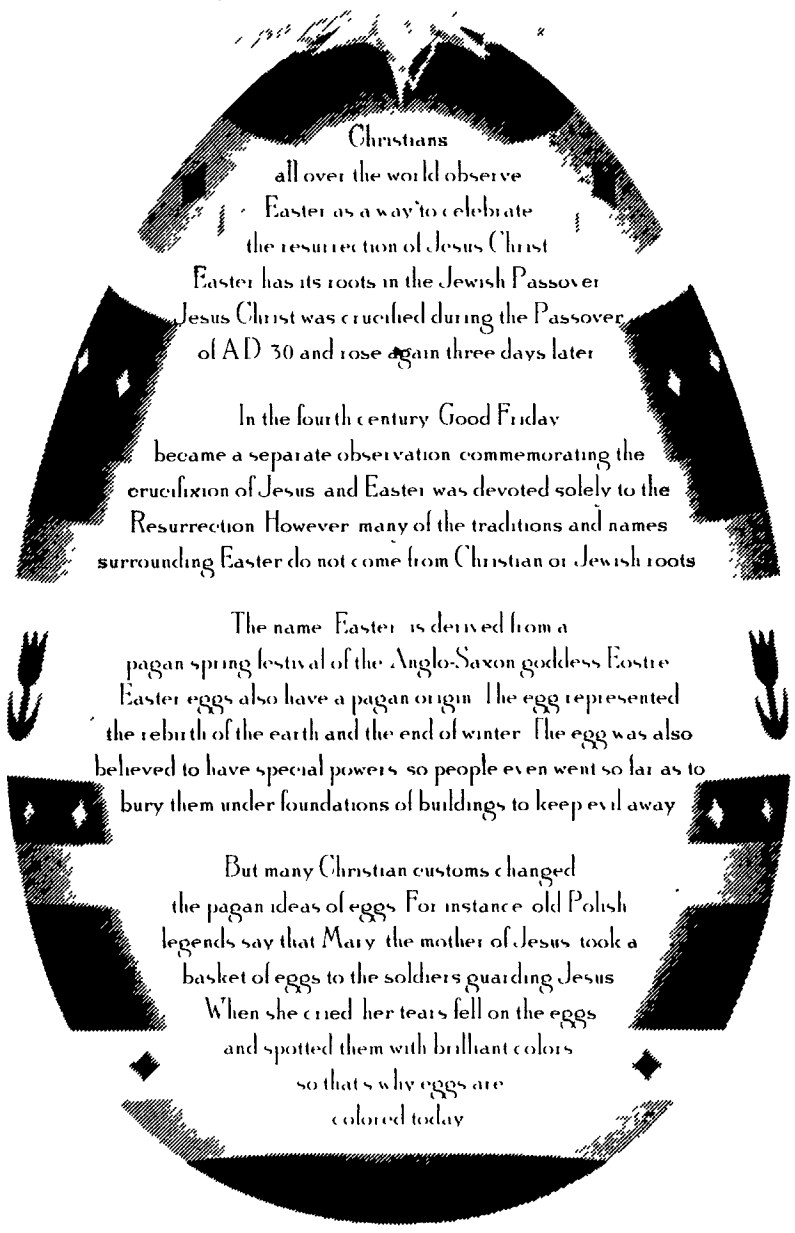
Painting eggs: In a small glass container, combine 10 drops food coloring, ½ teaspoon water and ½ teaspoon of vinegar. Paint hard-cooked eggs with a paintbrush or cotton swab. Try stripes, polka dots, zigzags or original drawings.

Pastel marbled eggs: In a shallow bowl, combine ¼ cup boiling water, on teaspoon vinegar, ⅛ teaspoon oil and four to eight drops food color. Gently roll each egg in the mixture for 30 seconds, or until the egg is the desired shade. Transfer egg to a second color mixture and repeat the process. Allow the egg to dry completely and wipe away excess oil with a paper towel.

Remember to wash your hands thoroughly while handling the eggs during cooking, cooling, dyeing and hiding.

For quick and easy cleanup, use soap and water repeatedly to remove food color from hands and most kitchen countertops. If needed, use all-purpose cleaner with bleach for countertops.

If you have questions about using food colors as egg dyes or want a free egg dyeing guide, call 1-800-632-5847 or visit www.mccormick.com.



Christians
all over the world observe Easter as a way to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ
Easter has its roots in the Jewish Passover
Jesus Christ was crucified during the Passover of AD 30 and rose again three days later
In the fourth century Good Friday became a separate observation commemorating the crucifixion of Jesus and Easter was devoted solely to the Resurrection However many of the traditions and names surrounding Easter do not come from Christian or Jewish roots
The name Easter is derived from a pagan spring festival of the Anglo-Saxon goddess Eostre Easter eggs also have a pagan origin The egg represented the rebirth of the earth and the end of winter The egg was also believed to have special powers so people even went so far as to bury them under foundations of buildings to keep evil away
But many Christian customs changed the pagan ideas of eggs For instance old Polish legends say that Mary the mother of Jesus took a basket of eggs to the soldiers guarding Jesus
When she cried her tears fell on the eggs and spotted them with brilliant colors so that s why eggs are colored today

West Snyder FFA Wins Area Parliamentary Procedure Event

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — West Snyder FFA members participated in the SUN Area Parliamentary Procedure and Public Speaking Career Development Events held Tues., Mar. 27. These events involved FFA chapters from Snyder, Union, and Northumberland counties. Selinsgrove FFA Chapter served as the host for the event.

In the parliamentary procedure event, team members were given 20 minutes to demonstrate parliamentary abilities. The West Snyder teach which placed first included Kate Heeter, Jenna Briggs, James Briggs, James Wright, Derek Fetterolf, Jodi Fetterolf, Phaedra Wray, Tiffany Esbenshade, and Amanda Shaffer. Ciara Klinger served as the alternate in the event. The team advanced to the North Central FFA Regional event which will be held — Apr. 25 at Penn College in Williamsport.

In the Conservation Public Speaking event, contestants prepared a six to eight minute speech on soil, air, water, or wildlife conservation. Phaedra Wray placed first with her conservation speech on Wetlands. In the Junior Public Speaking event, first year FFA members in grades seven through 10 prepare and deliver a four to six minute speech on an agricultural topic. Brad Novinger placed third in the Junior Public Speaking CDE. Both Phaedra and Brad will advance to the regional event.

In the General Public Speaking event, FFA members prepare a six to eight minute speech on an agricultural topic of their choice. Heather Hollenbach and Daphne Wagner placed fourth and fifth, respectively. In the FFA Creed Speaking event, first year agriculture students in ninth or 10th grade recite the FFA Creed. Spencer Etzler and Jessica Harper placed fifth and sixth respectively.

Cedar Crest FFA Holds Millennium Quiz

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Cedar Crest FFA held their annual quiz contest recently to celebrate National FFA Week 2001.

The contest was open to all Cornwall-Lebanon School District employees. To participate, employee had to answer 10 multiple choice questions about the FFA. They had one week to accomplish this task. Prizes were awarded to the winners.

Many employees tied for first and a drawing was held to determine first, second and third place prizes. Keith Hysick won first place and received a $30 gift certificate to Hoss's Steak and Seahouse. Mrs. Katie Brown won second place and received an FFA T-shirt. Miss Allison Martin won third place and received an FFA beanie bear.

West Snyder FFA

Six West Snyder FFA members attended the FFA State Legislative Leadership Conference held Mar. 11-13, in Grantville.

Attending were Tiffany Esbenshade, Kate Heeter, Jess Harper, Phaedra Wray and Hannah Etzler. Jodi Fetterolf attended as a second year scholar and was selected as one of the top six applicants in the state. As a second year scholar, Jodi assisted the state officer team in the administration of the conference.

The FFA members in attendance learned table etiquette, opportunities that the FFA offers, how to read a legislative bill, and how a bill becomes a law through the legislative process. They split into blue and gold groups (representative of the majority and minority government parties). Each person also served on a committee for one of the six legislative bills. Kate Heeter and Phaedra Wray served as chairpersons for their committees.

All who attended experienced the entire process from committee discussions to party meetings and finally the voting to pass some bills to law and fail others.

The FFA also toured the Hershey Chocolate Cooperation, Hershey Zoo, Founders Hall and the Milton Hershey School. Recently, members had breakfast with Pennsylvania's Representatives and Senators. After breakfast, they toured the State Capitol and visited the offices of Senator Edward Helfrick and Representative Dan Clark.

Belleville Mennonite School Auction To Feature Handmade Quilts

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — The 36th annual Belleville Mennonite School public auction is scheduled for April 20 and 21. Preparations for one of the highlights of the sale — the quilt auction — began just after Christmas.

"During three weeks in January, we set up three quilts in the Oakwood Center at Valley View Haven Retirement Community and quilted some days from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.," said Karen Zook, who serves on the quilt committee along with Norma Zook and Arlene Yoder. "We completely finished 15 quilts, but a total of 20 full-size and two twin quilts will be auctioned."

This is the third year that the quilt committee will be selling an original design made by the committee members. It's an Aztec heritage quilt with a southwestern look. Other quilts to be auctioned include patterns called Floral Garden, Double Wedding Ring, and Wreath of Roses, each featuring embroidery; a flannel Criss Cross Nine Patch; an earthtone and lavender Ohio Star Mosaic; a burgundy and blue Log Cabin, Barn Raising pattern; and a green and apricot Dresden Plate pattern.

"We're known for our quality," explains Zook. "We're known for our finer stitches. We have local buyers who want to support the school and outsiders looking for quality quilts."

A variety of wall hangings, crib quilts, afghans, knotted comforts, and pillows will also be auctioned during the school's fund-raiser.

Belleville Mennonite's Director of Development Kurt Knouse elaborated on other aspects of the sale. "The proceeds go to help underwrite the operating costs of the school. It's exciting to see the response from local businesses in supporting a Christian school. Nearly all of the merchandise is brand new — donated by businesses or handmade."

A chicken barbecue will be served from 4:00 p.m. until 7:00 on Friday, April 20, while the gift certificate auction starts at 6:30. On Saturday, breakfast begins at 6:30 a.m., followed by the auction at 8:30; children's games from 9:00 until 11:00; lunch at 11:00; outdoor auction at 11:30; quilt auction at 1:00; and the auction of 100 shares of Kish Bank Stock at 2:30.

For directions to the school, call the Belleville Mennonite School at (717) 935-2184.

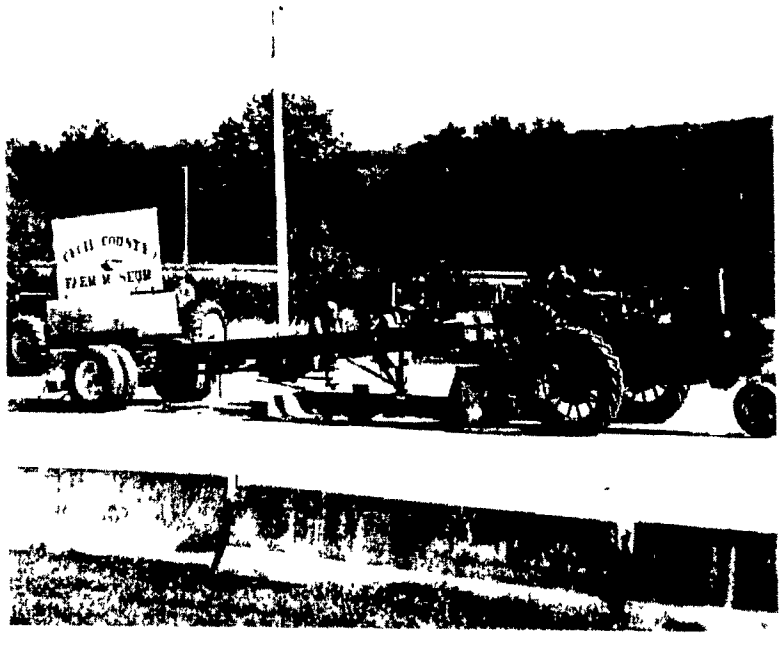
Spring Antique Tractor Pull



The Mason-Dixon Fair Association is sponsoring its first annual Spring Antique Tractor Pull on May 5. Ten classes from 2,800 pounds to 12,500 pounds will be pulled, weather permitting. Stock and modified (suitcase weights allowed) events will be provided.

The hook fee will be $10 with preregistration by May 1 and $12 after that date. Checks will be returned if the event is canceled due to weather. Registration for late registrants will begin at 9 a.m. on pull day. Weigh-ins will begin at 9 a.m. and pulls will start at 12 noon. For registration materials, call Don Merryman at (410) 838-5842.

The event will be held at the Mason-Dixon Fairgrounds located on Route 74 and Route 165 in Delta, and will benefit the 2001 Mason-Dixon Fair.

Special Tours Tell Of Unruly Cloister Youth

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The action opens with young people wearing outlandish clothing and exhibiting disrespect, parents frustrated with the actions of their children, grandparents just shaking their head. This may sound like a scene from a current television show, or just a visit to the local mall, but it happened at the Ephrata Cloister in 1749. The struggle between generations is an endless and often-told tale, but now one episode will be brought to life as the student historians of the Ephrata Cloister present special evening tours on May 4-5, between 6:30 p.m.-9 p.m. Reservations for the tours are required.

"These character interpretation tours have become so popular at Christmas time that we have decided to present them in spring as well," said Michael Showalter, museum educator at the Cloister, and adviser to the youth volunteers. During the one hour tours of the National Historical Landmark, visitors will assume the role of married members of the Cloister congregation who have come to seek advice about their children from Cloister founder Conrad Beissel. Along the journey, they discover that the community members operate a school for the children, teach the youth trades, and receive ideas about how to handle their children from the brothers and sisters at the Cloister. May 15, 1749 was declared a day of fasting, prayer and repentance to correct the disruptive behavior of the youth who sought inappropriate dress and were misbehaving. "It's a little known episode in the Cloister's history, but one with which most people will be able to relate," said Showalter.

The student historians are local junior and senior high school students who volunteer their time at the historic site offering tours, assisting with public programs, and learning about local history. The 25 member group is planning a visit to historic Williamsburg, Va. early this summer.

Founded in 1732 by Conrad Beissel, Ephrata Cloister is one of America's earliest communal societies. Gathered in unique German style buildings, the community consisted of celibate Brothers and Sisters and a married congregation of families. The life of the celibate members was characterized by strict discipline and self-denial of comfort. At the zenith of the community in the 1740s and 1750s, about 300 members worked and worshiped at the Cloister.

Following the death of the last celibate member in 1813, the married congregation formed the German Seventh Day Baptist Church. Members continued to live and worship at the Cloister until 1934. In 1941, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania acquired the historic site and began a program of restoration and interpretation. Today, nine original buildings are part of a nearly 30-acre complex open for visitors. The Ephrata Cloister Associates, a non-profit group, provide support for the continued preservation and interpretation of the historic site and operate The Museum Store at Ephrata Cloister.

Ephrata Cloister is located in Ephrata Borough, Lancaster County, on Route 322 at the intersection of Route 272. Reservations for these special tours are required. Admission is $6 for adults, $5.50 for senior citizens, $4 for youth ages 6-12, and free for children under age 6. For more information or reservations, call 733-6600.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

ANSWER — Titus Martin, 155 Pleasant Valley Rd., East Earl, wanted seeds for lady slipper flowers. Mrs. Auker, Manheim, writes that Lady Slippers also known as Touch-Me-Nots are widely available in mailorder catalogs by the name of Balsam. The flower is actually a reseeding annual and not a perennial, but are fascinating nevertheless.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted instructions for the bouncing ball centerpiece, here are two sent in by a reader.

Undersea Scene

Use a fishbowl or jar as a container for an undersea garden. Cover bottom with a layer of small pebbles or pearl chips. Add several artificial plastic plants and goldfish. Weight with tiny lead ball that is concealed among pebbles in bottom. For a rose garden, clip stem off a plastic rose and set flower flat on pebbles. Add a few mothballs.

Mix a solution of one part white vinegar and three parts water, plus ½ teaspoon baking soda for each cupful of solution. Pour solution slowly into container. It will seem a bit cloudy at first but will soon clear. Bubbles from the fizzing liquid gather on mothballs. Soon they will rise to the top, stay up briefly, then drop to bottom again, to gather more bubbles and rise. They will keep bobbing up and down for an hour or so. When the fizz is gone from the solution and bubbling stops, add more soda to start them going again. (I tried this and it did not work until I dumped in more baking soda).

Bouncing Centerpiece

Fill a large snifter with one gallon of water (reproportion if your glass is smaller). Submerge an ornament or two; a cypress stem, holly etc. Pour in 4 ounces citric acid crystals, add 2-3 dozen round white napthalene mothballs. Dump in 2 heaping teaspoons baking soda. Stand back! The action starts. The mothballs will start moving up and down, surfacing and then heading for the bottom, over and over, up and down. They will continue to move in the same mysterious way about 24 hours. To reactivate the motion, add another dose of soda. After 48 hours, replenish the snifter with fresh water and crystals.

Attention getter? Conversation piece? You'd better believe it. Due to different water conditions, the proportions of acid and soda may need to be increased.

'Gardening For Food'

YORK (York Co.) — Thomas Becker, an extension agent working in horticulture for York County, is joining a team of Walt Disney World horticulture scientists for the Epcot® International Flower and Garden Festival from Apr. 20-June 3.

As an Epcot Future Harvest Ambassador, Thomas will travel to Orlando, Fla. later this month to assist in developing gardens containing some of our area's most important food crops.

The "Healthy Soil, Healthy Food and Healthy People" exhibit at Epcot® is sponsored by Rodale Institute and partnered with The World Bank, and the Future Harvest Centers. As an agricultural educator, Thomas will share with thousands of guests daily the role science, research and extension education plays in feeding a growing world population and sustaining our government. He joins two other U.S.A. ambassadors, one from Ohio and one from California, and nine international scientists from Latin America, Africa and Asia.

"The opportunity to communicate agriculture and science to the public has always been a lifelong passion," said Thomas. "I've always been a visual learner and demonstrator. I'm looking forward to doing what I love and sharing the stories of local growers, farm marketers and gardeners."

"Thanks to innovations and methods tried by local farmers, we do have a sustainable, local food system," said Thomas. "I enjoy looking at promising solutions that can equip other scientists across the globe."

"Epcot® has a mission even my 7-year-old son can enjoy," said Thomas. "That mission uses plenty of interactive discovery activities for children. Epcot® is known world wide for its 'intriguing ideas in science' and 'entertaining guests with wonders of the real world."

"I've long been a proponent of making healthy soil by composting," said Thomas. "I never imagined I'd get an opportunity to talk about the value of replenishing our soils with people from all over the world. U.S.A. farmers today do everything they can to minimize harm to the environment. This is truly a story everyone needs to hear."

"The U.S.A. exhibit at Epcot® will feature many crops grown locally like bush beans, corn, apples, peaches, soybeans, peppers, wheat and tomatoes. Others like persimmon, okra, malabar, spinach and chickpea are more common to other parts of the United States.

If you would like more information on the Epcot® Future Harvest Ambassadors program, call Thomas at (717) 840-7408. Thomas plans to return to his extension position in York County in mid-June. I'd like to share this once in a lifetime experience with others, especially children," said Thomas. "I guess it is true what they say, 'Dreams can come true when you least expect it.'"

Ida's Notebook

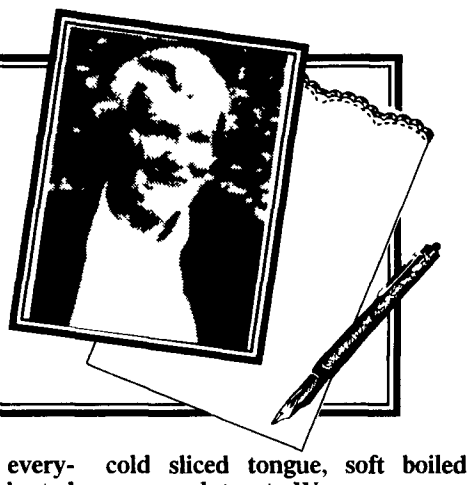
Ida Risser



This is the season when everybody asks, "Have you planted your garden?"

Usually, I say "No" as I'm willing to wait until April rather than work too wet ground in March. Somehow most things catch up with earlier plantings.

A few things have become tradition at our house when Easter comes. I remember my Grandmother Landis using dried onion skins to color hard boiled eggs. So, I always do a few as it is surprising to see the patterns that they make.

Another thing that I try to do each year is to cook smoked tongue. Long ago we hung bologna, ham, sausage and tongue in our brick smokehouse in the middle of our garden. But now I have to use liquid smoke to flavor the large beef tongue.

You see, Easter breakfast was cold sliced tongue, soft boiled eggs and toast. We were never big coffee drinkers but some days started with a cup of coffee and lots of milk.

Every morning I or the children bottled eight quarts of milk. We kept it in glass milk bottles and used a small metal funnel to bottle it. This was a regular job that some of the girls did not like.

In those days, I also made different puddings everyday as it used a quart of milk, some sugar and eggs. Somedays we had vanilla, other days chocolate, peppermint, coconut or lemon flavored to feed our hungry family.

Now, I no longer need to hide Easter baskets for them to hunt Sunday morning. But it is still fun to watch grandchildren hunt for theirs.

Pork On More Chain Store Menus

DES MOINES, Iowa — Pork is an ingredient in several of the menu items that have increased the most during the past two years, according to the newest quarterly newsletter of the Chain Account Menu Survey, Inc., based in Wheaton, Ill. Pork is a key part of three of the top five fastest-growing meal parts in food service.

According to the CAMS-base-TM data reported from A Chain Account Menu Survey Report-TM Database, fast-growing items that include pork are pizza, breakfast and pork entrees. The newsletter reports that pizza menu items grew 57 percent, breakfast items grew 16 percent and pork entrees grew 14 percent during the past two years. Most pizza meat toppings and most breakfast meats are made from pork.

The only menu item to grow faster was smoothies/freezes, with 100 percent growth. Another item included in the top five fastest-growing meal parts in foodservice was the kid's menu, with 26 percent growth.

The Chain Account Menu Survey Inc. is a quarterly newsletter that reports food trends and menu ideas from the CAMS-base, which includes the top 200 chain stores. The stores included are updated every six months.

This unbiased, food industry research echoes data collected in pork industry research, such as a checkoff-funded survey that showed new pork items on chain menus grew from 187 items in 1996 to 256 items in 1998. Also, a checkoff-funded consumer study showed 40 percent of respondents would like to see more pork on restaurant menus. A three-year study showed growth in pork usage was twice the rate of growth of total foodservice.

"One reason for the increase in U.S. pork popularity is the success of the Pork. The Other White MeatTM campaign, which showcased pork's versatility, convenience and nutritional benefits," said Steve Schmeichel, a producer from Hurley, S.D. and chairman of the Demand Enhancement Committee.

"Checkoff-funded promotions have helped consumers see more value in pork, which encourages them to pay more for pork items on menus. This encourages restaurants to upgrade their menus, including premium center-cut pork chops."

Composting Workshop

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — A composting workshop will be held at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office in Ebensburg, Tues., Apr. 24 at 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m. Registration fee is $4. Registration must be received by Wed., Apr. 18. Participants will receive a compost bin after the session.

For more information about composting, telephone DEP's compost coordinator at (717) 787-7382 or visit their Website at www.greenworks.tv to watch a video about how composting can recycle organic waste.

Berks Pageant Is May 5

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Sat., May 5, at the Berks County Agricultural Center. The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. with the pageant to follow at 8 p.m.

Ticket reservations must be made by Fri., Apr. 20. Ticket costs are $10 for adults, $8 for children 6-12 and $1 for children 5 and younger. All reservations should be made by either calling Angela Davis at (610) 926-7825 or by mailing her at 39 Bloomsburg Road, Leesport, PA 19533.

Choose Right For Healthy Fast Food

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Making healthy food choices is possible at any restaurant, gourmet or drive-through.

Go to one fast-food place and you can choose a grilled chicken salad with a bread stick. Put two tablespoons of fat-free dressing on the salad and order a glass of water, and you'll have a perfectly respectable 350-calorie lunch with 11 grams of fat. Go to another restaurant and enjoy a regular hamburger, small fries, and diet soft drink and you'll still have a respectable 490-calorie lunch, although its 20 grams of fat is about the upper limit you'd want for a smaller meal. (If your average intake is about 2,000 calories a day, you can have 65 grams of fat in a day.)

For healthier choices:

— Choose plain burgers instead of cheeseburgers. That slice of cheese can add 50 calories and 4 grams of fat, or more. Say "no thanks" to sandwiches with extras, such as bacon and mayonnaise.

Avoid fried foods, such as french fries or onion rings. Even a small serving of french fries adds anywhere from 210 to 270 calories and 10 to 13 grams of fat.

— Choose grilled chicken over fried chicken or fried fish.

— Choose smaller sandwiches rather than larger ones. At some restaurants, some of the largest sandwiches that have lots of meat, cheese, mayonnaise and other toppings have 1,000 calories and more than 60 grams of fat. Ask for nutrition information so you know what you're eating.

— Ask for fat-free or reduced-fat dressing for salads, or for a lemon wedge to top off your greens. And go easy on the dressing; often it's much more than two tablespoons. Check the label for serving size and servings per container.

— Order water, diet pop, coffee, tea, juice or low-fat milk for drinks.

For more information, read the Ohio State University Extension fact sheet, "Life in the Fast Food Lane," HYG-5555-97, available at county Extension offices and on the Internet at http://ohioline.

Antiques Center

Imagine a child's delight in finding this tin rabbit, which opens to hold candy in addition to the little cart, which could be filled with candy or decorated eggs. The tin rabbit was made in Germany, where similar pieces were common during the 1920s. Today it sells for $295.

Papier-mache eggs are highly desirable and reflect the excellent craftmanship of Germans, who often made holiday-related items. Although Americans and the Japanese also made papier-mache items, the quality is not as good. The two larger eggs are papier-mache eggs that open to hold treasures. The smaller egg is wax coated.

Treasures From Easters Past

ANNE GILBERT
Antique Detective

Easter items are highly collectible. A wide range of objects were made in materials such glass, tin, cardboard and. paper.

Tin and cardboard eggs and bunny figures, first made in the early 20th century, held candy. Some of the cardboard eggs are several feet in heighth. These days the figures can brighten kitchen decor year round.

Glass hen and egg dishes originally made in the 19th century were in colors as well as white and colorless glass. Reproductions can be found at antiques shops, shows and gift shops.

The covered hen/egg and bunny dishes were made in a variety of glass types in the mid-19th century, but have been reproduced ever since. However, the reproductions from the 1930s are also considered collectible.

There are many ways to test the glass hen and bunny dishes to be sure they aren't reproductions. In the case of milk glass, hold it up against the light. A thin, transparent (opalescent) line should follow the contour of the dish.

Another test for old milk glass is that the texture is less glossy than on the new pieces.

Beware of the brightly colored glass hen dishes made in Portugal in the 1970s. Unfortunately their paper labels on the bottoms have long since worn off.

Should you find a covered hen dish of glass marked "Vallerystahl," you have discovered a collectible French-made piece, dating between 1850 and 1939. The glass is grey in appearance.

In the mid 19th century bunny and hen dishes were also made in camphor glass. This is a cloudy, white glass that was pressed, blown, and then mold blown. It was made by many Midwestern glass manufacturers.

Among the best-known hen dishes are those made by Westmoireland in milk glass. The old pieces are heavier than the reproductions. The early pieces have a rough spot on the bottom that appears like a "C," a result of the molding process. The repros have the overlapping letters "WG."

There are also hen and rooster covered dishes in slag glass made originally in the 1880s. They can be recognized by their blending of white into color mixtures. They were also made in England at the same time. The English examples are trademarked either with an English registry mark or a peacock, which have also been reproduced.

Count your blessings if a family member decorated hollowed out eggs and turned them into egg trees. Or, if you had Slavic ancestors who fashioned painted, wood eggs.

Especially collective are the hollowed out real eggs decorated in the 1950s and 1960s, when there was a revival of home crafts. Keep your eye out at garage sales for the hollowed out, decorated eggs.

Glass eggs in a variety of sizes were painted and gilded in Victorian times. However, many originally plain milk glass eggs have been recently painted, gilded, and had decals applied to make them appear more valuable.

Americans were introduced to the wonders of Faberge eggs in 1985, when the first one, the Cuckoo egg, c.1900, was auctioned at Sotheby's. It sold for over $1 million.

Jeweler to the czars, Carl Faberge designed hundreds of objects. But, he's best known for his elaborate Easter eggs. Their mystique has grown in an ongoing Easter egg hunt. Of some 56 eggs Faberge designed for the Russian royal family, some are still not accounted for. Also missing are many of the presentation eggs he made for a limited number of his wealthiest patrons. When they reappear at auction, they sometimes sell in the millions of dollars.

Largest prices in recent years were at a 1997 Christie's auction when the "Winter Egg" of rock crystal, commissioned by the nephew of Alfred Nobel, fetched $5.6 million. The same year Sotheby's sold an imperial gift, the "Love Trophy" egg for almost $3.2 million.

What makes the eggs so special?

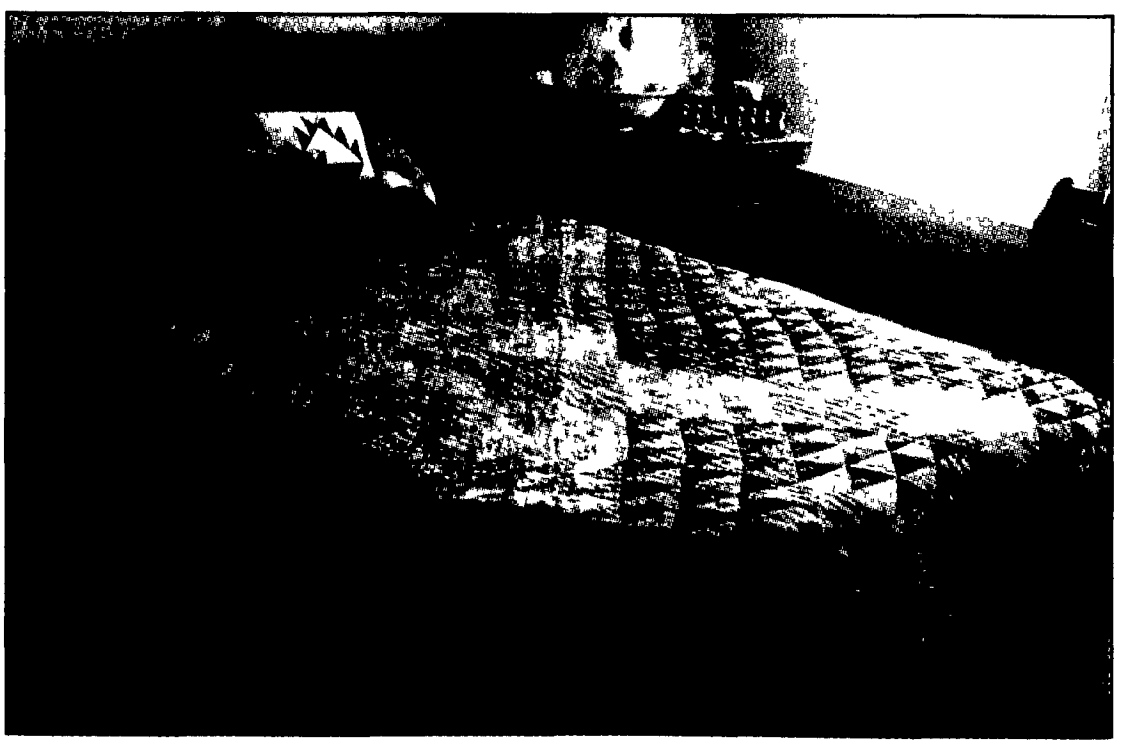
Rabbits were often popular characters in children's books during the turn of the century into the 1930s. However, books about children are preferred over books on animals according to Maxine Baurer, Gilbertsville.

Decorating Tips Of The Week



Many old quilts are small in size compared to today's requirements for queen- and king-sized beds. If you'd like to display an antique quilt on a bed, but it doesn't fit — don't despair. Try this idea from Cindy Wegaman, Berks County. Place a bedspread on the bed and position the antique quilt diagonally across it.

Embroidered Pictures To Collect

Like so many handcrafts of the past, creating embroidered pictures is almost a forgotten art. A brief revival happened during the Arts and Crafts decades (1876-1917).

Who has the time to spend weaving delicate threads into intricate and detailed subjects these days? Yet, this was one of the most popular pastimes for English ladies of the 18th and 19th centuries. These pictures are expensive collector items selling at auction for hundreds of dollars. Prices depend on eye appeal and the skills of the embroiderer.

Copies of famous paintings were translated into fine silk and chenille. Faces, arms, and legs were often painted in. Popular subjects were taken from the Old-Testament, as well as allegorical figures of the vices and virtues of kings and queens. The fabric pictures were not intended to be hung on the wall as were the original paintings.

The most highly valued paintings are those that combined stitching with painting.

The designed scene was first sketched in watercolors on a plain piece of satin or silk. The faces and hands were untouched; the rest heavily embroidered to create the impression of a relief. Other times the hands and faces were cut

Another technique called stump-work was popular as early as the second half of the mid-17th century. Another technique was bead-work.

Embroidered ship portraits began to be made around 1840 in Great Britain. They were usually unsigned and their makers unidentified. Popular legend has it that they were made by sailors during long voyages at sea. However, it is more likely that many were made on land by their sweethearts. Subjects included naval warships, private yachts and merchant vessels.

The ships are generally shown broadside, displaying their distinctive features before the wind, with full sails and oversize flags unfurled for identification. Often included are coastal scenes, nautical guideposts such as lighthouse, beacons, and other ships.

Not every ship portrait is as old as it looks, nor of top quality.

Yet another technique, Berlin wool-work became popular in England by the 1830s, a couple of decades after it was introduced in Germany. Colored worsteds were embroidered on canvas, with design printed on squared paper. The patterns were made in Berlin and were copied by counting the squares of the canvas.

Clues: The early examples of Berlin work can be recognized by the use of silk and glass beads. These are more desirable than the mid-19th century versions that used garish color worsteds and a variety of Victorian mottos and Biblical subjects. Other designs with flowers are considered more attractive.

Another category of needlework pictures is mourning art. Quality needlework and fine silk embroideries and even human hair were used. The subjects are generally weeping willows and mourners, next to a tombstone. Even if you don't like the subject, quality examples sell for more than $1,000. Because of the subject matter they often turn up at bargain prices at estate and garage sales.

Highly collectible are late 19th century English, arts and crafts embroideries with repeat patterns of flowering trees and birds. When the embroidered pictures reflect medieval era with figures and stylized arts and crafts subjects, prices can be high.

One of a pair of French silk and chenille needlework pictures. Mid-19th century. Painted hands and faces.

connection, and the use of precious gems and metals are not the only reasons for such astronomical prices. The workmanship alone warrants them. Add the mechanical skill of the interior "surprises" that Faberge invented for most of his eggs and it's easy to understand.

Consider the "Orange Tree" egg. When one of the jeweled oranges is pressed, a tiny, feathered-gold nightingale appears from the top of the tree to sing and flap it's wings.

The Faberge eggs originated as decorative Easter gifts — pendants and various objects d'art in the form of tiny eggs, popular in the 1880s. In 1884, Czar Alexander III asked Faberge to create an unusual Easter gift for his wife, the Empress Maria Feodorovna.

The first of the imperial eggs was relatively simple. It contained a golden yoke, which in turn held a tiny gold hen figurine. The czarina was so pleased that the commission came annually, with each egg containing a hidden surprise.

In 1896 when Nicholas II came to the throne he continued the tradition, adding one for his mother, the Dowager Empress.

Though Carl Faberge was born in Russia, his heritage and decorative influences are French. His grandfather fled Huguenot persecution and became a Russian subject. His father, Gustav Faberge, began training in his father's workshop and was apprenticed to a German goldsmith in Frankfurt. However, a subsequent tour of Italy and France and the techniques of enamelers and goldsmiths were his greatest influence.

In 1870, at the age of 24, he took over his father's firm. By 1882, his unique style of jewelry won him the gold medal at Moscow's Pan-Russian Exhibition...and the eye of Czar Alexander III.

The 1900 International Exposition in Paris brought Faberge international recognition, as well as the Legion d'Honneur.

Working with enamels, is considered one of the most difficult processes. Faberge combined enamels with the Guilloche process, a decorative band or border that resembles a line of interlocking circles. Today, it is rarely used, for not only the cost but also potential technical problems.

Faberge is still the acknowledged master of enameling, a process where even a tiny mistake working with the enamels at high temperatures could ruin a fine piece.

The end of the Faberge tradition came with the outbreak of the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917. Faberge fled to Switzerland and died there in 1920.

His work has been hotly collected only in the past decade, and his genius newly appreciated, even in Russia.

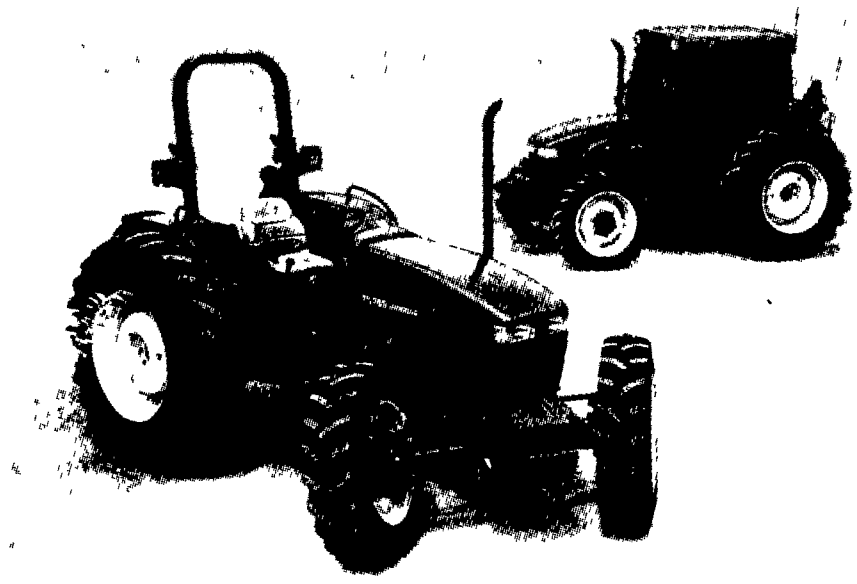
NEW HOLLAND CREDIT



Building on a good thing

You might recognize the engines, drivelines and axles on the new New Holland TS tractors. They have excellent reputations based on past performance. Thousands of customers have put these components to hard use and benefited from their performance and durability.

So, New Holland wasn't about to change a good thing. They made other improvements to these 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors instead – like increasing the horsepower, improving the comfort of the cab, relocating the fuel tank for added convenience, adding a top road speed of 25 mph, upgrading the electrical system and adding outlets and modernizing the styling.

Better see these exciting 70- to 90-PTO-hp TS tractors for yourself. And find out how good design can become even better.

NEW HOLLAND

A new standard from the 3-cylinder leaders

New Holland has raised the standards for 42 to 62 PTO hp tractors with the introduction of TND and TNS models.

The higher standards include:

- Proven engines: up to 36% torque rise
- Exclusive SuperSteer™; 76 degree turning
- Exclusive Traction Management System
- Iso-mounted, fully enclosed cab with standard A/C, heater, tilt/telescope steering, front/rear washers/wipers, best electronic dash, best visibility, and more
- Clutchless power shuttle fingertip control

State-of-the-art 16x16 Synchro Command™ transmission with 4 speeds under 1 mph

BOOMER™ THE ULTIMATE POWER TOOL

With an innovative sloped-hood design and sleek styling, Boomer compact tractors set new standards for efficiency, maneuverability, and versatility.

Wenger Announces Stewardship Award Winners

RHEEMS (Lancaster Co.) — Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc. has announced the winners of its 2001 Environmental Stewardship Award, which recognizes contract growers for their commitment to sound environmental practices.

Five farms in Pennsylvania received the award for the year 2001; Mark Widerman, Gettysburg; The Nel-Ray Farm, Myerstown; Fred Crider, Nottingham; David Fahs, York; and Dennis Herr, Elizabethtown.

Qualifications for the award include: an approved and implemented nutrient management plan, a soil conservation plan, a wash-water run-off plan, a copy of any applicable National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit, a fly control and monitoring program, and an evaluation of the overall appearance of the farm.

The winners were recognized at several award banquets held by Wenger's. In addition to being recognized, each winner will receive a half-ounce gold eagle coin and a sign with Wenger's stewardship seal and the year of the award to post at their farm.

The award program was introduced in the April of 2000 and is open to all contract pullet and egg producers of Wenger's. There is no limit on the number of growers who can qualify for the award, and recipients will be encouraged to renew the award each year.

"We recognize that we need to accept the responsibility for providing solutions to the problems of nutrient management," said Wenger's CEO, F. Barry Shaw. "The Stewardship Award Program is part of our commitment to environmental stewardship."

Meat Packers Request Certificates To Ensure BSE-Free Livestock

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Meat Institute (AMI) Board of Directors has approved a new, voluntary certification initiative in which cattle marketers would be asked by their beef packing customers to certify that their livestock met all Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requirements regarding the BSE feed ban.

AMI has distributed a model certificate to its member companies, describing it as a "best business practice." The document also certifies that animal drugs were used legally on the livestock being sold.

The model certificate "responds to requests from many of our industry's customers," said AMI President and CEO J. Patrick Boyle. "We want to reassure both our customers and consumers that the cattle we process into beef products meet all federal requirements, including their diets and medications." Boyle said the model certificate was developed in consultation with numerous meat and livestock organizations.

Concurrently, the animal feed industry and the rendering industry are working to launch their own certification programs. The groups are working with independent, private sector organizations to audit manufacturing facilities to ensure that they meet FDA requirements related to BSE prevention. For the feed industry, those requirements include the segregation of cattle and sheep byproducts from other livestock and poultry byproducts. For the rendering industry, proper labeling and documentation are required.

"These private sector certification initiatives for cattle, feed and rendered products do not replace FDA's own inspection programs," Boyle commented. "However, they do add an extra level of surveillance and assurance to our customers and consumers that the industries involved in cattle ranching and beef processing are in compliance with FDA regulations and continue to make every effort to reinforce the U.S. firewalls that have kept BSF out of this country."

The text of the AMI model certificate reads:

The undersigned certifies that, to the best of his/her/its knowledge, none of the livestock described herein are adulterated within the meaning of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (i.e., none of the cattle or other ruminants have been fed any feed containing protein derived from mammalian tissues not in compliance with 21 CFR 589.2000 and none of the livestock have an illegal level of drug residues.)

AMI represents the interests of packers and processors of beef, pork, lamb, veal and turkey products and their suppliers throughout North American. Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the Institute provides legislative regulatory and public relations services, conducts scientific and economic research, offers marketing and technical assistance and sponsors education programs.

Studies Favor Ammonium Sulfate For Corn Starter

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Conventional wisdom says phosphorus is the key nutrient for corn starters. But two Penn State studies suggest growers can produce as good or better yields with ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S).

"Now that many of our fields are high in phosphorus, it looks like it's time to turn our attention to other nutrients," said Greg Roth, Penn State agronomist.

Every 100 pounds of ammonium sulfate supplies 21 pounds of nitrogen and 24 pounds of sulfur.

Last year, Roth included ammonium sulfate in corn starter trails in Hershey and Rocksprings. The soil type was a Hagerstown silt loam, which has traditionally been considered nonresponsive to sulfur.

"Ammonium sulfate improved early-season corn growth in both locations," said Roth. "At Rocksprings ammonium sulfate also increased yields by 12 bushels per acre."

Penn State agronomist Doug Beegle also looked at ammonium sulfate in corn starters last year. Working through county agents, he compared a farmer's regular starter to ammonium sulfate. On high P-testing soils, ammonium sulfate was as good or better than the complete NPK blend, Beegle reported.

"On high-P soils, there are environmental concerns about applying even more phosphate," said Beegle. "By switching to ammonium sulfate, growers can give corn an early-season boost without putting on more phosphate."

Low-phosphate blends made with ammonium sulfate also cost less than high-P formulations, noted Roth.

Corn seedlings still need phosphorus, said Beegle. But with ammonium sulfate in the starter, corn seedlings can get the P_2O_5 they need from the soil instead of from extra fertilizer.

"Sometimes when seedlings are in cold soil, the roots grow so slowly that they can't reach residual phosphate," Beegle explained. "By putting nitrogen in corn starter, you're stimulating root growth so that roots can reach residual P_2O_5 easier and faster." In addition, the ammonium form of nitrogen enhances root uptake of phosphorus.

Ammonium sulfate is safe for popup applications, as well as for two-by-two placement, as long as appropriate rate guidelines are followed.

Genetically Modified Foods: Focus Of Pew Initiative On Food And Biotechnology

WASHINGTON D.C. - A new survey reveals that Americans know little about genetically modified (GM) foods, are uncertain about their safety, and change their views about safety when more information about widespread use of GM foods is revealed.

The announcement of survey findings marks the launch of the Pew Initiative on Food and Biotechnology, a new effort committed to bringing reliable information to the national debate about agricultural biotechnology. The Initiative is a project of the University of Richmond funded by the Pew Charitable Trusts.

The survey determined that a plurality of consumers (46 percent) do not know what to think about the safety of GM foods. Those who do have a definitive opinion, however, are evenly split on the safety of GM foods, with 29 percent of respondents stating they believe GM foods are safe and 25 percent of respondents stating they believe GM foods are unsafe. Despite this uncertainty (or perhaps due to), views about safety do not seem to be strongly held. After hearing that more than half of the foods on supermarket shelves are genetically modified, one in five of those who initially said GM foods are unsafe changed their minds.

The survey also indicates that consumers do not know much about GM foods and want more information made available to them. Only 44% of consumers have heard either a "great deal" or "some" about either genetically modified foods or biotechnology in the production of foods. Only 9% have heard a great deal. Over half (54%) have heard "not much" or "nothing." Three-quarters of those polled (75 percent) indicated it is important for them to know whether a product contains genetically modified ingredients. Most respondents (75 percent) favor further scientific research into genetically modified foods.

"Despite the heated national debate about agricultural biotechnology, most Americans do not have strong or well-informed opinions about this new technology," said Mike Rodemeyer, executive director of the Pew Initiative on Food and Biotechnology, "Essentially, public opinion is 'up for grabs' because this new technology has moved faster than the public's ability to fully understand it and its implications."

The survey also confirmed the previously known fact that, when asked if they favor or oppose the introduction of GM foods to the U.S. food supply, the majority of respondents (58 percent) report they oppose it.

The bipartisan survey, a telephone poll of 1,001 Americans conducted in January by the Mellman Group and Public Opinion Strategies, is the first information provided to the public by the Pew Initiative on Food and Biotechnology. Recently created by a grant from The Pew Charitable Trusts to the University of Richmond, the Initiative intends to provide reliable information to the national debate about agricultural biotechnology.

In coming months, the Initiative will conduct conferences and workshops, generate papers, and disseminate information on topics related to current issues and concerns about agricultural biotechnology. Possible topics include the adequacy of the regulatory system to address food safety and environmental concerns about the next generation of agricultural biotechnology products, the potential benefits of such products, economic impacts of the new technology and marketing issues faced by farmers and processors.

The Initiative will simultaneously convene a group representing industry, the public sector, academia, farmers, and environment and consumer groups to identify actions that could help move the debate beyond the current polarized condition and towards consensus.

The Honorable Dan Glickman, former Secretary of Agriculture, and the Honorable Vin Weber, former member of Congress, have agreed to co-chair a bipartisan Executive Advisory Committee that will oversee the Initiative's programs.

"This initiative is an important contribution to the public debate on agricultural biotechnology," said former Secretary Glickman. Mr. Weber added, "Dan and I look forward to working together with the Pew Initiative on this critical topic for our nation."

"Agricultural biotechnology has the potential to be one of the most significant transforming technologies of our era," noted Rebecca W. Rimel, president of The Pew Charitable Trusts, "But the risks, benefits and social values ignited by its creation must be thoroughly aired if the public is to have a lasting trust in the technology and the products it produces. The Trusts have a long history of supporting projects that fill gaps in understanding.

The Pew Initiative on Food and Biotechnology was created to give the public the information they need to evaluate a subject as complex and important to our public and environmental health as agricultural biotechnology."

Corn Growers Tell Congress: Complete The Mississippi River Navigation Study, Expand Locks Now

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has strongly encouraged Congress to move immediately to complete the navigation study by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and upgrade locks and dams on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers.

"Delays by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have already given Brazil, Argentina and China an eight-year $57 million head start in the race for future grain markets," said Tim Burrack, Arlington, Iowa, farmer and a member of the NCGA Production and Stewardship Action Team. "For over 20 years farmers have indirectly paid a fuel tax to replace locks, and where are we? The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has spent eight years and $57 million and they have absolutely nothing to show for it."

Burrack testified March 15 before the U.S. House of Representatives' Mississippi River Caucus in the Cannon House Office Building on Capitol Hill. The caucus, a bipartisan group of representatives whose districts border the Mississippi River, meets regularly to discuss common issues relating to the river.

"Every year more than 1.25 billion bushels of our nation's corn crop moves on the upper Mississippi and Illinois rivers," he told the representatives. "I can clearly tell you what impacts 1 billion bushels of corn, impacts the entire 10 billion bushel corn industry. Lock improvements will determine our ability to compete in global grain markets."

Burrack's testimony discussed the findings of the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) review of the economic model the Corps used to analyze the need for river improvements. The panel of independent economists confirmed NCGA's assertions, he noted, that the Corps' didn't prove its assumptions about the variation in corn shipments relative to barge rates. This number was the center of the "whistleblower" complaint.

Burrack also criticized the NAS study for its assumptions and conclusions on ways to improve river efficiency without remodeling locks and dams. One theory is that the barge delays will evaporate if the towing companies will only follow better scheduling, training and trading lockage permits.

"Corn moves to market when the market demands it, not when it is convenient to transit locks," he emphasized. When the global market demands corn or soybeans, grain companies and farmers respond by shipping the grain to the ports.

"If I ship my corn when the market doesn't demand it, someone will have to store it, and that storage comes at a cost, which is reflected in a lower price. Under this scheduling plan, grain will be shipped not when the market wants it, but when an inefficient lock dictates easy transit."

Finally, he addressed the idea of trading lockage permits and greater cooperation among barge lines to ease congestion. "The advocates of this plan forget one of the keys to barges' low-cost nature is competition," he said. "The NAS panel report also fails to recognize that grain companies compete against each other, for export sales, for farmers' grain and for transportation. Competition is good, it keeps people honest, and it helps us all. If barge and grain companies start cooperating to ease congestion, when does cooperation end and collusion begin?

"It is time to complete this (navigation) study and to expand the capacity of this vital national infrastructure," Burrack emphasized as he concluded his testimony. "Expand these locks now, so that farmers and American business can compete."

Augers

Hydraulically driven augers provide fast, economical digging With auger bits available from 6-inch to 36-inch diameters, these augers give you the ability to handle a multitude of tasks Normal digging depth is 48 inches Optional 14- and 24-inch extensions available A 30-inch tree/shrub auger is also available.

Steel Tracks

For sand, snow or mud, Gehl steel tire tracks get you through the toughest weather and working conditions to get the job done A patented self-cleaning design keeps mud, ice, rocks and other debris from wedging in the tracks

Power Landscape Rake

The perfect tool for landscape contractors With a unique rake action, these units collect rocks and surface debris, leaving soil in a loose, level condition. They remove rocks, sticks and metal from the ground surface, leaving you with several inches of loose, relatively debris-free soil Their unique action will also dethatch tired turf, leaving the surface ready to re-seed.

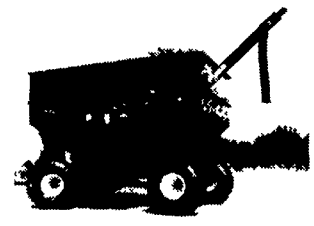
MORE THAN JUST A GRAVITY BOX:



Gravity Box Innovative Design:
- Capacities range from 400 to 190 bushels to match individual needs
- Unloading is fast and complete with steep-sloped sides and graphite-coated interior
- A low center of gravity and balanced weight distribution provide stable towing
- Rounded box corners protect optional tarp against punctures or tears
- A front ladder is standard for easy viewing of box contents, a rear- mounted five-rung ladder is optional

Gravity Box Quality Manufacturing:
- Rugged MIG continuous-bead welding and a one-piece door-side panel enhance sidewall strength and durability
- A full primer undercoat and durable high-quality equipment enamel topcoat help prevent corrosion
- The rack-and-pinion mechanism permits easy unloading-door opening even with a full load of high-moisture grain

Gravity Box Options:
A tarp kit complete with bows and straps allows the gravity box to be used for temporary storage
- 16-, 14- and 12-foot unloading augers with a choice of steel or heavy-duty plastic outer tube and brush-tip, steel or plastic flighting
- An amber and red flashing tail light package will enhance transport safety
- A five-rung ladder for viewing of box interior can be mounted to the rear of the wagon

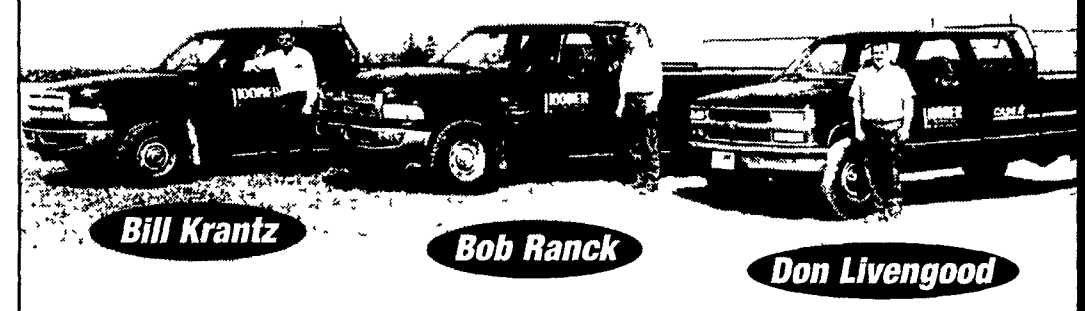
COMING SOON To A Farm Near You!



Intercourse Location Parts Travelers

At Hoober, Inc. we know that timing is critical and we know that you can't afford down time That is why every day, Hoober trucks make trips to the Philadelphia parts depot and Hoober trucks transfer parts between our three locations. This allows us to get you the parts you need, when you need them. Plus, Hoober has experienced parts travelers that will deliver parts straight to your farm, saving you valuable time and money. In fact, our three parts travelers at Intercourse have 30 years of combined experience with Hoober.

Join the Great Plains Seeding Revolution!

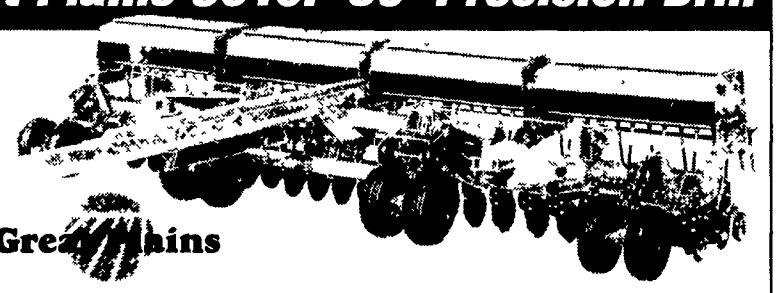
Great Plains Precision Seeding System™

The revolutionary Precision Seeding System from Great Plains gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters. Great Plains Precision Seeding Systems are available on the 15' and 30' models and each frame is designed specifically for its width The Great Plains Precision Seeding System also opens the door to Ultra-Narrow Row configurations

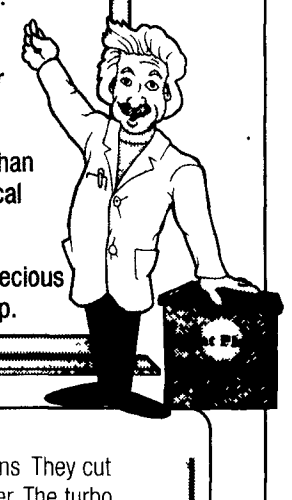
Great Plains 3010P 30' Precision Drill



Great Plains

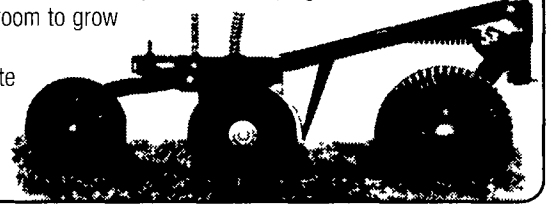
Before you buy your next planter or drill, consider the following facts:

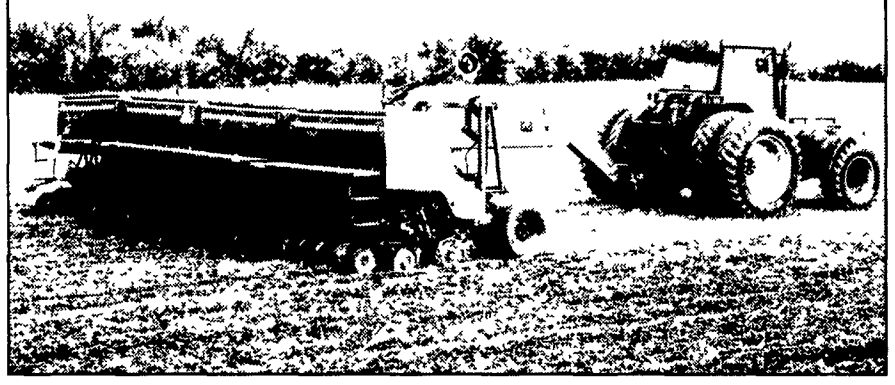
- If you overpopulate with either a planter or a drill, you increase your seed cost and decrease yields.
- Only Great Plains meets or exceeds planters on depth control and seed-to-soil contact for even emergence and maximum yield.
- Drilled beans canopy up to 3 weeks earlier than planted beans, dramatically reducing chemical cost.
- The earlier canopy of drilled beans saves precious moisture that can make or break a bean crop.



Turbo Coulters

Great Plains "Turbo" Coulters are a must in no-till conditions They cut through the heaviest residue, clearing a path for the opener The turbo coulter also puts "Tilth" into cold compacted soil helping to warm it and giving roots plenty of room to grow Great Plains Exclusive turbo coulters penetrate better than conventional coulters





For almost 20 years Great Plains drills backed by Hoober's quality service and parts support have been the perfect combination for maximum productivity.

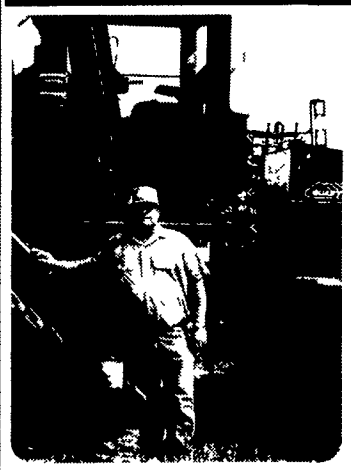
All New & Used Products Backed By Hoober Parts & Service



"Their parts department is well serviced and we feel we have been taken care of very well Their customers are important to them, and we always feel like we are important to them too We have had very few problems with our Steigers the whole time that we have run them But in the back of my mind when I purchased one, I always knew Hoober would have something to get me going I m very pleased with what they do here for us '

Felix Rutkoske, Rutkoske Farms
Middletown, DE

"When we went to buy our equipment, Hoober service was the big thing we took into consideration Those guys are specialized in combines – they really do their homework, and they know exactly what they are doing They really want to please the customer, and we couldn't be happier with the service we get from Hoober "

WHAT'S BETTER THAN A SPLIT-ROW PLANTER?

Faster and more economical, a corn planter and a soybean drill could be right for you. Here's why:

➤ Two machines can boost productivity 96 percent! It takes a Knize 12/23-row planter nearly 127 hours to plant a 2,000-acre farm (half corn, half beans) With both a 12-row John Deere 1760 and 15-foot 1530 in the field, you could plant 2,333 acres of corn and 1,592 acres of soybeans in those 127 hours

➤ See us for all the details

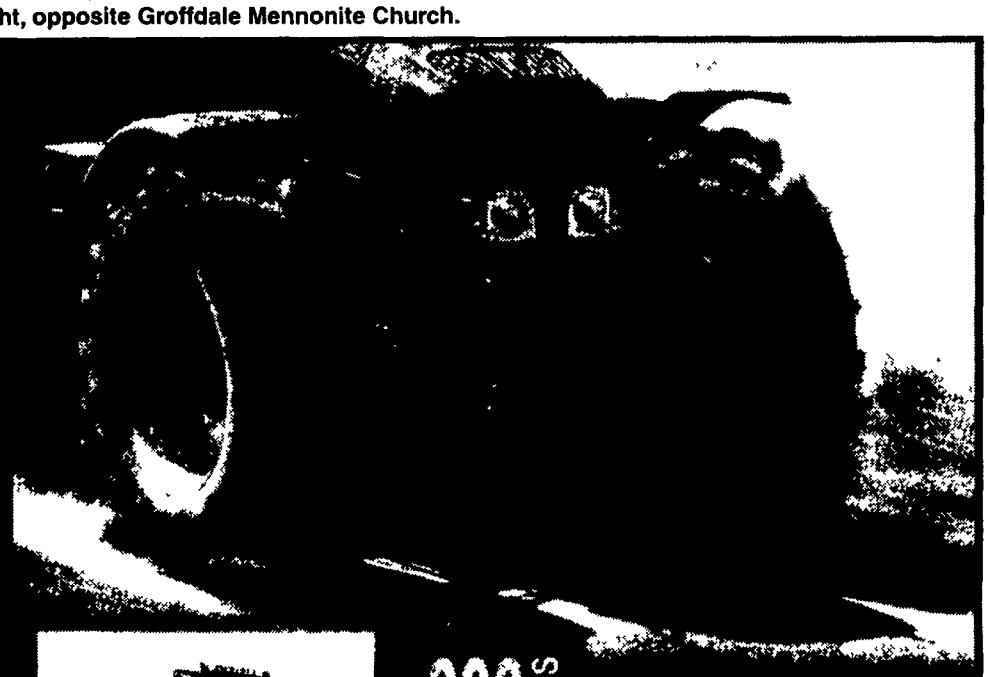
700 SERIES

Imagine a row-crop or utility tractor that offers smooth, infinite speed selections from 0.01 to 31 mph with the efficiency of a powershift. How about one-hand control of all driving and hydraulic functions? Or a cruise control system that maintains field and road speeds, independent of engine speed so you can reap maximum fuel economy and peak performance?

That description fits the new FENDT 700 Series-comprised of 110, 125 and 140 PTO horsepower models. Visit your FENDT dealer and experience the future now.

The Future Has Arrived



900 SERIES

Rated at 240 PTO horsepower, the FENDT 926 has established a new power level in rigid-frame tractors. The 900 Series is completed by the FENDT 924 at 205 PTO horsepower and the 920 with 180 PTO horsepower.

All three contenders boast FENDT's evolutionary Vario transmission, offering smooth, stepless speed control from 0.01 to 31 mph.

Suddenly, it appears the competition has left the ring.

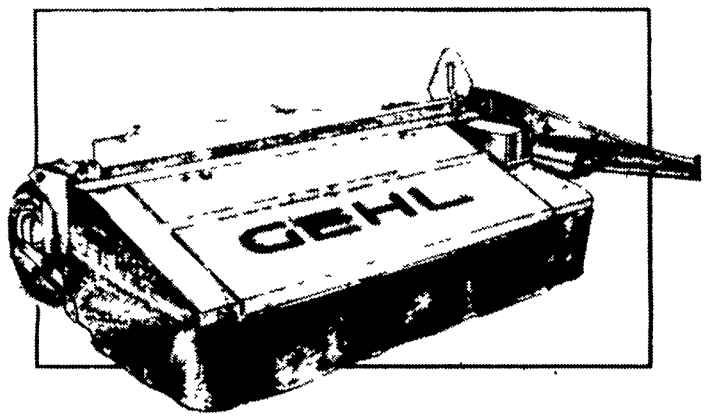
YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE

2345/2365 DISC CONDITIONERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

The #1 Name In Feedmaking

Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 35 years. Now available with Gehl's famous hammermill or a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control - Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments
- Remote controls - Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales - For precise ration weighing.
- Customize your machine - With a wide variety of options and attachments.

Farmers Union Convention Adopts Measures On GMOs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Delegates to National Farmers Union's (NFU) 99th anniversary convention adopted policy regarding genetically modified organisms (GMO).

The new policy supports ways to ensure the safety of the world's food supply and to protect the farmers and ranchers from liabilities because of environmental and health dangers caused by the producers of GMO technology.

"Concerns over food safety and certification have gained new attention in recent days," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU. "While consumers are demanding to know that the food they purchase for their families is safe, farmers are demanding the control and the knowledge to grow what the consumers and the marketplace require. We need to know the parameters of use for these crops. We need to ensure that we meet those parameters and the demands of the markets into which we sell."

Policy adopted at the convention in Rochester, N.Y., augments previous policy stances to address emerging issues in the agricultural biotechnology arena. Included in the policy recommendations is a provision that would prohibit government regulatory agencies from licensing genetically modified products that are not acceptable for both human consumption and animal feed. Regulatory agencies and input suppliers must also ensure that farmers are informed of all potential market risks and segregation requirements associated with planting any GMO crop and they must consider domestic and foreign consumer acceptance of the product when licensing.

Farmers are not to be held liable for food safety, human health or environmental problems, including cross pollination, when they follow planting and segregation requirements. Both market loss and contamination loss in these instances must be fully reimbursed to the farmer.

The convention also adopted a policy position that supports imposing a moratorium on the introduction, certification, and commercialization of genetically engineered wheat until issues of cross-pollination, liability, commodity and seed stock segregation, and market acceptance are adequately addressed.

"We support technological developments that improve production and potential income for farmers and ranchers," said Swenson. "We know that research is vital to creating a secure, safe, and healthy food supply for the world. We must continue to ensure that these innovations benefit family-sized producers, providing them with real production choices and immunity to liability when the developers of the technology cause damage to the environment or commodity markets and compromises public health. We must continue to ensure that the consumers in our foreign and domestic markets can be reasonably informed and can make knowledgeable choices about the food they buy."

Working With This Year's Forages: Making Up For Mother Nature

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The erratic and adverse weather conditions of the past growing season have placed added stress on dairy producers throughout the eastern U.S.

Many producers have in stock forages of questionable quality and are requiring changes to existing feeding programs to hold production.

Yet an innovative technology that allows higher levels of nonprotein nitrogen to be fed using a controlled-release nitrogen offers producers more flexibility to address the problem by creating "space" in the ration.

Optigen™ 1200 from CPG Nutrients is a high-density nitrogen source that increases rumen microbial production. Nitrogen sources, such as urea and Optigen 1200, are converted to ammonia in the rumen. Rumen microbes then combine this ammonia with carbohydrates to make microbial protein, the preferred form of protein for ruminants.

Studies at the Miner Agricultural Institute in Chazy, N.Y., and the F.A.R.M.E. Institute in Homer, N.Y. demonstrated that unlike urea, Optigen 1200 produces ammonia at an optimum rate for uptake of rumen bacteria.

Because of the breakthrough of limiting the release rates of nonprotein nitrogen, more nonprotein nitrogen can be fed, thus increasing the protein density of the diet. By feeding a half pound of Optigen 1200, two pounds of space can be opened up to feed other products. This space can be utilized with feedstuffs that offset the shortfalls in this year's forages.

"This additional space allows producers and nutritionists the opportunity to examine feeding programs, their goals and objectives," said Stephen Emanuele, vice president of CPG Nutrients. "More importantly, it provides the flexibility to make adjustments to potentially meet those goals."

For many producers, this year's forage situation will require adjustments in order to maximize their herd's potential. By utilizing Optigen 1200, they have the ability to add carbohydrates to the ration without having to take something out.

Brubaker Consulting Hires Nutrient Management Specialist

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, LLC, Ephrata, has hired George Hazard as a project manager, nutrient management and CAFO specialist.

Hazard has an extensive history working with nutrient management while previously working for a conservation district, Brubaker Consulting Group and Pleasant Valley Foods. Hazard is nutrient management certified in Pennsylvania and familiar with CAFO Regulations.

George Hazard

Hazard has served on several boards and committees, including the Mid-State Resource Conservation and Development Council Board of Directors and the Juniata River Clean Water Steering Committee. He is a member of the Juniata County Farm Safety Coalition.

Hazard received his bachelor's degree in biology from Penn State University and lives with his wife in the McAlisterville area.

New Livestock Waterer Available For Large Dairy/ Feedlot Operations

GRINNELL, Iowa — Miraco announces the availability of the new #6300 livestock waterer designed specifically for large dairy and feedlot operations. The #6300 is 12-foot long by 22-inches wide by 22-inches tall. Water capacity is approximately 100 gallons. The unique design allows for 12-foot of water space and fits in tight areas such as cross alleys.

All poly construction with urethane insulation and available 40 gallons per minute valve. The bottom slopes away from the center towards two large drains for easy and fast cleaning. It is available with electric heat or constant flow. The constant flow model retails for $820, the electric heat model retails for $870.

Insecticide Registered In New York For Aphid Control

WILMINGTON, Del. — New York potato and vegetable growers have a new way to help control aphids. Fulfill® insecticide, from Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc., has been registered in New York for use on fruiting vegetables, cucurbit crops and potatoes. The active ingredient in Fulfill, pymetrozine, is a unique compound that offers a different mode of action than any other insecticides registered for aphid control.

Fulfill® is also an effective rotational partner and will fit well in Integrated Pest Management (IPM) programs. The combination of residual control and IPM fit mean Fulfill can help vegetable growers reduce the number of applications needed for aphid control with minimal impact on beneficial insects.

Fulfill works by quickly stopping aphids from feeding after they come in contact with, or ingest, the active ingredient. Feeding and plant damage stop within the first two hours after application although aphids may be visible on treated plants for several days.

Once Fulfill contacts the plant, the active ingredient, pymetrozine, exhibits excellent translaminar and systemic movement. This means it quickly enters leaf tissue, creating a reservoir of material that continues to be active against aphids for up to two weeks.

New Case System Delivers Seeding Accuracy, Versatility

RACINE, Wis. — The new Case IH ADX air system is designed with the accuracy, versatility and productivity that producers need to improve seeding and fertilizing operations.

"Crop rotations are an important part of farming today," said Ken Lehmann, marketing manager for Case IH seeding products. "Case IH ADX air systems provide the versatility needed to gently meter and distribute a wide range of seed sizes and weights, from grasses and small grains to peas and soybeans."

In one pass, the system can meter and deliver seed and fertilizer combinations through multiple hoppers.

Precise metering, accurate product delivery and efficient operation are the hallmarks of every Case IH ADX air system. The system uses a new Down Draft Metering concept, which has three main features to improve accuracy and efficiency in the field:

- An agitator bar prevents material from building up above the meter to ensure a consistent, even flow through the meter.
- Product is divided into equal portions, one for each primary line in the distribution system.
- Air and product are mixed in a parallel flow for a smooth transition from the meter box to the distribution system.

"The enhanced blend of air and product results in gentle, precise metering," Lehmann noted.

The ADX air system offers the option to singe-, double-, or triple-shoot, and operators can quickly switch between these options. Producers can also choose between mechanical drive metering or a variable-rate metering system to change rates on the go.

"The system can distribute 70 pounds per acre of soybeans or 250 pounds per acre of dry fertilizer equally well," said Lehmann.

The ADX air system is used with Case IH Concord seeding tools, as well as Case IH planters and tillage tools to fit any farming system.

Productivity is critical during the seeding season. High-capacity Case IH ADX air systems are available in a range of sizes and configurations. Capacities range from 180 to 360 bushels.

New Case IH ADX air system. Three models of ADX air systems are available in capacities ranging from 180 to 360 bushels, in tow-behind or tow-between configurations.

The ADX2180 and 2230 are divided into two compartments with a 40/60 split. Seed and granular fertilizer can be carried in separate compartments to blend on-the-go, dual-shoot for separated placement, or both compartments can be filled with one product to achieve maximum capacity.

The ADX3360 has three integrated polyethylene tanks to carry up to three separate products. The third tank gives the ADX3360 more options to apply seed, fertilizer or granular products in a single pass for maximum efficiency. Operators can carry more product to the field to keep working longer between refilling stops. As a result, they can seed more acres per day.

The ADX air system also features a new electronic monitor for more precise product delivery. The Agri Check monitor features a multi-line, alphanumeric display and user-friendly set-up.

"This is the most advanced monitoring technology in the industry," said Lehmann. "It provides in-cab readout of fan RPM, acreage, bin status and product delivery rates for each meter. Options such as air velocity sensors and variable meter drive give operators even more control and information."

The ADX air systems are designed to take full advantage of the Case IH Concord air till drill and the SDX30 single disk drill. The Case IH Concord air till drill, in widths from 20 to 60 feet, has a patented walking beam packing system that allows seed to be banded or "ribbon seeded."

Ribbon seeding maximizes plant productivity by giving them more room for root development than conventional confined row seeding, resulting in improved yield potential. The ADX air system's double- and triple-shoot capability allows growers to maximize fertilizer efficiency through precise placement in relation to the seed.

The wide range of configuration choices for the ADX system also allow customers to get the most vale from the SDX30 single disk no-till drill. The superior residue cutting, precise seed placement, rugged construction and high-speed operation of the SDX30 team with the accuracy and gentle delivery of the ADX air system to deliver excellent seeding performance.

Deere Introduces New Mapping Software

LENEXA, Kan. — New technology, computer software, and satellite mapping systems are creating an equipment revolution in agriculture.

The new digital revolution will allow growers and producers to become more efficient in their operations and better manage the data collected from their crops.

John Deere continues to lead the way with innovative products and services, and introduces an important upgrade to current mapping software. The John Deere Ag Management Solutions group introduces JDmap 4.2 and JDmap 4.2 Deluxe.

This new software is fully compatible with the latest in computer operating systems, including Microsoft Windows® 95,98 and ME (Millennium Edition). It offers improved filter capabilities, and multiple varieties of flags can now be viewed at the same time on a field map.

"Farm maps are now color coded by crop," said Craig Sutton, product manager for business and agronomic information services. "The maps are easy to read and offer crop yield, crop moisture, and field elevation information."

The new software also allows for single-click upload of setup and yield data to the VantagePoint Network. This allows growers and producers to easily share information with approved business partners such as bankers, consultants, and fertilizer/chemical retailers.

JDmap 4.2 Deluxe offers some extra few features. The software allows for historical field documentation data, a new field boundary map on printed reports, and soil type reports that show (by field) the number of acres of each soil type. This deluxe software is also available in a multi-client version that allows tracking of up to 50 clients in the software database.

"JDmap support packages will continue with the same programs that were previously in place," said Sutton. "With the first time purchase of all JDmap software, a free, one-year support program is included. After the first year of free support, additional maintenance packages can be purchased."

John Deere has established 360-degree support that includes the John Deere dealership network, toll-free phone support, the www.stellarsupport.com Website, and the help menus and user's guides included with JDmap. For more information, contact your local John Deere dealer.

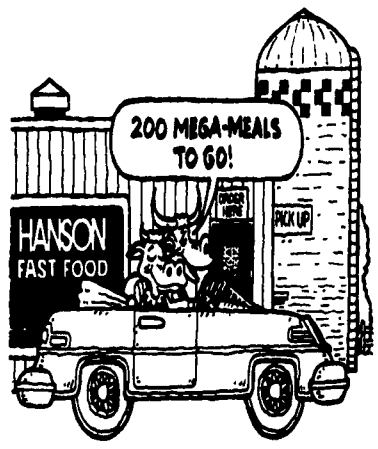
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL



Fast food for mega-herds!

The all-new Mega-Trac ring drive silo unloader was specifically designed to meet the feed-delivery needs of today's bigger and expanding herds.

Hanson Silo Company has combined the best of both worlds in the Mega-Trac unloader. Whatever the season, the Mega-Trac design includes the best features of the single auger and the double auger unloaders of the past. The Mega-Trac unique dual auger machine with its two-motor system rips smoothly through frozen silage, and does not clog in summer haylage. Up to three times more capacity than conventional silo unloaders. During recent winter testing the Mega-Trac delivered 2 tons of frozen haylage per revolution.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.

DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.

STANDING SEAM

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

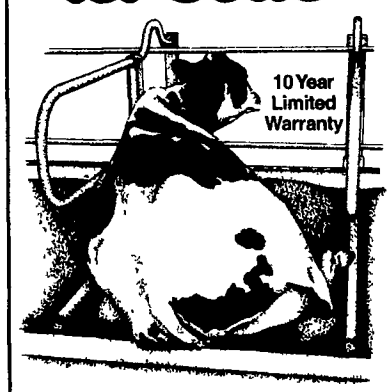
Waterbeds for Cows



The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALANTA™ LimPoly

Here's What Some of Your Neighbors Say About Alanta Waterbeds:

Dale Hindman, Brockway, PA
"We have seen a big savings in the amount of bedding we use and I believe the durability of the beds will be excellent over time."

Harlan Hoover, Oley, PA
"I am pleased with waterbeds. Cow comfort is excellent."

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

Complete Corrosion Protection!

ZRC Worldwide

- Excellent for manufacturers to protect bare steel surfaces or weld areas
- Contractors (installers) use to repair on-site weld areas in milking parlors, stall barns, etc
- Farmers repair welds, reprotect critical corrosion points feed bin roofs etc
- ZRC is equivalent to Hot Dip Galvanizing with proper surface preparation
- ZRC is not paint! 95% zinc content provides galvanic action which prevents rust creepage Paint only provides skin-type surface protection

BEEF TIPS

Kansas tests steers

Simmentals continued their amazing run in the Kansas Commercial Cattle Improvement Program (CCIP). Results from the 2000 program placed Simmental steers among the first 3 and in 14 of the top 25 places among 204 steers of all breeds from 34 different ranches. The animals were measured on weight/day of age, average daily gain, retail value/day of age, feed conversion, rib eye area, yield grade, and quality grade. Every first place steer since 1990 has been Simmental or Simmental influenced.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced • Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

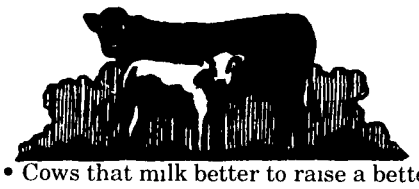
Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

PURINA FEEDS IMPROVES PRODUCTION FOR MIFFLIN DAIRY

Marcus Zook, who farms about 200 acres near Mifflin, Pa , points out one cow's production record when evaluating how important a good feeding program can be

The Zook Farm has been shipping milk to the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producer's Cooperative for 27 years and using Purina Mills' dairy rations for 14 years Marcus is impressed with the way Purina Maxi-Tech Concentrate and Purina EXT® Milking Ration have helped improve production

On example, Rocket, a registered Holstein, working on her third lactation, has had 111 pounds, 116 pounds, and 125 pounds of milk on her first three test days Pennsylvania DHIA records show the herd average at 857 pounds of fat (3 8%) and 726 pounds of protein (3 2%) Test-day averages were 75 8 pounds of milk per cow with 4 0% fat and 3.3% protein

Zook grows about 100 acres of alfalfa/bromegrass hay harvested mostly as haylage with the second cutting baled in small square bales. He also grows 70 acres of corn (for silage and high-moisture grain), a few acres of barley, and maintains 15 acres of pasture

Cows are consuming 95 pounds of TMR daily, containing haylage, corn silage, a high moisture corn, and Purina Concentrate. The TMR is fed four times per day with 4-5 pounds of dry hay fed before the evening milking. Cows have feed all the time, which helps boost milk production, said Marcus.

Zook breeds and feeds his 70-cow registered Holstein herd for longevity and good production He credits the high-energy Purina Ext rations with also improving butterfat test.

Calves are started in a 15-calf condo unit. With the first 60 days being critical, Zook uses Purina Calf Startena starter ration. The dry cow ration includes Purina Prepare Concentrate 36%. During the summer, after high moisture corn is gone, Zook uses Milk Generator TMR complete Mixing Ration. It mixes well and the cows really like it.

Marcus farms with wife Annamary, son Kenny, daughter Jennifer, 2, and also has help from nephew Ken Zook.
